"murder," "fire." It did not take long to discover that the shricks emanated from a room occupied by Mary Unanget, one of the domestics. An attempt to open the door disclosed the fact that it was locked on the inside. All this time while an effort was being made to open the door the yells and shricks of the woman inside continued. The officer on the Pearl street beat was summoned and at his suggestion the porter climbed through the transom and opened the door. The young woman was found lying fully dressed on the floor and it was once apparent that she had become violently insane. Sheriff Morgan was notified and the woman was taken in a hack to the county jail. She fought, kicked and yelled and it took the combined strength of six men to carry her downstairs and place her in the carriage. On reaching the county jall the same difficulty was experienced in getting her in there. Later she was taken on order of Dr. Thomas of the Board of Insanity Commissioners to St. Bernard's hospital. The violent fit was not long lasting and yesterday afternoon the young woman was resting quietly, although completely worn out with her struggles. Dr. Thomas yesterday evening was inclined to believe that it was more a case of violent hysteria than insanity. The affair created intense excitement in the hotel, as from the shricks the guests thought a terrible murder was being

CHRIST'S LIFE AN EXAMPLE

Rev. M. C. Waddell Preaches His Opening Sermon at the Broadway Methodist Church to a Large Congregation.

Rev. M. C. Waddell, transferred by the recent conference from Shenandoah to the Broadway Methodist church of this city. preached his first sermon yesterday morning to his new charge. He was greeted by a congregation that completely filled the large auditorium. He took as the subject of his discourse, "Christlikeness," and his text from Philippians 2, v. He said in part:

The Christ-life is ideal. It is not a profession but a possession. It is eternal life. Whoseever has the spirit of Christ has "in him a well of water springing up into ever-lasting life." He who has the spirit of Christ is truly a Christian. His was a spirit of humility. What an example of humility do we find in the thirteenth chapter of the gospel according to St. John. He rose from supper, laid aside his garments, girded himself with a towel, poured water into a basin and washed his disciples' feen. He lived on earth as a servant. He came not to be ministered unto but to minister. "Let him that would be greatest among you be as him that serves." Our Christhumility. Girl Goes Crazy.

About 5 o'clock yesterday morning the guests at the Grand hotel were aroused from their slumbers by blood-curdling shrieks, interspersed with yells of "police," "murder," "fire." It did not take long to humility. By His example of humility. He teaches us that we should be willing to take the humblest place to serve others. We need the spirit of John the Baptist, who, not envying the rising popularity of another, cried out, "He must increase but I must decrease." This we say, however, with special thought of the Christ. No matter what our ability may be we ought to be humble. Better not of our own accord take the highest seats. To impart to others as we ought we must be made partakers of the Christ-spirit of humility.

mility. The spirit of Christ was also one of comhumanity? You say you pity them, but that is not enough. The pleadings of your pitying heart should culminate in real expres-sion of loving deeds. The goods of this world which you may have accumulated should be by you regarded as a sacred trust, not to be greedily hoarded, lavishly squandered or selfishly enjoyed, but generously employed. Success should always make one for something. Again, the spirit of Christ was one of unselfishness. His life was a beautiful em-bodiment of that love which "seeketh not to lay their hands on Casady, who was lately her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth with the truth." If you should die parties in Scattle and Spokane, but his nind with loving thought some gentle word loving patience that blushes in the presence of our unforgiving spirits and unrelenting words. Can you, as a Christian, on account of some petty grievance unworthy of a calm thought, indulge yourself in hard words or in looks of cold estrangement? the track blocked and Council Bluffs was to manifest in our lives something of His not reached until 5:30 o'clock yesterday forgiveness and his forbearance.

Christ's was a spirit of prayer. You are not in reality what you are in your pew. It is what you are when you have shut the door and gone into the secret place and truths of the gospel and yet be apathetic.

I do not believe in religious excitement, but I do believe in religious excitement, but I do believe in religious excitement, but I do believe in excitement in religion. The cross of Christ is the most restless and resigness of agitators and if your religion does not excite you it is because you lack the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

The spirit of Christ was one of devotedness to God. Let our Christian living but had cabees, is making arrangements to par-

Maccabees, is making arrangements to participate in the exercises of Maccabee day at the exposition next Wednesday. The kindles your warmest thoughts and calls members of the tent and their friends will forth your noblest service. Give yourselves meet at 8:45 Wednesday morning at their to Him and work to make this world better. Consecrate your energies to Him more fully and labor more earnestly than you have ever done. Besides all these the spirit of Christ was also one of resignation in death. Death is not an enemy to God's child. It is the end of all travail, the gate of gladness, the port of paradise. It is going to see our Father, it is going home—home with God. God help the ripe Christian to sing, "The time of my departure is at hand; I am ready. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."

DUNCOMBE TALKS OF HIS ROAD.

President of Fort Dodge & Omaha Gives Out Little Information. J. F. Duncombe of Fort Dodge, president of the Fort Dodge & Omaha railroad, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon. When seen last evening Mr. Duncombe was perfeetly willing to talk about the new road but not inclined to tell much. Regarding the report that the Illinois Central was back of the new road, he said that road had nothing to do with it and that the stock of the new company had been subscribed by it through to completion. "The Dubuque & Sioux City railway owns all the road operated by the Illinois Central in Iowa and the Fort Dodge and Omaha will run into it at or near Fort Dodge, so from that you must your own guessing. Whether when the Five transfers, aggregating $1,727 road is built the Illinois Central will be chases of bottom lands in the northern part of the city Mr. Duncombe said he had nothing to say at this time, as the plans of the company are not clearly defined as yet. As to the route the road would enter Council Bluffs he said that had not yet been determined. Two corps of engineers, he expected, would start out today, one from Fort Dodge and the other from this end, for the purpose of laying out a line. He did not expect much beyond the preliminary work would be attempted this year, as during the winter little work on the road could be done, but there was no doubt but the road would be built in the coming year. When asked over which bridge his road would probably enter Omaha Mr. Duncombe said he could at this time give no information on that point. Neither was he prepared to state if the company intended building shops or yards on the property secured north of Big lake. About all that President Duncombe was inclined to admit was that the road would be built from Fort

Dodge to Omaha via Council Bluffs.

When asked regarding the extensive pur-

Yesterday it was made public that the Northwestern railway had instituted condemnation proceedings against a portion of the Judson tract recently purchased by the Fort Dodge & Omaha road and the logical conclusion is that President Duncombe's visit at this time is in connection with these proceedings, although he declined to say anything at all on this matter. From Sheriff Morgan, however, it was learned that the Northwestern road has commenced proceedings to condemn a strip about threequarters of a mile long and about 150 feet wide on both sides of its right-of-way through the Judson tract. The grounds on which the condemnation is sought are that the company requires the land for the purpose on one side of straightening its track him to do wrong. and on the other for "borrow pits," or in likeness may be measured by our other words, to secure ballast for its grade.

Should the Northwestern succeed in having this trip condemned it will absolutely prevent the Fort Dodge road from building its track and entering the city over the route proposed and for which the Judson tract and other property in that vicinity were purchased, Although Mr. Duncombe declined to say anything on this question, it is certain that the Fort Dodge & Omaha passion. His compassionate words and his loving deeds should influence our lives. Steinberger's Head Cut.

Henry Steinberger, a bartender employed at the Kansas City house on South Main street, was taken to the police station about 2 o'clock yesterday morning in a sadly demoralized condition and booked on the charge of disturbing the peace. He was suffering from a gash eight inches long across his forehead, which took a physician who was summoned over an hour to sew up. Steinberger and a lady friend had been out driving and on their way home stopped at dance in the neighborhood of Thirty-fifth avenue and Ninth street. The horse belonged to Steinberger's friend, and as it had been driven near all night, she wanted to go home. Steinberger refused and tried to pull his companion out of the buggy. She resisted and in melee Steinberger nearly pulled all the clothes off her. Some one in the crowd, whose identity has not been disclosed, tore off a picket of a nearby fence and, rushing to the woman's aid, struck Steinberger a blow over the head that laid him out. Steinberger's employer, after the former's wound had been dressed, went to the police station and put up a bond for his appearance in court this morning.

IOWA HORSE DEALER ROBBED Old Story of Bogus Policeman Worked on a Bon Durant Citizen.

BON DURANT, Ia., Sept. 25 .- (Special.)-F. E. Darling of this place has just returned, from Chicago. While there he sold eight carloads of horses at the stock yards. He leposited a draft for $8,000 in the Drovers National bank and with $160 in his pockets went down town happy. When a sociable stranger accosted him at the Rock Island station Darling was not averse to a chat The conversation turned to horses and Darling was delighted to learn that he and the stranger were in the same business. The stranger, who said his name was Jackson of Dubuque, Ia., invited Darling to a room at Thirteenth street and Wabash aveparties who were eminently able to carry nue to talk shop. Darling confided to his companion that he had just closed an $8,000 deal, but neglected to say that he had deposited a draft for the amount in the bank. Waxing more confidential, the Bon Durant man exhibited $160 in $10 bills, with which he said he would purchase goods at a cer tain store.

As Darling held the cash in his hand the door of the room was suddenly broken open and a well dressed person, who exhibited a star, declared Darling and the other man under arrest. He said the place was a gambling den and the occupants of the room had been gambling. Darling protested in vain and the supposed policeman searched him. He took the $160 and was about to leave, when the stranger said to Darling: "You were in luck to save your $8,000." Acting on this the supposed policeman scarched Darling again and even ripped open the lining of his vest. Darling assured him the money was on deposit, showing him his book. The man with the star told him to remain in the room while he > Penitent Thief Makes Restitution. CLINTON, Ia., Sept. 25 .- (Special.) -A most unusual as well as interesting case of restitution has come to light in this city. Thirteen years ago the hardware store of Charles Baldwin & Co. was broken into and robbed of knives, razors'and other fine goods to the amount of over $50. There was nothing peculiar about the robbery and as none of the goods were ever recovered the matter was soon forgotten. There was nothing to lead to the suspicion of any person and the theft was laid to the door of visiting burglars. Mr. Baldwin, the head of the firm, had almost forgotten the circumstance, but he had it recalled in a most remarkable manner. A man entered his place of business-the same where the theft had been committed-and asked to see Mr. Baldwin privately. He was taken into the office and at once began a confession. He said that he committed the theft and disposed of the goods, profiting to the amount of their value. He had come to make reparation and asked to pay for the goods, with interest and all expenses and trouble occasioned added. Mr. Baldwin received the money and gave a recelpt. At first the man declined to give his name, but finally revealed his identity. He handed Mr. Baldwin his card, under the assurance that his identity would never be revealed. Who the man is Mr. Baldwin and the man himself only know; but it is known that the one-time thief and robber is now in business, is prosperous and has a wife and children.

> The man explained to Mr. Baldwin that he committed the robbery when discouraged and out of work. It was his only crime. He secured work soon after and has never since had the temptation so strongly placed before
