WAS ATTACHED TO CUSTER'S COMMAND

North Dakota Physician Who Makes a Fine Offer to the Government_ Past Services Recalled_Remimiscence of a Massacre.

BISMAROK, N. D., April 4 .- (Special.)-Dr. H. R. Porter of this city is reported to have made an offer of $50,000 to the government and a tender of his services in the army in case of trouble with Spain. This incident serves to recall the fact that the doctor comes of fighting blood.

Dr. Porter is one of the best known realdents of Bismarck and achieved note through his connection with the Custer massacre. He | CHINESE ACTORS ARE DEBARRED. was one of the physicians with the command, one of the youngest of them, and yet the older men have stated that never was there a cooler man on the field, and when Indian bullets were flying thick and fast about the regulars, Porter was everywhere attending to the injuries of the men, and even in one or two instances rescuing men from positions of danger after they had been wounded, at the risk of his own life. He earned the plaudits of the entire command to which he was attached, and all of the survivors of the commands which escaped massacre have a hearty good word for Dr. Poster

In the excitement and consternation which was created at the time of the massacre of the Custer command, the incidents of the great Indian fight were subordinated to the general horror of the catastrophe. But as the first horror of the news wore away, the details of the subsequent fights of Renos command came to light, and of their passage down the river on the little steamer Far West. The steamer was a little boat of 700 tons burden, and under the command of Captain Grant Marsh, who drove the little vessel for sixty-four miles up the Little Big Horn, an unexplored civer, to the mouth of the Little Horn, where he was about fifteen miles from the scene of the fighting, and it has been said by the men who were with him on the boat that there must have been some special providence watching over and guiding the vessel, as it seemed at the time as if the boat had sailed over sand bars and dry land, so shallow and so treacherous was the stream. Marsh himself said after-ward he did not believe he could go over the same route in a skiff. Being thus close to the scene of action, Marsh received the wounded from Reno's command at 2 o'clock a. m. of the 28th of June, it being necessary to ccuvey them down fifteen miles of the Little Horn valley instead of forty miles across a rough prairie, as would have been the case had Marsh not been there with his

On the Way to Omahn and Detained by the Immigration Officials. PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., April 4.—(Special.)-The promoter of the proposed exhibit of the Chinese character at the coming Omaha exposition, who is a Chinese business man in New York City, is having trouble in getting his men into this country, and may not succeed in doing so at all. He first secured a concession from congress, as is customary in such cases, for the admission of 250 Chinese of different types, as part of the exhibit for that country at the exposi-tion.

Certain conditions were provided, however, by which it was intended by congress that these Chinese should be returned after the of the exposition. This has been exacted in the past, but, as a matter of fact, tow, if any of them, were ever returned to China, and this led to some looseness on the part of those engaged in such importations. On the last trip of the Japanese steamship Kinshiu Maru sixteen Chinese were brough: over for the Omaha expesition, but Collector Huestis finds that they have complied with here. lew of the regulations required by the special act of congress relating to their case, and he has faily refused to admit them. The pro-moter of the enterprise is now on his way here from New York and will make an effort to overcome the objections urged by the collector, but it looks as though he must get relief from the secretary of the treasury or relief from the secretary of the treasury or from congress direct.

Lieutenant Knapp, it is expected, will ar-rive in England on the Somers tomorrow and will at once put to sea with the Diogenes. He will have command of both vessels on their voyage across the Atlantic. He will be directed to proceed with all possible dispatch to New York, so that the two ships may be out of the reach of Spanish cruisers in case war should be declared this week. The authorities admit that they are hunt-

Curly said he saw that the whites were certain to be massacred, and so he managed to reach the river, washed off his Crow paint, mingled with the Sloux in their charges to disarm suspicica, and then made this escape and struck out for the mouth of the Little Big Horn, where he knew Terry would be encamped. Terry at once started for the scene of battle and came in sight of Renc's command, who had been engaged in a desperate struggle with the Indians. Reno had attacked the Indians at the head of the camp with three companies of cavalry, and in a desperate hand to hand struggle many of the soldiers were killed and the remainder cut their way to a bluff about 300 feet fligh, where they were reinforced by Benteen. In gaining this position Reno had to recross the river, and it was at the ford that the hottest fight took place. It was here that Lieutenants McIntosh and Hodgson fell, here Dr. De Wolf was killed and here Bloody Knife, the terrible chieftain, surrendered up his spirit. The Sioux dashed up alongside the soldiers, knock ing them off their horses in some cases, and it was in this way that Lie itenant McIntosh was captured and killed at the leisure of the past year: savages. Until 10 o'clock at night the des-perate struggle continued, and the soldiers worked all night strengthening their breast-works, using knives, tin cups and plates in-stead of spades and shovels. In the afternoon of the second day the supply of water had 727.72.

been exhausted, and the suppy of white here piterusly for it. And, finally, Terry came in sight, and Lieutenant Bradley soon afterward reported that he had discovered the dead bodies of Custer and his entire command. CARING FOR THE WOUNDED.

Dr. Porter was in that wild rush for the ford made by Reno and his command, pass-ing and being repassed by painted savages in their quest for scalps. And as soon as the command had reached the bluff, a bar-ricade of stores and dead horses was made and Porter began his succor and relief of the wounded. He was a very young man, and the only one of the surgeons remaining, Ors. Lord and De Wolf having been killed. The number of the wounded who required treatment rapidly increased from ten to fifty and all of them had to be treated by the single doctor, with such assistance as could be rendered by some of the slightly wounded. Officers of the command who survived were earnest in their praises of the work of the gallant young doctor. He worked with the coolness of the oldest veterans, shunning no danger, and leaving nothing un-done which might alleviate the sufferings of done which might alleviate the sufferings of the wounded. When the forces of Terry arrived the woundel were borne to the steamer Far West, and from there brought to Bismarck, a distance of 900 miles. One of the old-timers in this city, in speaking of the arrivel of the Far West with its burden of wounded and its gloomy tidings of mas-sacre, said: "I remember the occasion as well as though it were yesterday. It was early in July, a very warm night, and many residents of the city were sleeping out of doors. It was incredible. We who had seen the expedition start out from Fort Lincoln full of confidence and serense in their shilly to defeat the Indians could not realise that such a disaster had befallen them.
