FEDERAL COURT OPENS TOMORROW. September Term Has but Little Work

Laid Out for Judge Woolson. The September term of the United States court for the Southern district of Iowa, which opens here tomorrow morning, promises to be an exceptionally short one, as there are but few cases to engage the attention of Judge Woolson. Trial notices have been filed in the following cases: Auracher against the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad company; J. L. Fuller against Sue A. Hoyt; Teitsort against the Chicago & Northwestern railway, Seidentopf against the East Omaha Land company; Burke against the Omaha & Council Bluffs Railway and Bridge company.

In the case of Auracher against the Omaha & St. Louis railroad the plaintiff sues for damages for an alleged discrimination in rates. The plaintiff is a shippe who lives at Pattonsburg, Mo., and the discrimination complained of is alleged to have been made on shipments between three points in Missouri. The suit was originally brought in Fremont county and was later transferred to the federal court of this dis-

The case of J. L. Fuller against Sue A. Hoyt is also a damage suit and arises from a writ of attachment sued out by the defendant in 1894 against 20,000 bushels of corn belonging to the plaintiff. Charles Campbell Indicted. Among the indictments returned by the recent grand jury was one against Charles Campbell, the former school teacher in Garper township, charged with seducing a 15year-old girl named Nancy Wade, one of his pupils. Campbell for several months past has been employed as a conductor on the motor line, but his present whereabouts are unknown, as he left town when he learned the grand jury was investigating his case. Last Tuesday morning, two hours after he had taken his car out, he telephoned the superintendent to send a man to relieve him, which was done. Campbell failed to report, however, or turn in his money and is supposed to have left town. It is thought one of the witnesses gave him the tip to make himself scarce. Campbell had previously been arrested on complaint of the child's parents, but Justice Burke, before the preliminary hearing was held, decided that the evidence did not warrant binding Campbell over to the grand jury and accordingly discharged him. The parents brought the case to the attention of the grand jury, which promptly returned an indictment. Campbell is a married man with several children.

After being taken to the hospital Dillon regained consciousness and toward the middle of the day commenced to sink rapidly. He became delirious at times, but had brief spells of consciousness, during which he admitted that drink was the which he admitted that drink was the sengers. From one woman he took a gold cause of the unfortunate affair. He real watch and a pair of diamond earrings and ized that he had received a mortal from two other passengers watches and wound, but did not blame Anderson for doing the shooting. His mother, Mrs. One man who had $113 in his pocket jumped H. R. Dillon, and his uncle, George W. | from the train when the robber with his Hawke, arrived from Nebraska City early yesterday morning and were at his bedside until death came. His father, W. E. Dilion, who was a prominent citizen and mayor of Nebraska City, has been dead for everal years. Lee was the only child and his death came as a heartbreaking blow to the aged mother.

From the uncle it was learned yesterday that Dillon left Nebraska City Wednesday, September 7, going to Omaha, but where he stopped in that city Mr. Hawke was unable to say. Some three years ago he formed the acquaintance of Irene Trimble, a young woman in Nebraska City, who moved to this city some six months ago and has been living at 220 North Eighth street, where she passed under the name of Mrs. Ashton.

Visited Her Frequently. From an Omaha friend of Dillon's it is learned that Dillon since coming to Omaha over his shoulder and it is Morris' belief made almost daily visits to the young woman. He spent Saturday afternoon and evening with her and about 10 o'clock went to the saloon of Charles Leibold on Broadway. Leibold had known Dillon since he was a small boy and perceiving that he was considerably under the influence of drink refused to give him any more. This was shortly before the shooting and Dil-Ion must have gone direct from the saloon back to North Eighth street, evidently intending to go back to Mrs. Ashton's house. In the dark, and being under the influence of drink, he mistook the house and attempted to get into Anderson's residence, by mistake. Finding the door locked, as

Anderson is Under Arrest.

Anderson, who has been a switchman for many years in the employ of the Rock petition sets up the claim that the train was Island railroad, was placed under arrest after the shooting, but shortly after rerate of sixty miles an hour when it struck leased on $1,000 bail. There are some who are inclined to criticise Anderson and express the opinion that he was somewhat hasty in shooting as he did, but the general feeling is that he acted just as nine out of every ten men would have done under the circumstances. He had retired for the night and was asleep when he was awakened by his wife, who told him she heard burglars in the house. Anderson started to leave the room to investigate when his wife suggested he had better take his rifle, which he kept loaded in his bedroom ever since the time his house was robbed a short time ago. On going out into the hall Anderson was startled by hearing the glass in the front door come in with a crash. Seeing a man at the door he called, as he says, three times to him, but received no answer. He fired three times and at the third shot he noticed the man drop. Both Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were at the bedside of the dying man yesterday and did all in their power to console the griefstricken mother. Mrs. Dillon does not blame Anderson.

Coroner Jennings was uncertain whether the facts of the case warranted an inquest and will not order one held until he con sults with County Attorney Saunders this morning. As the mother was anxious to take the body back to Nebraska City Dr. Jennings released it and Mrs. Dillon and Mr. Hawks accompanied the remains home last

There are about Brooklyn 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0 1 3 in the district court. There are about twenty different suits pending. The title of the case in which the principal fight is being made is W. L. Ogden against W. D. Buckley et al. Ogden alleges that he is the owner of the entire lake bed, but Buckley and about twenty others each contend that they are the riparian owners of different parts of the tract.

Sand Hill is situated in Lakeport township, a few miles southwest of the town of Salix. It contains in all about 1,000 acres man of the three pulled a revolver from under his vest and thrusting it up under Morris' nose ordered him to hold up his hands. Morris has the reputation of being

Salix. It contains in all about 1,000 acres of land. The fact that it is called Sand Hill lake does not make it a lake, for as a matter of fact only a little water exists Baltimore at one end of the tract and the rest is dry. It is true that in a wet season some water will be found in parts of the tract, but it runs off quickly. The question for the The other two men, as soon as they had court to decide is whether it a lake bed. swamp land or relicted land. Ogden alleges that it was swamp land and on the other hand the owners of adjacent property, who are the defendants in the cases, aver that it is relicted land. In the early days of the country this land was designated by the state as swamp land and so surveyed. Under the swamp land act the state, which was the owner of such lands, gave the bed to the Sioux City & Pacific Railway company to aid in the con struction of its line. Years after that the railway company gave Ogden a deed to the property and he at once took possession and asked the court to quiet his title. Then passengers robbed were from Omaha and came the defense on the part of the people owning adjacent lands. These men alleged that they are entitled to as much of the land as is included in their property lines, which protrudes into the former body of was just passing what is known as Ray's water. The conflict has been bobbing up off and on in the courts ever since the first avenue the man who had gone through the case was filed and so far only a part of the cars holding up the passengers returned to testimony in the case of Ogden against the car in which his two companions were Buckley has been taken. When this is keeping guard over Morris and the three finished the case will come up for final disjumped from the train, running east and position so far as this court is concerned. If the courts find that the land was rightfully designated as swamp land then the state had the right, it seems, to deed it to the railway company, which in turn could convey it to Ogden, but, on the other hand, if the court finds it to be relicted land then under the Iowa statutes the property owners adjacent to the land in question are the owners of that portion included in their lot or section lines. As land is taken up all around it would leave nothing for Ogden, as the property lines all meet. If the court finds that it is a lake bed and neither relicted nor swamp land, then it remains the property of the state of Iowa, which has not sold its lakes or lake beds.

Says the State Should Pay. DES MOINES, Sept. 18 .- (Special.) -- April 26 the governor requested sheriffs and military officers to ascertain the number of able bodied men willing to do service and to hold them for a call for troops or for recruiting. Many did so at considerable expense and later the state sought to avoid the expense. Lieutenant Point and Lieutenant Reed of the Fifty-first recruited and held thirty men at their own expense and the state refused to reimburse them. They carried the matter to the attorney general who has decided that the state is in equity 30 bound to pay as much as would an individual and says it should not resort to a technicality.
