Cool Head and Quick Hand.

CRESCENT, Ia., Sept. 28 .- (Special.) -The ool head and quick action of one man at the wreck on the Northwestern at Crescen did much to make the accident as light as it turned out to be. There was a new night nan put on that evening, Harris, the old employe, having been sent to Carroll. The freight was pulling in on the side track and had not entirely cleared the main line wher the operator threw the block indicating the track was clear on the west end. The flyer was in sight, coming at sixty miles an hour. The engineer of the freight seeing the signal and knowing his train was not clear of the main line, and with the passenger but a short distance away, jumped from his engine on the sidetrack, ran over to the main line just barely in time to get in front of the engine and signalled the engineer of the passenger to stop. The air brakes were apolied, immediately checking the train enough for the engineer and fireman to jump off before the crash came. Had the passenger struck at full speed there would have been a much different result. One of the officers of the road was on the train and he promptly let the operator out and placed Agent Harford in charge temporarily.

it is not a good thing to pile the otes up against them too heavy, but just eavy enough to "keep 'em guessing." There is a growing complaint in western lows that farmers will not attend political cetings. They say they are interested in ing and harvesting their crops and paying attention to the ranting politicians. Red Oak was treated to the spectacle of long-haired western desperado with a big six shooter in his belt running from a meek little farmer of that community because the Wild Bill of the west was injecting percalities about President McKinley in his free silver talk.
