Speculative Markets Open Lively for Beginning of the Week.

Advances on Dry Weather Reports

Corn Firms Up Three-Fourths of a Cent Higher, Wheat Closes Lower and Oats and Provisions Advance.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Corn advanced on dry weather reports today and upheld the other speculative markets like a life-buoy. Corn closed 5-8/16 higher. Wheat left off 1/16 lower. Oats rose 1/16. Pork and lard advanced 5/16 each and ribs 2/16. A slight sprinkling of rain that was falling here as the session commenced soon cleared away. The market was soon freed, however, from the influence of the continued dry weather was the reason for additional strength, and when the signal service predicted another thirty-six hours prolongation without rain, the trade was not slow to realize the situation. An active demand from nearly all the prominent bulk started prices up with a rush. The country had a few selling orders in the pit at the opening, but the offerings were quickly absorbed. When big shorts attempted to come in, it was a case of bid and get nothing. A full cent better than the opening. At this point long property came out freely and the active selling against calls. The increase in offerings caused some recession, but there were plenty of buyers to take up the slack. From September to 25-cents. The readiness with which the market took up the advance here Saturday was considered significant. September opened 1-3/16 lower at 34-3/8. The market advanced to 35-1/8 at 31-3/8, then firming up to 35-3/8 at the close.

Lower quotations from Liverpool and favorable weather for the spring crop went ahead with the opening. Corn started at 67 1/2, fell to 67-3/4 and touched 67 1/2 when the advance in corn exports at 67 1/2 was reported. The corn market commenced to give indications of having reached the culmination of its advance. The active selling against calls was continued with greater freedom than had been done before. The market was in a state of confusion with indications of enormous receipts everywhere. The market was in a state of confusion with indications of enormous receipts everywhere. STOCKS AND BONDS

Feature of the Day is the Heavy Movement in Sugar.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The heavy movement of considerable importance in special stocks today, but the effect on the general list was only slight. The early heaviness in the railroads was to some extent corrected as the level of prices generally brought back above Saturday's close. Outside of the special cases referred to, however, the movement was insignificant.

The market was conspicuous for the trading in sugar, in which there was heavy buying and in which the prices advanced. A vigorous manipulation. There was no news forthcoming as to the reason for the rise so far as the prospects of the company are concerned. The outlook continuing so far as known the same as when the recent large short interest was formed.
