The regiment was inspected by battalions yesterday, the inspection taking place in the Lord, Nevada; John C. Kraus, Ohio; Henry streets of the camp. The new guns of the regiment were used in the inspection. The trial by court-martial of Private John G. Maher, company L, for insubordina tion, has been delayed, owing to the illnes. of Captain Dapray, adjutant general of the division.

Teamster P. H. Long of Lincoln is expected in camp. He was a teamster with the old Fifth cavalry.

The camp of the Second Nebraska is a model of neatness, and is generally complimented by visitors. The general intelligence of the members of the Second Nebraska is often remarked upon. It is said that there are more reading men in this regiment than any other organization at the camp. Colonel Melvin Grigsby's cowboys have shown themselves to be gentlemanly and chivalrous. An incident illustrates this. There are several Salvation Army women who work among the soldiers. As these women were walking through the park they were accosted by a party of infantrymen who rudely and outrageously insulted them. The occurrence took place near Colonel Grigsby's camp, and his cowboys soon heard T. Maloney, John J. Tierney. of it. They were indignant, and a crowd of the rough riders went to where the soldiers were congregated and without any ado proceeded to thrash the insolent infantrymen. They then escorted the women to the train to see that no further insult was offered them. This action of the cow
