

WORTH DESERVES HIS STAR

Though Seriously Wounded, He Leads the Charge at San Juan.

TAKES COMMAND FROM DYING WIKOFF

Orderly Tells of the Charge Up the Hill Under a Heavily Firing—Worth Wounded in Three Places.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Brigadier General, formerly Lieutenant Colonel, William F. Worth, of the Thirtieth infantry, who was wounded in the charge of the Americans up the hill at San Juan, has arrived at his home at Governor's Island. Before the outbreak of the war General Worth was stationed at the headquarters of the Department of the East, at Governor's Island. He was one of the most popular officers on the island, and there was not a single person, from the prisoners confined there up, who did not accord to him a hearty welcome yesterday. Before he left his post for the front he was a splendid specimen of physical health and vigor, and his appearance yesterday, weakened by loss of blood and severe wounds, was deplored by all his friends and acquaintances. It was only by a miracle that he was not killed outright. A bullet, which must have been a partially spent one, hit him in the left breast in a slanting direction, tearing an ugly wound through the flesh and glancing off onto his right arm, where it caused a simple fracture above the elbow. Another bullet hit him in the breast. The wound in the breast, although being very painful, and up to the present time not healed, are not considered dangerous by the surgeons. The general's right arm is perfectly helpless, and is likely to remain so for some time. General Worth's wound was treated after an eight-mile ride, which was extremely painful to him. He was carried from Santiago by the City of Washington to Old Point Comfort, where he took the train for New York. He was accompanied on his journey by his orderly, John Keller of Company B, Thirtieth infantry. Keller was also wounded in the charge of San Juan. Orderly Keller said that General Worth took a leading part in the storming of the hill at San Juan. General Worth fell from the general, then lieutenant colonel, and then next in command, and after stopping for a minute to receive the dying words of Colonel Wikoff, he ran on and led the charge. When General Worth was wounded he did not fall or stop, but kept right on. His sword, which was waving to encourage the men, dropped from his helpless right hand. He just stopped to pick it up and waved it in his left hand. In a little while, however, the loss of blood compelled General Worth to retire, and he was carried to the rear. He did not lose consciousness at all, but the journey of eight miles to the coast caused him to suffer terribly.

"Have you ever tried to dodge the halloons in a storm?" asked Keller. "If so, you will know just how General Worth was like. And it is a mistake to suppose that the Spaniards cannot shoot. However, the Spanish fire did not stop us and I guess we reached the top of the hill. I at least we showed them what rapid firing really was. We fired and advanced in waves, but they advanced again, as regularly as clockwork. Had the Spaniards had any heart at all we could not have taken the place. They fired from behind trenches two and a half feet thick. They used explosive bullets, too, besides the ordinary kind of bullets. I saw one man with his face shot clean away. General Worth's wounds were caused by brass bullets. I think that the Thirtieth bore the brunt of the battle. After the battle the Spanish prisoners said they had never known anything like the American fire."

Keller had some interesting things to say with reference to the charge in general. He declared the commanding officer desired the Cubans to go on in front to do the work of cutting the barbed wire fences, but they were afraid and refused, and the Americans were obliged to do it themselves. There were eight fences altogether to be cut down before the men reached the top of the hill and they were artfully placed at points where they would be most effective. They were not made of ordinary barbed wire, but were elaborately put together. In some places they were twisted together like ropes, which were so thick that one could not put a finger between. The tools the Americans had were not made for an enemy more than ordinary wire and a great deal of time was spent in the cutting. All the time the Spaniards were raining down their Mauser bullets on the Americans.

BRING GOLD FROM KLONDIKE Party of Miners Arrives with Wealth Valued at Three Quarters of a Million.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 15.—The steamer Cottage City, which touched here last night on its way to Seattle from Alaska, had on board twenty miners from Dawson City with about $750,000 in gold dust and drafts, mostly the latter. They came up the Yukon river in a steamer to White Horse Rapids, where they transferred to a Lake Bennett steamer. They say banking accommodations in Dawson are now so good that there is no necessity of men bringing out money in any other form than drafts. The most of the gold will come out by way of St. Michaels. Those believed to have the most money on the Cottage City are the four Butler brothers of Ellsworth, Minn. The eldest went in three years ago, the other three last year. They have cleared up a large amount on Bonanza creek, 21-A, 68-B, and 23-A. They sold claims to an English syndicate represented by McFarland and H. M. Coleman, the latter of whom came down tonight. The price obtained cannot be learned, but Coleman is authority for the statement that it was a very large one. All the men on board were very reticent, saying the imposition of the royalties caused them to refuse to state the full amount of money brought out. Several of them have been working only on lars.

The only boats that have yet reached Dawson from down the river are the Hamilton, Weare, Bella, May West and the Victoria.

Among the Cottage City's passengers are Phil Dobson, of Los Angeles, Henry Cheney of Rochester, N. Y., Miller and Vines of New York state. All have money variously estimated from $10,000 to $50,000 each. Good strikes have been made on a new branch of Eldorado, Bonanza, French creek and Skookum gulch. They are reported enormously productive at high level. Quartz claims prospecting so far yield little or nothing.

H. M. Coleman, who is a well known mining engineer, went in early this spring and purchased a number of claims for the English syndicate which he represents. He estimated that the yield this year will be at least $10,000,000. With the exception of a few cases of scurvy, the health of Dawson is reported very good.

All the new arrivals say that another party, which came out with them, are coming down on the steamer City of Seattle, which is due tonight. They are reported to have about as large an amount of gold and drafts as those on the Cottage City. It is estimated that the Canadian government will collect royalty on about $10,000,000 worth of gold this season.

Editor Shipley of the Skagway News, who came down on the Cottage City, says that this year's cleanup at Dawson will be a trifle less than $20,000,000, three-quarters of this being in the custody of two big trading companies, who will send it down by way of St. Michael. The May West had $750,000 and more, and the other boats which left June 28 and July 4 carry the balance of the output.

The Dawson newspapers do not approximate the down river shipments so highly, the Midnight Sun stating that the Weare, Belle and Charles H. Hamilton do not carry more than $1,000,000.

There is no longer any fear of a famine in Dawson. All the men who arrived on the Cottage City are enthusiastic over the outlook in the Klondike country. Wages keep up to $19 to $15 a day, but there will be very little work at mining until the frost sets in. There are said to be about 40,000 people around Dawson alone at present, and the river all the way up is crowded with newcomers.
