Erson still tried to get the car off the track and was struck by the train and killed. The bandcar was hurled several yards from the track by the force of the collision.

The body was brought to this city to Undertaker Estep's establishment, where an inquest was held by Coroner Jennings. The testimony of Tom W. Smith, engineer of the passenger train, and of Perry Starks, fireman, corroborated that of the section foreman and the three section hands. The jury, consisting of G. H. Baker, W. E. Duncan and W. M. McCreary, returned a verdict in favor of the railroad, and the result of Erson's own carelessness and that no blame was attached to the company.

Erson since employed as a section hand had lived at Crescent, but of him little is known, but a letter which he had written and not mailed which was found on him after the accident, and which was given to the jury, is not known whether he had any relatives in this country. The body will be held for a couple of days at the morgue, and if in the meantime nothing is heard from his relatives it will be buried, the expense being borne by the Northwestern.

Mueller's Music Store...

103 Main Street, Council Bluffs, Ia.

The old reliable house of thirty-nine years' standing. We have no connection with any other music house. We want to make a friend of you. Call on us. We will show you a beautiful line of high grade first-class pianos, such as the Hardman, Story & Clark, Harrington and others. We have a few special bargains in slightly used Hardman Pianos. Please read what others think about our instruments; encouragements like these ought to have some weight. We publish only two today, but have plenty others.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Aug. 30, 1898.—Mr. J. Mueller—Dear Sir: I bought a Hardman Piano of you between seven and eight years ago, and have much pleasure in giving you my opinion about it. It has preserved its tone wonderfully and is just as good as when new, both for touch and tone. Yours very truly,

J. H. SIMMS, Organist All Saints' Church, Omaha, Neb.

Boyd's Theater, Omaha, Sept. 8, 1898.—My Dear Mr. Mueller: It is no wonder to me that the Hardman Piano, of which you are the sole agent, has met with unparalleled success and has attracted the attention of distinguished musicians, for their sound and touch are sympathetic to my ears and hands, and rival most all other pianos of the country. I consider them the best and most durable instruments of our time.

PAYS QUICKLY FOR HIS CRIME

Mob Follows and Lynches a Negro Who Assaulted and Brutally Beat a White Woman.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 22.—A special to the Times from Tompkinsville, says: News has reached here of the lynching of Arch Baur, colored, who committed an assault on and attempted to murder Annie Morrison, a daughter of Henry Morrison, a prominent farmer of Cumberland county.

The crime was committed at the Morrison home yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. The members of the Morrison household were visiting in the neighborhood, except the eldest daughter, who remained at home to care for the house.

Baur, unnoticed, went direct to Morrison's home. Miss Morrison screamed for help when he entered, but no one was near enough to hear her, though the house was close to one of the most frequented public roads. She fought him with desperation, but the negro drew a piece of sharp iron, striking her two or three blows on the head and inflicted wounds that may prove fatal. He fled, believing his victim dead.

When the neighbors learned of the affair they formed a mob and pursued the negro to his home. They dragged him to a small cabin within five miles of where the crime was committed. The door was quickly broken down. The negro, hearing the noise, tried to make his escape through a window, but failed.

When they entered, he begged for mercy, but a noosed rope was quickly thrown over his head and about his neck and he was dragged, more dead than alive, to the woods, where the rope was tossed over the limb of a tree and he was hauled into the air and his body swung over the heads of the mob. The lynching was completed. Eight bullet holes were found in the body this morning. The remains were buried by Baur's relatives.
