a like event, because it was thought impossible. Counting those which project from the buildings there will be 8,156 incandescents, with a combined power of 163,120 candles. They will throw a yellow-like or golden light, casting no shadow, and will make the court as light as day. The electrie light decorations on the lagoon have been so arranged as to form a circle. No two of the buildings have been decorated alike. Seven lines of light will extend in circle fashion from the pillars of the Government building to the dome of the same. Nine batteries will form as many different lights for the electrical fountain in the west end of the lagoon and almost any contrast known can be formed by it.

Clearing the Bluff Tract.

Small plants and rose bushes are being set out at different positions about the main court and on the Bluff tract, which will soon give the appearance of a veritable flower garden. The work on the Horticulture building has reached that degree where the trash has been removed and the setting out of bluegrass sod commenced, which is to abut the foundation of the building. The California exhibit will occupy almost onethird of the building to the east. Already Frank Higgins, who has charge of the exhibit, has taken charge and will lose no

Concessionaires Go Into Court to Get an advertisement of Omaha and the Great an Answer 1 o This. Two concessionaires of the Transmissistippi 'Exposition, assisted by their attorneys, occupied the time and attention of Judge Fawcett all of yesterday afternoon and they will do the same thing again to fay. It is over the question of which has the right to exhibit movable pictures at the exposition. Each man contends that he has the exclusive right and Judge Fawcett is called upon to decide if such is the case and if not, which has the contract. 12. M. Bayliss brought suit against the Transmississippi and International Exposition st...ociation, enjoining it from awarding a contract to Henry Roltair to exhibit moveable pictures by aid of a projecting machine. Roltair intervened and then the issues were joined. Bayliss says that originally he had a contract to exhibit an illusion to be known as "Night and Morning." the thing to be in the form of a four-story pyramid in which there were to be numerous scenes, including a cafe where winged females, intended to represent angels, would serve food and drinks. In addition to this there was to be an apartment where his satanic highness would torture his subjects and make things lively for the wicked caught within his domains. This scheme fell through and then his contract was modified so that, according to his version, it would include the exhibition of movable pic tures, one of which he says is to be a representation of the harbor of Havana, the city, the surrounding country and the destruction of the Maine. It is right at this point where the tw onaires clash. Roltair contends that he has the exclusive contract for the production and projection of pictures showing the situation in Cuba and the destruction of the Maine in the harbor of Havana.
