WANTED—MALE HELP.

STENOGRAPHERS: It is the policy of Boyle's school to secure positions for its graduates and it has not failed to do so in a single instance. Included in the course of shorthand and typewriting is business correspondence, letter press copying, mimeographing, spelling and punctuation. There is a demand for this class of office help when well trained. Bookkeeping is not taught in this institute, because there is no demand at present for "business college bookkeepers." The fact that this school is presided over by a court reporter and general stenographer of long experience in this city has given business men confidence in the ability of its students and that confidence has been well merited, not one student having failed to hold his position. Visitors are always welcome and no student should enter a school in this city for the purpose of receiving instruction in shorthand and typewriting without investigating thoroughly the methods of this one and getting a list of the business men who call upon it for stenographers, which is furnished free upon application. Profit by the experience of others. Students have been attracted to this school from every other shorthand school and business college in the city, and, while it has never refused students from other schools, it is much easier, more satisfactory and less expensive for the student to enter this school first and receive practical suggestions from the beginning. Get circulars. Bee Building. B—601—9*
