WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—With peace proclaimed, all of the energies of the military and naval establishments today were directed to the Pacific channel. The sudden change from war to peace was manifest at the War and Navy departments. There was no further expectancy of dramatic developments, of battles or of new campaigns. The orders given last night for the immediate cessation of hostilities brought at once a halt and naval movements to a halt, and it now remained only to bring affairs back to a peace basis. In this, however, the authorities were acting on the theory that the protocol of yesterday was but the first step toward a permanent peace.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The War department is seriously considering the settlement of the questions growing out of the Spanish war. The disposition of the large number of prisoners of war, and what troops to muster out of service is one of the questions that is giving the department considerable concern. The president has discussed this matter with Secretary Adams and General Corbin, and after going over the various phases of the situation has directed them to think over all the questions and recommend what is found to be best, in their judgment. The army probably will be reduced to 100,000 men, and the other volunteer troops, aside from this number, will be mustered out as soon as the department can conveniently do so. It is believed at the department that now that there is no more fighting to be done the volunteer troops will be anxious to retire from service and get back to their various avocations. The large force is a great burden upon the country, not only in the matter of pay and subsistence of the army, but on account of so many men being away from their various employments. It is believed that 100,000 men will be sufficient to garrison the various places occupied by the United States.

General Thomas J. Shroyck of Baltimore, state treasurer of Maryland, and chairman of the Maryland seaport commission, spent a day in Omaha visiting the exposition. In discussing the effect of peace upon the business of the country, he said: "There is already a quickening of business in the east as a result of the approach of peace, which will be the result of the cessation of hostilities. It has actually been declared. Many capitalists and business men at Baltimore are even now preparing to go to Porto Rico to visit in the development of that island, which will soon be so transformed from its present condition that the Spaniards will never be able to recognize it. It is expected that within a few years this island will become the most famous winter resort visited by the American people."

FURNISH DIET OF HORSE... Spanish Speculate on the Appetites of American Soldiers... ONE MYSTERY OF SURRENDER EXPLAINED... Cavalry Animals Checked Out Short and Investigation Shows They Were Sold for Food—Blamecast Soon Heaped the Diet.

(Copyright, 1898, by Associated Press.) SANTIAGO, Aug. 13.—There are two ways of looking at the value of horseflesh here since the American occupation. Alive and kicking, as horseflesh pure and simple, it is dirt cheap. You can buy an animal for a few cents, and the trainings thrown in. Dead, as meat, at so much a pound in the market, it comes high—in more ways than one. The reasons for the discrepancy in values between a live and a dead horse just now are obvious. General Shafter's report says that on July 24, 133 horses were turned over by General Toral as the sum total of the Spanish cavalry under his command. It is well known that 1,000 is nearer the number that should have been turned over, but history in this case must refer to the whys and wherefores of the shrinkage.

First American Postoffice... The first American postoffice in Cuba was opened on June 23 at Sagua, Eben Brewer being the postmaster. The first day United States postage stamps were sold and money orders issued. An immense amount of mail had accumulated at Tampa since the departure of the army and its prompt delivery to the men at the front, after its arrival at Sagua, was a matter of some magnitude. After sorting the mail by regiments and companies Mr. Brewer bought a horse, loaded the animal with a heavy pouch of mail and started for the front to Cuba under the escort of a Spanish soldier. It was the first mail in Cuba under the United States flag. It was gone thirty-six hours and immediately after his return made another trip, this time hiring two mules, one of which he loaded the mail matter and tied more to the back of the one he rode himself. He was gone four days and besides delivering his mail he assisted in curing for the wounded on the battlefield and helped the field surgeons in their task. Mr. Brewer during these four days took neither sleep nor rest and the officers and soldiers among whom he was engaged to deliver the mail were on the field of battle as the brave men whom he helped during several days of fierce fighting.
