Intoward Elemental Conditions Not Enough to Stop the Movement.

COURT CARNIVAL VOTED A SUCCESS

Friday Evening's Masked Promenade Believed to Be the Forerunner of a More Pretentious Affair—Girls and Soldier Boys.

The heat and the dust of the last week were not sufficiently intolerable to prevent a real vigorous movement of society in the smart set. Life around the upper crust was being wonderfully quickened by the events during the days that ushered in the first of the autumn months. Between preparations for the Court Carnival and for the welcome home-dinner to the gallant soldiers of the Second Nebraska regiment, every one has had something to do during the week and much has been accomplished.

Despite obstacles that at one time seemed insurmountable, the Court Carnival was a success. There was a generous turnout of society folk and there were others. The fear of some of the more prudent parents that wild scenes of revelry might disturb the serenity of the occasion proved to be groundless and a larger representation of society was present than was expected.

The Omaha girl never showed to better advantage than during the last week when she ran here and there about town collecting good things for the soldier boys to eat on their return from the south. The sight at the fort yesterday afternoon, when a bevy of the young women waited on the volunteers, was a pretty one. It would be saying a great deal to remark that the girls seemed to get as much enjoyment out of the occasion as did the soldiers out of their dinner, but such appeared to be the case. At any rate, most of the girls declared they would go out to the fort next week to see the boys and take fresh flowers to the sick boys every time.

The corps of life-saving guards of the government now stationed at the exposition are not the only life savers around the lagoon. The other evening a party of young folks were out in one of the electric launches. Something about one of the valves went wrong, and the engineer had nothing at hand that would do to open it. The little craft became helpless and drifted around in some danger. He asked for a match or a toothpick, but not a man in the crowd could produce. Then the engineer begged for a penknife, but the men were shy on that score. The party was saved and the engineer gave up, when a young woman suggested that a hairpin might do the very thing needed. The party was saved and shown that hairpins are good for something else besides extracting oil from long-necked bottles.

Dance at Illinois building. The elegant reception and dance tendered the entertainment bureau of the exposition and friends by Major and Mrs. Hamilton at the Illinois building on Friday night at the conclusion of the masked carnival, was one of the leading events of the week. Specially pointed were artistically grouped throughout the halls and parlors. Iced champagne and frozen Roman punch were served from flower-wreathed bowls in the reception hall. The orchestra was stationed in the east gallery. As seen from the gallery the dancers made a fantastic and pleasing scene. Many were still habited in the costumes in which they had participated in the carnival. There really was not much dancing, but the inviting seats on the spacious porches drew many of the guests to sit and enjoy the moonlight and other odd things.

Celebrate Their Golden Wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Liddell reached the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage life last Thursday, and their children and grand children residing in Omaha called at their home at 1719 Webster street to extend congratulations. Those present were: Hon. John Liddell, Mrs. J. H. Manning, Mrs. C. L. Smith and Mrs. M. G. Gibbs. Another son, William Liddell, Jr., who lives at Cincinnati, was unable to be present. Mr. and Mrs. Liddell were married in Glasgow, Scotland, and came to America in 1849. They first stopped at Council Bluffs, where they resided for five years, and then moved over to Omaha. Mr. Liddell is 72 years old, but is able to attend to the duties of his position every day. Mrs. Liddell is 70 years of age, but her health is not so robust as that of her husband.

At the home of Mrs. Louis Rothchild on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Betty Haas to Mr. Sol Hess of Kempton, Ill. Rabbi Leo Franklin officiating. It was a very quiet home wedding, only the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties being present. The bride wore her traveling gown, a brown tailor made dress, with hat to match. The decoration was extremely effective, bride roses being used in profusion. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served in the dining room. The color scheme of the room being green and white, the table was brilliant with its green shaded candelabra, roses, cut glass and silver. Mr. and Mrs. Hess left at 5 o'clock for Pittsburg, Pa.

Mrs. Allison's Luncheon Party. A brilliant afternoon affair was the fern luncheon with which Mrs. Charles T. Allison entertained for Miss Quillen of St. Louis, who is the guest of Miss Crighton, and Miss Hines of Quincy, Ill., the guest of Mrs. McGinn.

In falling his side struck the edge of the wagon. The fire department responded to two false alarms of fire to the Mysic Maze at the exposition grounds Friday. The alarms were caused by a house, which thought he was burning in a messenger call. Horstene Rich, a visitor from New Orleans, was taken in at one of the fake Midway shows Friday night and because she expressed her indignation at the man's language in the entrance of the show building one of the employes had her arrested on a charge of drunken and disorderly conduct. When her case was called in police court yesterday morning no one appeared to prosecute her and she was discharged.

Work of the Coroner. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death by falling from a hand car in the case of Mike Giglietto, the Italian section hand killed on the B. & M. Friday night. The railroad company and all other witnesses were exonerated from all blame. GOSSIP ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE. Two of Bismarck's most stubborn foes survive him. One is Count Reebberg, who was the Austrian emperor's chief adviser with 1859 to 1864. He has just celebrated his 82d birthday. The other is Count Benckler, ten years younger than the Austrian and a prolific writer as well as a famous diplomat. He is at present engaged on a book which will deal largely with Bismarckians. Prof. Wilson, a leading light of Edinburgh university, recently wrote on the blackboard in his laboratory the following announcement: "Prof. Wilson informs his students that he has this day been appointed honorary physician to the queen in the course of the morning he had occasion to leave the room and on returning found that an irreverent student had added to the announcement the pious, but pungent, words: 'God save the queen.'"

HEARD ABOUT TOWN. William Fenton, publisher of the Humboldt (Neb.) Enterprise, is in Omaha doing the exposition and renewing boyhood acquaintances. A little over twenty years ago Omaha was his home, but he gravitated into the country and grew up with it. A family man, a newspaper and legislative honors are outward proofs of his devotion to duty. "How did you happen to break into the newspaper business?" inquired an astonished acquaintance of twenty-five years ago. "Easy as rolling off a log, my boy. Just fell into it six months ago. I prospered! Doubled the circulation in four months and haven't a row on hand. Might have a state senatorship for the asking, but haven't time to bother with such trifles. No, an editor who sticks to his business achieves all the average mortals crave for." Editor Fenton's glad hand was vigorously shaken by old friends without diminishing the power of his elbow or shortening his smile. Personal Paragraphs. H. Worms of Brooklyn is a Millard guest. Henry De Clergue and wife of Chicago are at the Millard. Irving Todd of the Gazette, Hastings, Minn., is taking in the exposition. C. H. McMaster and wife are among the arrivals from Texas registered at the Millard. C. W. Morton of the firm of James Morton & Co. left last night for New York and Boston. A. H. Patterson, C. R. Frederick and W. H. Christian and wife are registered at the Millard from Pittsburg, Pa. Deputy County Treasurer P. B. Bryant will leave for Boston Tuesday as a representative to the sovereign grand lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. E. M. Morcombe of the Omaha Rapids (Ia.) Gazette, with his daughter, is visiting the exposition. Mr. Morcombe will write a series of articles for the Gazette from Omaha. Charles Schmitzberger and family left Saturday afternoon for their new home in Denver. Mr. Schmitzberger has been living here the last twenty-five years, and was one of the city's leading tailors and establishment for pretty nearly the same period. Adair Gives Himself Up. Lowell Adair, cousin of John Horne, who died yesterday from the effects of a bullet wound received while robbing Farnsworth's store, visited the police station tonight and gave himself up. He is supposed to have been the accomplice who made a scuttling run from the store front window after the discharge of Farnsworth's revolver. Efforts have been made to locate him without success, although he maintains that he has been living at his home, Twenty-third and S streets, South Omaha. He wears a red hat that is almost identical with the one found in the drug store after the attempted burglary. Adair says he is innocent and can account for his whereabouts on the night his cousin was shot.

Mr. and Mrs. William Herbert Wheeler returned yesterday afternoon from a pleasant wedding trip through Colorado. They will be at home at 3122 Chicago street until December 1, when they will take up their residence in Washington, D. C. Mr. W. H. Robertson is home from a month's vacation at Block Island. Although twenty miles off the Atlantic coast he found exhibition posters well displayed and people who are coming in October to the great show.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN. William Fenton, publisher of the Humboldt (Neb.) Enterprise, is in Omaha doing the exposition and renewing boyhood acquaintances. A little over twenty years ago Omaha was his home, but he gravitated into the country and grew up with it. A family man, a newspaper and legislative honors are outward proofs of his devotion to duty. "How did you happen to break into the newspaper business?" inquired an astonished acquaintance of twenty-five years ago. "Easy as rolling off a log, my boy. Just fell into it six months ago. I prospered! Doubled the circulation in four months and haven't a row on hand. Might have a state senatorship for the asking, but haven't time to bother with such trifles. No, an editor who sticks to his business achieves all the average mortals crave for." Editor Fenton's glad hand was vigorously shaken by old friends without diminishing the power of his elbow or shortening his smile. Personal Paragraphs. H. Worms of Brooklyn is a Millard guest. Henry De Clergue and wife of Chicago are at the Millard. Irving Todd of the Gazette, Hastings, Minn., is taking in the exposition. C. H. McMaster and wife are among the arrivals from Texas registered at the Millard. C. W. Morton of the firm of James Morton & Co. left last night for New York and Boston. A. H. Patterson, C. R. Frederick and W. H. Christian and wife are registered at the Millard from Pittsburg, Pa. Deputy County Treasurer P. B. Bryant will leave for Boston Tuesday as a representative to the sovereign grand lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. E. M. Morcombe of the Omaha Rapids (Ia.) Gazette, with his daughter, is visiting the exposition. Mr. Morcombe will write a series of articles for the Gazette from Omaha. Charles Schmitzberger and family left Saturday afternoon for their new home in Denver. Mr. Schmitzberger has been living here the last twenty-five years, and was one of the city's leading tailors and establishment for pretty nearly the same period. Adair Gives Himself Up. Lowell Adair, cousin of John Horne, who died yesterday from the effects of a bullet wound received while robbing Farnsworth's store, visited the police station tonight and gave himself up. He is supposed to have been the accomplice who made a scuttling run from the store front window after the discharge of Farnsworth's revolver. Efforts have been made to locate him without success, although he maintains that he has been living at his home, Twenty-third and S streets, South Omaha. He wears a red hat that is almost identical with the one found in the drug store after the attempted burglary. Adair says he is innocent and can account for his whereabouts on the night his cousin was shot.
