Regulations in Berlin.

Berlin is one of the least noisy cities of Europe. Railway ensines are not allowed to blow their whistles within the city limits. There is no loud bawling by hucksters, and a man whose wagon gearing is loose and rattling is subject to a fine. The courts have a large discretion as to fines for noise-making. Strangest of all, plano playing is regulated in Berlin. Before a certain hour in the day and after a certain hour in the night the plano must be slient in that musical city. Even during playing hours a fine is imposed for mere banging on the plano.

by an invading force of our troops, the garrison could hope to hold out against the inevitably disastrous bombardment that must follow a vigorous resistance. Nothing markable instances of recent years were those of Alexandria and Paris. In both cases the attack prevailed over the defense, notwithstacding that the fortifications of both cities were immensely strong and up-to-date in every particular. However, there were extenuating circumstances in each case which accounted for the premature success of the enemy. BOMBARDMENT OF ALEXANDRIA.

The contest at Alexandria wea short, but decisive. Within ten hours the British fleet, under Admiral Seymour, had effectually silenced every gun on the shore. Ten thou-sand shell and solid shot were poured in on sand shell and solid shot were poured in on the thoroughly frightened Egyptians, and a complete evacuation of the forts was the re-sult. Yet very little execution was done by this veritable hall of iron, for the great parapets of sand, which protected the bat-teries, rendered harmless the huge 13-inch projectiles, and it was only because of the haves caused by the fragments of chells havoe caused by the fragments of chells which flew around everywhere and accom-plished a frightful slaughter among the gallant adherents of Arabi Pasha, joined to a knowledge that their want of accuracy in aiming left the fleet practically unharmed, that the defenses were so speedily relin-quished to the British admiral. As every one knows, the guns were mostly all spiked or blown to pieces by a landing party of marines, but outside of the forts themselves the destruction was very small, for the presmarines, but outside of the forts themselves the destruction was very small, for the presence of friends as well as toes in the city forbade an extensive shelling of any but the recognized native quarter, yet sufficient damage was done by the incendiary shells to otart a fire that almost destroyed the entire town. In this engagement the enormous power of SI-ton guns, the projectiles of which weigh over 1,700 pounds, was amply demonstrated; but it was also evident that the quickly thrown-up and inexpensive embankments of sind form an invulnerable defense against even these terrible weapons, and there can be little doubt that, in the bands of experienced gunners, the guns of the barbor batteries would have given a much better account of themselves. It is even an open question whether the fleet would not have been repulsed under such circumstant, and the control of the success the artiflery branch of our army weight well ponder, for the success of the improvements of late years in range-model.

The bombardment of Paris, though it can hardly be compared with a possible attack on Havana, is yet worthy of notice as illusinto the city proper; the devastation caused by the latter in some parts was frightful. and the fires in consequence often threatened to ruin whole districts. Many houser and walls were thrown down by the garrison, so as to leave large open agaces where shells could do but little or no damage, yet many has been applied by the garrison, so the beautiful to the could be supposed by the same of hunger of the presence of a large Spanish squadron in the immediate vicinity of the harbor, since there is no reason to fear the a one who had endured the pangs of hunger in silence and submitted without complaint to the severe regulations of the commissary general, for the honor and take of "La Belle France," found it hard to restrain both tears and indignation when, on returning from the front after a long and hopeless struggle against an apparently invincible foe, he could discover nothing save the rules of his former

During the civil war there were many fucidestruction; in fact, the wonderfully small loss of life in all these operations during the momentous struggle of 1861-65 is worthy of remark, as showing the completeness of the means adopted to protect the defenders f om the dangerous missiles; the more noteworthy since, in nearly ever case, the forts in question were very severely handled and many of them dismantled. A few years before, however, during the protracted slege of Sebastopol, the combined facts of France and England had demonstrated the power and possibilities of the cannon of the period when arrayed in opposition to even the most elaborate and scientific systems of defecse; only the severity of the climate and the extraor-dinary intrepidity of the Russian soldiers enabled them to keep the allies at tay for such a lengthy period. GIBRALTAR'S DEFENSE IN 1779.

Undoubtedly the most interesting story of slege and bombardment in the annuls of warfare since cannon were first invented is that attack by a cross-fire from the sea. of the unsuccessful attempt of Spain to a gain in 1779 the fortress of Gibraltar, which England had taken by storm a few years before. Meanwhile, the galkant little garrison was but once relieved and suffered all the pangs of starvation, not unmingled sometimes with of starvation, not unmingled sometimes with a feeling of despair; still they clung to the giganti: rock, repelling attack after uttack with indomitable courage and endurance and inflicting enormous losses on their op-ponents. In the war between Spain and the United States, it is generally anticipated that the American navy would proceed to invest Havana and demand the unconditional surrender of that city. In the war between the successful issue of the Spanish general, and as ingenious type of diarge verse at the disposal of the Spanish general, and as ingenious type of flarge caliber were at the desposal of the Spanish general, and as ingenious type of flarge scaled by the dons, who expected great things of them in the mediate war, had been devised by the dons, who expected great t naval station would put a terrible handicap on all future operations undertaken by the Spanish ships against ours. One can easily imagine, therefore, the strenuous efforts that would be made, on the one hand to carry out, and on the other to repel any such attack. Yet it is difficult to see how, in the face of a strong attacking fleet in front and an almost certain attempt from the rear by the insurgents, aided possibly by an invading force of our troops, the gar-table trouble and inconvenience, conceived the brilliant idea of loading their guns with red-hot shot and burning shells, which, though of little penetrating power, turned out to be very effectively an invading force of our troops, the gar-table trouble and invading their guns with red-hot shot and burning shells, which, though of little penetrating power, turned out to be very effect. shels, which, though of little pen-etrating power, turned out to be very effec-tive against the wooden sides of the battleships and gunboats; in fact, within a very few hours every one of the floating inevitably disastrous communications are the presence of a powerful Spanish save the presence of a powerful Spanish squadron could avail to prevent the city falling at once into our hands.

In view of these facts it is interesting to review the fates of some famous cities, which preferred the horrors of a bombardment to preferred the horrors of a bombardment to an ignominious surrender. The most remarkable instances of recent years were markable instances of recent years were take was given up, and the Spanish troops retired to their likes, severely crippled by the enormous losses they had suffered, winter quarters were taken up, the bombard-ter quarters were taken up, the bombardter quarters were taken up, the bombard-ment practically abandoned and peace wis declared on February 2 following. Thus ended the most memorable siege that can be found in the pages of history, comarkable for many reasons, but most of all for the small lost of life among the defenders, who, during the three years and a half that the investment lested lost in all but 500 men, whilst they inflicted on the enemy a total less of several thousands of lives. Climatur today simply bristles with artillery; the mountain is honeycombed with rass ges and mountain is honeycombed with pass ges and galleries leading to remetely hidden butteries, some the result of nature's workings, but most of them excavated by years of arduous toil in the very howels of the glatatic rock. Looking at the huge guns, many of them of immense weight and large calibre, one is almost forced to the conclusion that they must have "ground the conclusion that they must have "grown there," for to one not learned in the my terious ways and workings of the gunner and engineer it seems absolutely impossible that these monstrously long and bloated looking engines of destruction could, by any but superhuman agency, have been brought through the steep and tortuous passages that from the sole approach to the dark silent casemates where crease the artillery branch of our army might well ponder, for the success of the ships under Admiral Seymour's command showed conclusively that the magnificent engines of modern warfare can be manipulated guns, the advantage is all in favor of a even moderately well by men, however brave stationary fort, from which districes are and willing, who have not undergone the lengthy and arduous course of training that is necessary to turn out a properly qualified to a constantly moving ship, on heard which gunner.

Es-pecially is this the case in any kind of a heavy sea; but once let the guns of a fleet on Havana, is yet worthy of notice as illustrating what measures can be taken to reduce an movilling city to subjection. The capture of Havana, therefore, would not

On June 6, 1762, /a British fleet landed some 12,000 troops on the coast a few miles east of Havana. The work ous bombardments, but they were principally of investment was quickly begun, and not-directed against important forts and in no withstanding the gallant defense made by the garrison and the mortality caused among the British troops by disease and famine, the 29th day of June saw the opening of a flerce and destructive fire on the forts of Morro castle. Seventeen days later the Morro castle. Seventeen days later the Spanish guns had been all but silenced, and a footing was gained by the beelegers within the ditch itself that forms the outer work of the eastle. One month after the opening of the bombardment a breach of sufficient dimensions had been made and a storming party composed of provincial troops, known us the Royal Americant, carried the fortress by surpriso. The city of Havana was subsequently reduced to surrender and became British property. Had its subsequent change for the Floridas not been effected, how differently would have read the story of the of the Antillee!" It may be incidentally mentioned that the fleet of ships of the line were compelled early in the bombardment to retreat ignominously, when the admiral
