

BIBLE IS LIKE A RAINBOW

Full of Different Shades of Truth All in Perfect Harmony.

IT IS A VERITABLE GOSPEL OF HOPE

Dr. C. O. Little of Washington, D. C., Preaches at Westminster Church on Saul's Mission to a Race in Darkness.

The pulpit of Westminster Presbyterian church was filled yesterday forenoon and evening by Rev. G. O. Little, D. D., pastor of the Assembly Presbyterian church of Washington, D. C., who is spending a short vacation in the west on a visit to his son, Rev. Joseph D. Little, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist church, and who stopped over here long enough to take in the exposition. Dr. Little's text was taken from Acts 26, 18. Some of the good things he said were:

"There is one thing about the bible—it is like a rainbow, so full of different shades of truth and all in perfect harmony. Of the many passages to our purpose this morning this one in particular shows the bible to be a gospel of hope. It is important, because our Savior had come down from heaven again, and he delivered a message to Saul of Tarsus in which he conveyed the whole program of Christianity. Saul, the chosen messenger of a chosen message, was to do several things for the world. One was to open the eyes of a race living in darkness. The object of the exposition is to open men's eyes. Our present war is opening the eyes of other nations. We use a figurative expression. Saul was sent to all men, both Jew and Gentile, to open their eyes to their true condition. I once heard Phillips Brooks say the gospel was the light of God's help shining over a world of men's need." Paul's eyes were opened. He had been a persecutor, and now the man whose eyes were opened was to be an eye-opener to the whole world.

Darkness is that which hinders.

"Darkness is a symbol in the Scriptures of everything that hinders. You cannot see of anything that hinders. The whole world sits in darkness, in the shadow of death, and does not know the way of escape and, worse yet, we learn to love the darkness rather than light. But that would turn from darkness into light. He was also to turn men from the power of Satan to the power of God. Satan, as demonstrated by the book of Job, is an adversary—a restraining power, a holding back power. I don't think it is any kindness to show a person his danger when there is no help for him, it certainly is not a blessing for anyone to have his eyes opened when the danger cannot be avoided. But the gospel of Jesus Christ offers not only remission of sins, it offers the means of eternal life as well as this as a free gift. A man's past may be lost and the gospel, grace, cannot bring it back, but he gets something better; he gets a new life altogether. The man who has always done right does not need grace, forgiveness and life, he will live by the deeds of the law. It is the man who has sinned and come short of the glory of God who needs forgiveness and the gospel gives it to him, gives him new life absolutely, makes him a new creature in Christ Jesus."

CHILDREN MAKE UP THE PROGRAM.

Flowers and Music at Hanson Park Methodist Church.

The services at Hanson Park Methodist church yesterday morning were devoted entirely to the children. About 100 of the little folks were grouped upon the pulpit, which was flanked by palm and other potted plants. Festoons of catalpa blossoms reached from the ceiling to the organ. Most of the program was furnished by the Sunday school classes, the church singing five selections of a nature that appeals to young folks.

The program was under the direction of Melvin E. Uhl, superintendent of the Sunday school, and consisted of recitations, songs, and responsive readings. Children of all ages took part in the exercises. Dr. Sisson, pastor of the church, gave a short talk prepared especially for the children. He spoke particularly of the future of the little folks, and encouraged them in their ambition to attain prominence in the world. Dr. Sisson referred to the ambitious motives that prompt all children to select some noble station in life which they shall occupy when they grow up, and said that it would be well if older people were to retain more of this childish ambition.

At St. Mary's Congregational. The services at St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church yesterday morning were conducted mainly by the children, and for the children of the Sunday school. It was children's day and the little ones not only formed a most important part of the congregation, but also were the principal actors in the service. In honor of the pastor the church was prettily decorated with flowers, which were especially abundant about the pulpit.

THE DUTY OF MOTHERS. Daughters Should be Carefully Guided in Early Womanhood.

What suffering frequently results from a mother's ignorance or more frequently from a mother's neglect to properly instruct her daughters. Tradition says "woman must suffer," and young women are so taught. There is a little truth and a great deal of exaggeration in this. If a young woman suffers severely she needs treatment and her mother should see that she gets it. Many mothers hesitate to take their daughters to a physician for examination; but no mother need hesitate to write freely about her daughter or herself to Mrs. Pinkham and secure the most efficient advice without charge. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

The following letter from Miss MARY F. JOHNSON, Centralia, Pa., shows what neglect will do, and tells how Mrs. Pinkham helped her:

"My health became so poor that I had to leave school. I was tired all the time, and had dreadful pains in my side and back. I was also troubled with irregularity of menses. I was very weak, and lost so much flesh that my friends became alarmed. My mother, who is a firm believer in your remedies from experience, thought perhaps they might benefit me and wrote you for advice. I followed the advice you gave, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills as you directed, and am now as well as I ever was. I have gained flesh and have a good color. I am completely cured of irregularity."

CONVENTIONS OF THE WEEK

Many Big Gatherings Are Scheduled to Meet in Omaha.

FIVE OF THEM ARE NATIONAL BODIES

Delegates Are Arriving and Making Arrangements for a Lively Time During the Days They Are to Be Here.

Almost a dozen big gatherings will assemble in Omaha this week, mostly national in their scope and many of them will be attended by an unusually large number of delegates. Not a day will pass without a convention of some kind. The week will continue two or three days, like the Nebraska State Medical society, at which, by the way, an attendance of fully 500 is expected. There are to be about 500 delegates present also at the interstate grainmen's convention and it will likewise last three days.

The national conventions include those of the Reform Press association, the Danish Lutheran church, the Railway Postal Clerks and the Railway Special Agents. Both the state and national committees of the people's party are meeting here, too. Among the state organizations the largest will doubtless be the annual convention of the grand lodge of Free Masons of Nebraska. This will occur on Wednesday and 500 or more delegates are looked for. The date for the semi-annual meeting of the Nebraska veterans association is Tuesday. Probably 300 of them will be on hand.

A list of the conventions for the week is as follows: Monday, June 13.—National Reform Press association at Creighton hall, about 150 members. Secretary J. A. Parker of Louisville, Ky. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 13 to 15.—Danish Lutheran church of America. About 200 members. Secretary, Rev. P. Graevgaard of Brayton, Ia. Tuesday, June 14.—Nebraska Veterinary Association, semi-annual meeting. About 300 members expected. Secretary W. R. Bowen of Omaha. Tuesday and Wednesday, June 14 and 15.—Seventh annual convention of the National Association of Railway Postal Clerks. C. A. Wood of West Bedford, Mass. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 14 to 16.—Nebraska State Medical society. Probably 500 members in attendance. President, Dr. W. O. Bridges of Omaha. Tuesday and Wednesday, June 14 and 15.—Railway Special Agents' convention. Secretary, J. J. Kinney of Topeka, Kan. Wednesday, June 15.—Grand Lodge of Free Masons of Nebraska. About 500 members to attend the annual communication. Grand Secretary, W. R. Bowen of Omaha. Wednesday and Thursday, June 15 and 16.—National Committee of the people's party. Secretary, C. Vincent of Omaha. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 15 to 17.—Interstate Grain Men's convention. Possibly 500 delegates. Secretary, W. H. Chambers of Omaha. Thursday, June 16.—Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania press associations visit the exposition.

Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19.—Eastern delegates to the biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's clubs at Denver, Colo., stop over at Omaha to visit the exposition. Program at the Auditorium Saturday afternoon.

Postal Clerks. One of the important national organizations which selected Omaha as their place of meeting this year was the National Association of Railway Postal Clerks. The seventh annual convention will commence tomorrow in the court room of the old government building at Sixteenth and Douglas streets and will continue over Wednesday. Altogether there will be a representation of about forty-four entitled to seats in the convention, including members of the executive committee and the national officers, but a great many other clerks are expected to be here besides.

The N. A. R. P. C. consists of eleven divisions. That in which Omaha is situated is the Sixth. It has four delegates besides its executive committee. The national officers are: C. L. Schaffer, of Chicago, president; H. W. Bridges of St. Louis, vice president; G. A. Wood of West Bedford, Mass., secretary and treasurer; and C. A. Tracy, Minnesota national organizer.

The great question which has been agitating the railway postal clerks for some years is that of a reclassification. There are now five classes paid according to grade, at the following salaries: $800, $900, $1,000, $1,150, and $1,300 to $1,400 for the highest class. The object of the adjusting committee is to have the number of classes reduced from five to nine, upon a more acceptable scale of salaries, beginning at a considerably lower sum than the present lowest salary now paid and raising the salary of the highest class to a figure supposed to be more just to an old service man. The question of pensioning old and retired clerks has also been freely discussed. Efforts to get through congress legislation favorable to these propositions have been frequently made.

The local association, through its officers and a committee, has arranged a program of entertainment for the visitors while here, and Warren C. Van Dervoort, assistant superintendent of the railway mail service, Chief Clerk Horace F. Hurler, Assistant Chief Clerk William J. Metten and Secretary S. H. Hall will leave nothing undone to make the visit of the delegates to Omaha most pleasant one. Of course the program will include a few hours at the exposition. There is to be a reception on Tuesday evening at the Hotel Deltone, and on Wednesday night a banquet at the same place. If the present calculations are carried out, a few of the delegates have already arrived, among those who have paid the postage a call being P. A. Blake of San Francisco, California division will have a candidate for president this year.

Reform Press Association. The eighth annual meeting of the National Reform Press association will be held in this city today, beginning at 10 o'clock. It will continue its sessions for two days and among the prominent populists of the county who are expected to be in attendance are: Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota and Wharton Barker of Baltimore. Br. Barker is an out-and-out "middle-of-the-roader," as the anti-fusionists are called. Creighton hall is to be the place of meeting.

A great many of the editors who are members of the association arrived yesterday. Among them were Frank Burkitt of Oklahoma, Miss., the president; E. S. Peters of Calvert, Tex., president of the Southern Cotton Growers' association; Milton Park, publisher of the Southern Mercury at Dallas, Tex. The vice president of the association, F. W. D. Mays of Washington, D. C., and the secretary, J. A. Parker of Louisville, Ky., came Saturday. All put up at the Barker.

COWBOY RANDALL'S VISIT

Young Man from the Wyoming Range Has a Hot Time Coming and Going.

Cowboy Edward Randall, an exposition visitor from Sundance, Wyo., who arrived in Omaha Saturday morning, met with a series of accidents that will ever cause his trip to be a memorable one to him. His first mishap occurred as he boarded a stage coach in his home town. In getting into the vehicle he broke his nose, but he refused to delay his trip on that account and, after having the injury attended to, he again started for the exposition. On the way he fell in with two gamblers and between them he was robbed of $150. That night, while under the influence of liquor, he fell from an upper berth in the sleeping car and badly bruised his back. On his arrival at the Union depot at Omaha he entrusted his satchel to a small boy to carry and he has not since seen the boy. A man who pretended to be a hotelman, took him to a street and took him to what he called a hotel, but which was in reality a panel house, and as a consequence, Randall was relieved of almost all his money.

Later Randall was found by the police engaged in a drunken fight with several negroes, and was taken to the station in a patrol wagon. He is now occupying a cell with the prospects of getting a sentence of thirty days.

UNDER POLICE PROTECTION

Violations of Law and Decency Proceed Without Interruption.

GAMBLERS AND GRAFTERS FLOURISH

Two Places on Sixteenth Street Where Visitors Are Robbed Run Wide Open and Say They Are Solid.

Two police protected gambling games are flourishing on Sixteenth street, their daily winnings netting their owners a considerable sum. The rattle of the silver coin handled by the dealers and the seductive voices of the "barkeepers" who advertise the games attract a crowd all day long before the balz-covered tables marked in numbers of several colors and in mystical formation. A score of "cappers" who win at regular intervals keep the games going briskly and the suckers lose their money with the same regularity. In these games a player has one chance in one hundred of winning on the square.

The games are known as the "pin puzzle" and are for quickness and dispatch they possess in parting a man from his money few equals; in fact a player stands no chance at all of winning, especially if the dealer be an adept in his work. The game is played with a number of small pins resembling tent pins. Each pin is numbered and represents the multiple of a series of numbers painted on a glazed cloth which covers the layout table. These numbers alternate red and black. The red wins for the player and the black for the dealer. To play the game the player sets up a small stick. If the numbers that show upward on the recumbent pins multiplied by a certain number played result in a certain total corresponding with the same numbers in red on the glazed cloth the player wins. As the percentage against the player is very large, and the dealer has a happy faculty of counting with lightning like rapidity, turning over the blocks as he counts, it can be readily seen how much chance a player has of winning.

Run Them Wide Open.

No attempts are made by the gamblers to veil their operations or their game. The most notoriously open game is at 314 North Sixteenth street, in the front of a blacksmith shop. The other game is in a temporary structure on the block below, near Cass street. On the layout tables at both games are kept piles of silver dollars and coins of smaller denominations, flanked by miniature boxes of cigars about the size of a match safe, as a blind. Pollemen daily pass the places, but never bother their heads about the games, although knowing full well their character. This was shown in a riot incident which occurred during the visit of a reporter for The Bee at 314 Saturday evening.

A man, evidently a laborer with his week's pay in his pocket, was about to enter the place when he was accosted by a small, red-haired policeman, who was passing and who evidently knew him, with the admonition not to enter the place as he would be robbed. The man took the advice. A few moments later the place was suddenly closed tight, the only signs of life being the swarm of cappers on the curb in front of it. The explanation for the closure was found in the presence of Detectives Ormsby and Fay, who approached within a hundred yards of the place and engaged in conversation. The actions of the officers plainly showed that they had been sent there to act as dampener to the gamblers, who were slightly exceeding the limits of the latitude allowed them. After waiting for about ten minutes the officers withdrew and the games were renewed.

One of the cappers, who mistook The Bee reporter for a gambler because of his cautious questioning, imparted the information that the games were protected by the police and that their owners had a very strong pull. This man said the games were good to run all summer providing their operators did not become "too raw in their work." By this he meant unless the robbery of the victim became too flagrant.

Better Than a Klondike.

"Why," said he, "the man formerly a railroad man—who operates the game at Cass and Sixteenth streets is making all kinds of money. He paid $900 to the man who originally had the lease of the ground upon which his gambling house stands for the right to his release to him." "There are not many gamblers in Omaha now," the fellow continued, "simply because the exposition has not got to going good yet. We have been assured that later we will be given a great deal of latitude. If you want to find out what good gratters, big mitt men and gamblers are in town, drop around to either the Club or Owl saloons. They make these places their headquarters. Information can also be gotten there as to who the 'fixers' with the police department are. If a guy has the coin to fix the police right, he can run any kind of a gambling game outside of Faro, roulette and such games. The police are afraid to stand for those kind of games."

The capper then volunteered the information that the men who formerly operated the Tivoli had a cinch for awhile on the police. "Why," said he, "they were getting off from $300 to $400 a day, until their game got so raw that the police, for self-protection, had to stop them. In addition to being a resort for gamblers, is a favorite promenade for grafters and confidence men. Any one versed in criminology could pass down the street from Capitol avenue to Cass street and haphazardly pick out a dozen criminals. Arnold's Broome Cures cures headaches, 10c, 25c, 50c. LOCAL BREVITIES.

Services were held at the city jail yesterday afternoon by the young people of the Hanson Park Methodist and the Westminster Presbyterian churches. Tuesday morning the examination of Charles Parks for the accident shooting of Charles Koster takes place before Judge Gordon.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN.

L. H. Jansen, a mining engineer of Tacoma, Wash., who is in Omaha on business, says that the Klondike excitement is not as intense as it was, but that thousands of men are still heading that way and are going in a more deliberate manner. The Alaska gold fields, and the enormous quantities of gold have come from the Dawson City country. The southeastern portion of Alaska is rich in quartz mining and Mr. Jansen expresses the belief that the greatest developments will be made there, because the opinion is being that it is further north and the fields are more accessible, being near the coast. Mining interests are more active in Washington than they have been for some time and mining is coming to be a matter of practical business instead of the wildcat industry which it has heretofore been. Secretary, Mr. Jansen says that since capitalists have come to consider that mining can be as legitimate a business as any other many paying properties have been developed in the state.

"Idaho is a rich state in minerals, but as yet little capital has been invested in mining industries and the resources are practically undeveloped," said John Garretson of Salmon, Idaho, who stopped in Omaha to view the exposition while on his way to Chicago. "Colorado seems to be about to induce any amount of eastern capital to invest in mining stocks, but Idaho men do not seem to be able to put their properties before the public and convince capitalists of their true worth. Gold is abundant in central Idaho, many valuable fields have been worked over by a half-hearted way that is entirely unknown in Colorado mines. Idaho seems to have an entirely different class of miners from those in Colorado and as soon as some really energetic and capable men get hold of Idaho properties there is no question but that the state will prove one of the leading gold-producing states of the union. One reason for the undeveloped condition of Idaho minerals is the poor railroad facilities. Unfortunately some of the richest country is a long distance from any railroad and until companies with the means of money are at their disposal take hold of these distant fields there is no hope for development, because in getting the rich ore much poor ore must be handled and if the facilities were such that the poor ore could be taken to market, the rich ore would be investment would attract money men to the fields."

Friends by the thousands.

Today, for the most part, we will be busy getting ready for the thousands whom we expect to visit Nebraska week. It is a significant fact in connection with this busy, bustling store of ours that our friends are confined to no one section, to no one class, to no one corner of the community. Our city friends are rivaled by our country friends. Our town trade is not more loyal than our out-of-town trade. From city, town, village or crossroads hamlet, from rand and farm, from mine and mountain—from the Missouri river clear west to the Pacific—the Nebraska is known as a good store, a safe store, a store that invariably gives the most for the money. We are proud of the fact that wherever The Nebraska is known it stands as a synonym for good goods and unequalled values. Tomorrow we expect to greet thousands of people who have never seen us, but who have done business with us through the mails for years—and always satisfactorily.
