ANOTHER QUIET SUNDAY AT THE FAIR

Very Many People Pass the Gates and Spend a Pleasant Hollday Among the Manifold Beauties of the Great Show.

Yesterday the aspect of the exposition grounds was a quiet and peaceful prelude to the pomp and pageantry that will mark the celebration of the nation's holiday today. Even the echo of the firecrackers that popped and sputtered in noisy anticipation of the morrow in every part of the city could not be heard and the screnity of the Sabbath was unbroken. It was naturally an exceedingly uneventful day, for aside from the measured movement of the slowly moving crowds there was no sign of bustle or me to say that you have the gratitude activity. There was nothing more offensive and thanks of the nation for the brilliant to the Sabbatarian than good music, bright sunshine and the always interesting panorama of noble architecture and pretty land-

But for those who wished to spend quiet afternoon and evening in the midst of the most beautiful surroundings the day fulfilled all expectations. There was the unusual combination of a July sun that shone uninterruptedly from a cloudless sky It was received at noon today, after and an atmosphere that was cool enough for the most perfect comfort even in the afternoon. It was undoubtedly the most perfect At first, when it became known that the day for unalloyed enjoyment that has yet American commander had reported the deseemed in delightful harmony with the Sabbath quiet of the day.

Aside from the fact that the bulk of the people were waiting for the big day, there was every reason why the attendance should have broken the Sunday record. As it was there was fully the usual crowd on the grounds in addition to several thousand people who were the advance guard of the big Fourth of July excursions from other cities. The Kansas City excursionists were on the grounds in large numbers and were everywhere recognizable by the yellow badges, which bore the rather suggestive request: "Put Me Off at Omaha." There were numerous family parties among them and they all seemed to enjoy the novel attractions around them to the full limit They tramped over the grounds all the afternoon and in the evening they admired the magnificent illuminations and cultivated an intimate acquaintance with the unique amusements of the Midway. Most of them stayed until the gates were closed and then went home to rest and be on hand for the big celebration today.

Celebration Arrangements.

All the arrangements for today were com pleted Saturday and consequently there was no turmoil of preparation to disturb the Sabbath quiet. Every detail had been fully completed and nothing is lacking but the crowd to make the Fourth an unprecedented success. That the crowd will be there early in the day seems to be fully assured. The reliroads have assured the mapagement that they will have all the people they can haul, their estimate including seventy-two cars from Kansas City and St. Joe alone. The crush has been anticipated by calling the full force of ticket sellers and gate keepers on duty this morning and it is estimated that from 100,000 to 150,000 people can be handled without delay or inconvenience. As the principal celebration occurs in the foreroon an exceptionally heavy morning at tendance is anticipated and with the additional gates and turnstiles that have been put in since the last big crowd the people can be admitted to the grounds as rapidly as the motor trains can bring them to the gates. The celebration will begin shortly before 10 o'clock with a novel display of Japanese fireworks on the lagoon and promptly at 10 o'clock the big Midway parade will move.
