The population of the islands is estimated at from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000. Excluding foreigners for the moment, we find the nalives divided into something like 200 tribes each with its peculiar dialect and customs With the single exception of the Negritos, these trees are of Malay extraction. The latter people are a race of dwarfish blacks, confined at present to a few of the loftiest mountain ranges. They are characterized not alone by their color, but by the possession of closely curling hair, which serves at once to distinguish them from the strighthaired Malay races. They are commonly believed to be the aborigines of the islands.

A more degraded race could hardly be conceived. They wander through the for-ests in a state borderly closely on absolute nudity, and live on whatever they can pick rem the trees or dig out of the ground They never practice agriculture, but some-times bunt a little, and are said to eat much of their animal food raw. THE MALAYS. Turning now to the tribes of Malay origin, we find them varying in their development from a state of despite savagery to civilization. The interiors of several of the larger islands are populated by hearly naked tribes, many of whose members have never seen a white may. He garded with reverential awe by the Prof. Dean C. Worcester of the University of Michigan furnishes the New York Independent an instructive eketch of Spain's lakend possessions in the Pacific, which promise to become the theater of warlike action before long.

The Philippines, writes Prof. Worcester, lie wholly within the tropics, reaching at the south to within 4½ degrees of the equator.

In spite of their vows of poverty and the power, and as a rule act upon his suggestions in the Pacific whole of the wealthless, as well as the suggestion of the wealth and his power, and as a rule act upon his suggestions in the power As soon as one of their number falls seriously ill he is descrited by his friends, who invariably springs up to their vicinity. The most appalling feature of their domination is the use which they undoubtedly make of their holy office to effect the rule of the simple and superstitious native women and girls, who blindly follow their bidding. There are, of course, exceptions to the rule of ignorance and brutish licentiousness the occasionally encounters a sunny-hearted oli man, at peace with the world and his Maker, who spends his life in doing good. The results accomplished in such cases serve only to intensify the sadness with which one cannot fall to regard the state of affairs which exists in the average village.

A starp distinction should be drawn between the felars and the priests. Am ug the Mohammedan faraties of the southern islands are to be found Jesuit priests, engaged in genuine missionary work. One cannot but admire their celf-carrificing and intropid courage and their devotion to duty. So far as my observation went their lives were above reproach, and it would be a blessed thing for the Philippines should the day ever come when the friam were driven out and their places taken by men like these Nominelly, the highest authority in the Philippines is the governor general. Actually the controlling power is vested in the clergy, and wee betide the official, be he civil, military or celigious, who attempts to interfere with Philippine morcetic life as it exists. One of two results have invariably any vigorous attempt to correct the crying evils which I have enumerated. The too ambitious official has found that money would procure the recall, even of a governor general, or he Cas met a sudden and mysterious death. CORRUPT OFFICIAL LIFE.

The governor general is surrounded by a numerous corps of officials to aid him in the performance of his duties, while the islands are divided into provinces, over each of which preside a governor and a borde of minor officials. The whole administration is rotten from skin to core. With exceptions these officials have come two of the largest cities, and even there the spain with the deliberate and frankly ex-facilities offered are very poor. two of the largest cities, and even there the facilities offered are very poor.

The Operaish law provides for the teaching of the Spanish language in the village schools; but this does not suit the convenience of the village friars, who prefer to be the only available interpreters between their flocks and the outside world. They therefore attempt, usually with success, to prevent the teaching of Spanish, and the "elucation" of the average native consists of the memorizing of a few prayers and a section of the average native consists.
