tion. Six years ago he was rated at $4,000, 000 more, through a daring deal in pork and provisions. Five years ago August 1 his fortune was swept away in one day in the wildest scramble ever seen on the Chicago board of trade. When the smoke and dust of that fight blew away John Cudahy was something like $1,500,000 poorer than penniless, he owed that sum above his fortune. Today he has paid off all his obligations and is once more enrolled among the and died with his face to his enemy," wealthy men of the city. Grit was the potent factor in this revival of fortune. Cudahy, failed at a time when the nation seemed on the verge of smashing and when dollars seemed as big as cart wheels to rich men. The prospects for his recovering from the terrific blow in the bellef of able financlers was mighty slim. Yet he went to home. STORY OF CORPORAL BOYLE.

Member of the Twenty-Second Infantry Who Distinguished Himself. The Cuban war has already developed numerous heroes whose names will pass into state and national fame. Besides a Dewey and a Hobson, there are records of many men of lesser rank who manifested the same brave American spirit that drew these leaders forward on the path of opportunity which led up to glory. Local pride runs high whenever the dispatches give an account of some deed of gallantry performed by one of the home guard. says a correspondent of the Chicago Times-Streets. Telephone, 1,458.

at the War department in Washington about July 19. In letters of the date of the occurrence Corporal Boyle wrote only in general terms. He expressed himself as being struck with the wonderful bravery of the officers and men," and referring to his own part in the engagement said he hoped he had 'sustained the honor and courage of his ancestors." A review of his antecedents proves clearly that he had noble incentive, for he is a grandson of the late Commodore Boyle, C. S. N. His maternal grandfather was Dr. Ashton Miles, U. S. A. One of his ancestors was General Philip Stewart of Maryland, of revolutionary fame, and he descends in direct line from Philip Key, the first Key who settled in this country, who was also the direct ancestor of Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner." By reason of the flag episode, and because the young man furnishes splendid example of the old saying that "blood will tell," it seems worth while to trace his career. Juan Ashton Boyle was born in Montgomery county, Maryland, on "Southampton farm," situated twenty miles from Washington. He came with his father's family to Kearney, Neb., when but 6 years of age, and was educated in the public schools and home colleges until he had took a finishing course at Notre Dame, Indiana. The transport conveying his troop to Cuba sailed on June 14, and the most ardent expression he made over leaving his native land was a desire to "be in the fight." He had asserted his personal independence by enlisting on the very day that he came of age, so that it may be inferred his thought was deliberate and his action taken under the force of a firm will.
