Will the Roads Be Redeemed?

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 22.-(Special.) Will the Credits Commutation company redeem the properties of the Sioux City. O'Neill & Western and the Sloux City & Northern if a redemption shall be permitted by the decision of the United States supreme court in the Manhattan Trust company case? Can the Credits Commutation company afford to allow the roads to slip from it now that it has built the big bridge across the Missouri, and when a connection of the Pacific Short Line with the Union Pacific appears within the range of possibilities? Will the Credits Commutation company see the Sloux City & Northern go into other hands now when north and south lines constantly are increasing in City many times since the dispatches from Washington brought the news that J. Kennedy Tod & Co. were winners in their long fight against the Credits Commutation company. F. L. Eaton, general manager for the Credits company, said he could say nothing regarding the policy of the company. He said he did not even know what course would be pursued. He had not received a copy of the supreme court's decision and had not been informed whether the decision contained a redemption clause Mr. Eaton preferred to make no statement respecting a policy. While he did not say so it is likely no policy will be decided on until the meeting of the executive committee in about six weeks.

Many Merchants Indicted.

OSKALOOSA, Ia., Oct. 22 .- (Special.)-Last spring a number of representative citizens petitioned the district court for the removal of County Attorney James Carroll. The petition was brought in the form of case against Mr. Carroll, and Judge Dewey of Washington, then presiding, appointed George W. Seevers to act in Carroll's place. The citizens petitioned for the enforcement of the laws and pointed out existing abuses Under Mr. Seevers' administration about forty indictments were returned by the grand jury. Mr. Carroll was reinstated in his official capacity and the cases have been tried under him.

ing with Haughton's four goals thirty-four poin's. Dibblee scored the only touchdown in the second half.

The game showed up Harvard's stronger players at their best and also revealed the weak ones. The feature of Harvard's play was the team work of Dibblee and Baker in the back field. Time and again when Dibblee got the ball he was able to make long runs by Daly's blocking. Dibblee's work was the most wonderful that he has shown up to this time. Harvard depended mostly on plays around the end and on kicking. Chicago was practically unable to make any gains at all through Harvard's line until the middle of the second, when the Crimson's left gave way before the hammering of Wellington and Graber, aided by the line work of Huddleson and Byrnes, who were put fresh into the line in place of Kirkoff and Bader. Harvard's weak points were in open field. The Chicago team developed a very poor interference and its runners fell an easy prey to the onslaught of the Chicago team.

At first Cornell started off with a rush, but after the Tigers had learned the Cornell plays the ball changed hands and was carried steadily down the field for the only touchdown of the game. Reiter took the pigskin over the line and Mills kicked the goal. This was the only score during the game. In the first half Cornell was within thirty yards of Frinceton's goal and in danger of losing the ball on downs. Starbuck, the Ithacan fullback, tried for a goal from the field, but failed. In the second half Cornell played the same sturdy, balldog game, but the Tigers had the smell of blood and were not to be outplayed.
