

OMAHA AND CHICAGO WIN

Result of the First Day's Matches of the Cricket Tournament.

MINNESOTA AND DENVER THE VICTIMS

England's National Game Finds Excellent Interpretation by the Four Elevens that Competed in the Matches Yesterday.

There were two features in the first day's play in the tournament of the Northwestern Cricket association yesterday—the close match between the Omaha and Minnesota teams, which the former won by a narrow margin, and the easy manner in which the Chicago team plucked the team from the Rocky mountains.

Omaha's game was won in a first innings by the close score of 73 to 70, a victory by only three runs. It was only by the best of bowling and the cleanest sort of fielding that the visitors from the north were prevented from catching up with the locals.

The opening of the tournament was very auspicious. The weather was overcast, but for the players but the exhausted supply of refreshments that the Omaha Cricket club had on hand was sufficient to keep the cricketers at all times of mind as was possible. Play commenced promptly at 11 o'clock, as it will during the remainder of the tournament, and closed as promptly at 6:30. A plentiful supply of provisions was also on hand and an excellent luncheon was served to the players shortly after midday.

Chicago had a clean walkaway over the Denver team. The Windy City aggregation completely outplayed and outthrew the mountain chaps. The Chicagoans coppered the match in the very first innings, which they won by a score of 131 to 23. Denver followed and could get only twenty-five runs. This gave the match to the Chicago aggregation by an innings and 73.

Omaha went into the tournament with the intention of winning its first game since it has joined the association. For three years it has struggled along with a membership and in that time it has been unable to connect with any honors. As has been intimated, it did win out, but only after the Minnesota aggregation had given it a decidedly serious case of mental emotion. The lead of three runs is not much to boast about. It was not because of superior batting that the local eleven gained the victory. As a matter of fact the Minnesotaans batted over more runs than Omaha. But in the matter of bowling the Omaha bowlers hereabouts surpassed the visitors and it was on the strength of this that they secured the victory. Minnesota got but three extras, while the local eleven got no less than nine runs on the erratic actions of the visiting bowlers. Both Douglas and Bate did excellent bowling.

Three men only on the Omaha team managed to connect with the bowl in any considerable extent. Tuffield and Taylor made very creditable scores of 18 each, and Bate also did creditable bowling. The remainder of the eleven was rather weak. On the other hand the Minnesota team was more evenly balanced. While the individual scores made were not as high as Omaha's, yet the general average was better.

Toward the end of the first innings the Omaha players were made a bit nervous. After disposing of the heavier batters at the top of the list the seemingly weaker ones at the bottom showed a decided disposition not to be downed. They kept on reeling off runs until the score got uncomfortably close. Finally Bate succeeded in bowling Rumble out after he had eight runs to his credit, and Clark with four not out. It was a pretty ball that knocked the stump out of the ground and gave the Omaha contingent a chance to yell.

In the second innings Omaha played for time and incidentally piled up a nice batch of runs. Bate carried off the honors with seven runs, while the rest did better than they were expected. It was just 6:30 o'clock when the final man was put out and the Minnesota team, realizing the impossibility of overcoming this lead in ten minutes, did not ask for their innings. The score was:
