MISSIONS IN SIERRA LEONE

Life in the Region Where the Iowa Missionaries Were Murdered.

NATIVES ARE ORDINARILY TRACTABLE

Allen McCullough, Who Preached Among Them Two Years, Tells of Their Ways and Intercourse with Whites.

Those interested in foreign mission work are awaiting with anxiety the details of the recent reported massacre of missionaries in the Sierra Leone province on the west coast of Africa. According to advices from the British governor of that province, received May 7, four and perhaps more teachers located at American missionary posts were murdered by a mob of natives and their houses destroyed. One who is familiar with conditions in the province and the relations which the missionaries bear to the natives is Allen McCullough of 3015 Leavenworth street, who spent two years in missionary work there and who was personally ac quainted with the missionaries reported to have been killed.

In speaking of the probable causes of the outbreak Mr. McCullough said that missionaries were cordially treated by the natives after the former had once made clear that their object was not to interfere with the liberties of the Africans, to usurp their land or to act in any way as the agents of the British government. When the government appounced lately, however, that there would be a tax imposed upon the owners of huts the natives are thought to have included the missionaries in their resentment and to have attacked them because they were Europeans. The Sierra Leone province, Mr. McCullough says, is inhabited by the Timne tribe, composed of about 200,000 people. The population is divided among seven kingdoms. each with a native chief, whose rule is similar to that of the Hebrew patriarchs. The king apportions the land among his subfects, changing the ownership each year and the products are divided by the different families on a communistic basis. The division is made honestly and the natives are considered a gentle and tractable race, except when excited by rum or the suspicion that the British are endeavoring to dispossess them of their land. Probably on this occasion the trouble was brought about by a combination of the two.

Government of the Region. The British governor of Sierra Leone has his headquarters in the coast town of Freetown, a place of varying population. In the rainy season, which extends for a half year, the residents number about 30,000, a large portion being absent in the country to attend to the raising of crops. In the dry season the foreign shipping and the attraction of a market town bring an additional 20,000 in population. About thirty Europeans, also, who are willing to encounter the unhealthy conditions of the rainy season, are increased to 150 when the country produce is being marketed. The governor controls not only the Sierra Leone province about twenty-five miles to the interior, but also the country to a distance of 300 miles from the seacoast. The discipline of the territory is kept up by a regiment of West Indian soldiers, which is stationed at a fort back of the city of Freetown and commanding the harbor. The outlying country is looked after by mounted native police, who first have undergone a course of training under British officers. It is mainly with these native troops that the Timnes are now engaged. The soldiery has been too strong for them, however, and displacing them from their position on the Rokel river, has driven them into the mouns far in the interior. The natives inland as far as the headwaters of the Niger river, have been found to be active fighters. They are superior physically to their kinsmen in the coast towns and are on an average six

SCHUMAN SHUTS OUT O'BRIEN First Game in the Series Before Judge Fawcett Won by the President. "If you are ready to play ball I'll umpire the game," remarked Judge Fawcett as he went upon the bench in his court room vesterday afternoon. The players were ready, but as were but two of them the game was short. It was between M. J. O'Brien, erstwhile manager of the Omaha Base Ball club, and R. E. Schuman, the president of the organization. Two attorneys acted as coaches, Carl E. Herring for O'Brien and E. J. Cornish for Schuman. Schuman went to bat first, having won in the toss up. On his first play he scored a three-base hit, which practically ended the inning and the game until the September term of court, when the other innings will be played. The trouble between O'Brien and Schuman dates back some weeks. At that time O'Brien was the manager of the Omaha team. He was fired and went into the courts, where he asked for a receiver to take charge of the financial end of the Omaha Base Ball team. He also asked that the organization be dissolved. Giving his reasons for asking for all of these things he alleged that he and Schuman entered into a partnership for the purpose of putting a ball team into the field. Schuman was to furnish the finances and he was to do the head work necessary to make the venture pay.

Schuman's attorney opposed the applica tion for a receiver and O'Brien's attorney showed that he was not ready to go to trial, owing to the fact that he had been unable to secure some material testimony. He asked that an injunction restraining Schuman from conducting the affairs of the team be issued, to remain in force until the case could be heard upon its merits. The attorney for Schuman opposed this course and asked that the injunction be lissolved and the case come up in the regular order. An order to this effect was entered and hostilities were declared off so far as the courts are concerned until the

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS.

There is no change in the liquor license situation, the relations between the council and the saloon keepers remaining strained. It was thought that after the talk Kelly made at the meeting Tuesday night the saloon keepers would rush up to the clerk's office yesterday and withdraw their protests against the payment of the occupation tax. Not a protest has been withdrawn, and the dispensors of liquor are standing pat. The fight will be resumed at an adjourned meeting of the council to be held tonight. Should any of the dealers withdraw their protests they will be granted a license provided no other protests are filed. Many of the saloon keepers would like to withdraw the protests bearing their signatures, but the breweries they cannot do this without the consent of the brewers. A prominent brewer said yesterday afternoon that the matter had not been considered yet, but possibly some decision would be reached oday. As for his own opinion, this brewer did not think that any of the brewerles would consent to the withdrawal of their remonstrances. If this is the case, the fight promises to be an interesting one. Councilman Kelly asserts that he will file remonstrances against the saloon keepers for keeping open on Sunday, selling liquor to minors, etc.

The way things stand now, the $56,000 paid in by the saloons is of no use to either the city or the school board, as it cannot be ched as long as there is a remonstrance on file. Mayor Ensor and a number of the councilmen were seen last night, and they all declared that the city will make a fight to a finish, and that if the saloon keepers want a license they will have to pay the fee demanded without a protest.

Disposition of Fines and Costs. A detailed statement showing the amount and disposition of fines and costs imposed by the police judge from July 1, 1896, to undertaking. He suggested that a great deal the close of business April 12, 1898, has been prepared by Expert Beck, and is now on file at the office of the city clerk. The the bottoms, and gave the assurance that fines imposed amounted to $1,389.50 and the costs $495.65, making a total of $1,885.15. met in their introduction. The Church of of the garbage contractor. The matter was has found its way into the city treasury. referred to Health Commissioner Spalding It is shown by this statement that fines ounting to $605.50 and costs amounting to $393.85 have been collected and turned into the treasury. During the period covered by this report the mayor has remitted Spring streets, and Frederick street, from fines and costs amounting to $346.50 and the court has suspended fines and costs in the sum of $123, making $469.50 in fines and costs remitted. In some cases where fines were imposed the prisoner was compelled to lay it out in jail, but these cases foot up to only $64. Fines and costs in appealed cases total $247, while fines imposed where prisoners were later released on habeas corpus amount to $25.

This statement of Prof. Beck is the most omplete and concise ever submitted to the council, and shows exactly where every cent of the money went to.

On an average the police arrest 100 violators of law a month, while the average monthly fines and costs amount to only bout $78 a month. This is considered very low in comparison with the number of arrests, but in so many cases prisoners have no money, the majority arrested being boxcar bums, who are generally ordered out of the city by the police judge.

Work at Highland Park.

The park commissioners have about con pleted all of the work that will be done at resent on Highland park. Several hundred trees have been set out as well as shrubs of various kinds. Good cinder walks have been laid all around and through the park and it is now a very pretty place. The funds at the command of the commission are about exhausted and the plans cannot be com pleted until August, when the next levy will be available. People living in the north ern part of the city are quite proud of their park now and many are donating plants and flowers to be set out in the beds. Commissioner VanDusen stated last evening that the commissioners would be pleased to accept donations of this kind from those who felt inclined to give. With the aid of those residing in the vicinity of the park it is thought that the work of beautifying the park can be completed at very little cost.

Revising License Ordinance. At the suggestion of Inspector Carroll the present milk and huckster ordinances are to be amended and possibly modified. As the milk ordinance now stands a charge of BOSTON STORE'S WET GOODS | $25 a year is made to all persons who sell milk from a wagon regardless of the number of cows kept. This is considered an injustice by some was have only a small number of cows and yet are compelled to distribderstood that the amended ordinance will provide a tax based on the number of cows at perhaps 50 cents per head, so that the vender will pay a license in proportion to the amount of his revenue. This will make easier for the small dealer while the owner of a large number of cows will be compelled to pay a much higher rate than under the present regulations.

It is also the intention to revise the buckster's license ordinance so that all classes of peddlers will be taxed. All push carts from which are sold eatables will be licensed, but the amount to be charged has not agreed upon, although it will most likely e about $5. It is thought that by making these changes the ordinances will be less obnoxious and that the revenue of the city will be considerably increased.

Investigation Again Delayed. The council committee on police did not commence the jail delivery investigation yesterday afternoon as intended for the reason that it was impossible for Member Fanferlik to attend. The other two members of the committee, Messrs. Wear and Cringen, did not feel like going ahead unless a full board was present. It was also stated that some of the witnesses who had been notified to attend were not on hand. At the meeting of the council tonight the committee will get together and set a date for the hearing.

More Firemen Needed. Chief Smith of the fire department creatly disappointed at the action of the ouncil in turning down his request for an additional fireman. The chief says that he really needs two men, but he could get along for the present with one more. The hook and ladder truck is ready to go into service, but there is no one to drive it. There is no money in the fire fund at present and for that reason the members of the council refused to authorize the employment of any more men. It is thought that the matter can be adjusted in some way so as to give the chief the help needed. City's Business.

The amount of business transacted at the city offices here during the last two years may be judged by the following figures taken from the treasurer's books: Net cash balance April 15, 1896, $36,612,30; total receipts to April 12, 1898, $495,559.59; total of all cash received, $532,171.89; disbursements to April 12, 1898, $474,638.08; net eash on hand April 12, 1898, $57,533.81.

35 Cents.

As a matter of fact it's easier to pay too much for an article than it is to buy it at the right price. You don't have to walk so far. You can go into any one of a dozen stores in Omaha and pay half a dollar for the same grade undershirt we sell for 35 cents. Half a dollar is the easy price. Go into any store and ask to see some underwear and the clerk will show you 50 cent goods to begin with and he may keep going higher, but never lower. We don't do that here. We let you name the price you want to pay. Like as not if left to ourselves we commence by showing you the 25 cent grade because good underwear for 25 cents is a novelty in Omaha, and it opens people's eyes. If you ask for something better we show you our 35 cent goods. The only difference between it and anybody else's half a dollar goods is the 15 cents you save by coming to The Nebraska. That's no joke. If anybody in Omaha is selling a better shirt or drawers for 50 cents than our 35 cent ones, they're keeping mighty still about it and they don't show it to everybody for we've been around to see. We have six different lines of this great underwear at 35 cents and we want you to come round and examine it. The underwear season is here.

Force of habit makes us speak of wearing apparel.

Of course you like to hear of war. Don't blame you. So do we. Give us a whit of conquering news in proference to all the bargains in the land. The spirit of patriotism makes one ignore even such a glorious offer as a $11.00 suit for $4.08. Let us therefore discuss Dewey-

Shirts and Manila. In order to invade Manila Dewey must have troops. Uncle Samuel will furnish the lads-the Guarantee can furnish the shirts, which will be completely wrapped up with manilla. Enough of these shirts to supply nearly the whole volunteer army of the Transmississippi states. Dress, negligee, white-collars attached or detached-attached or separable cuffs - fancy bosom - white body or fancy all through-open front or open back-magnificent coloring-striped - plaided - checkedbarred-dotted-and-Briefly stated. The latest creations.
