

HARVARD IS GOLF CHAMPION

Yale's Representatives on Ardsley Links Defeated, 16 to 14.

BOTH PLAY TO A TIE IN THE FINAL ROUND

Twenty-Four Players Start in the Medal Play Round of Individual Championship and Eighteen Finish.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Harvard's team of golfers won the international championship from the representatives of Yale at the Ardsley Golf club's links this afternoon by a score of 16 to 14. These teams had beaten their opponents from Princeton and Columbia on the opening and second days of the final round, but when that was finished both sides were equal, with scores of eleven each.

When it was found the teams were tied there was a powwow as to how the tie should be played off. Harvard claimed that both sides should go over the top of eighteen holes and the Yale team demanded they only play one hole in order to decide the championship. After a great deal of talk it was decided to let the scores made in the medal play for the individual championships, which were played later in the day, decide the relative merits of the teams. This solution of the problem met with the approval of everyone interested and although darkness had settled down over the links before the result was reached, the outcome of the day's golfing was perfectly satisfactory.

In the first half of the morning round Yale had the better of the game, as Barnes and Reid had beaten Choate and Clark, but this was reversed when Hubbard of Harvard came in nine holes up on Hinkle and Averill had two up on Havemyer.

The next pair were W. B. Smith of Yale and Curtis of Harvard, with the former one up with the present holder of the individual college honors. Then came Robertson and Cutting and on these two was centered the gaze of the rest of the golfers and the spectators when they reached the eighteenth, putting green. Robertson was then three up and if he won the last hole Yale would have the championship.

Twenty-four players started in the medal play round of the individual championship in the afternoon, but only eighteen of them turned in cards and of these eight qualified for the first and semi-final rounds, a match play with scores of 91 and under.

C. Fellows, Jr., of Columbia headed the list with 83 strokes and J. Stuart of Princeton came next with 87. Murphy of Princeton and Reid of Yale have 89 each. Smith of Yale was fifth with 89 and the other three, Cutting and Choate of Harvard and Dixon of Columbia, had 91 each.

These eight will play tomorrow in the first and semi-final rounds and the two survivors will decide the individual championship on Saturday by playing twice over the 18-hole course. Following are the team scores:

First Round—Yale, 11; Harvard, 11.

Second Round—Yale, 14; Harvard, 16.

YALE ELEVEN IS IN BAD SHAPE

Alumni Weekly Reads the Athletic Authorities a Lecture.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 27.—The slump in the Yale university football team during the present week has occasioned great alarm among Yale men, and this alarm is emphasized by the failure of graduate students to return to New Haven to assist in the preparation of the eleven for the important contest of the season. The Alumni Weekly, which appears today, contains a vigorous criticism of the situation. Under the caption: "Many football cringes and much of the blame is laid on the Alumni Weekly," it says: "The whole team is loose and disorganized; the candidates, outside of those who have been playing more or less regularly with the eleven, are so far behind respectable form that an accident to three or four men would result in the team dropping out. Yet there is plenty of fine material and an abundance of the right spirit. It is a question of instruction. Good must be given at once to be effective. Good, hard coaching, and plenty of it right away, will save the team. That is putting things as bright as possible."

WINDS UP WITH A BANQUET

British-Canadian-American Club Will Close Out Its Career in a Social Feast.

Members of the British-Canadian-American club met last evening in their rooms in the Range hotel to complete arrangements for the banquet they plan to give Thursday evening, November 3, as the final gathering of the club's existence. The club was organized for the purpose of getting up a Canadian day at the exposition, and now that its aim has been accomplished it was thought best to disband, and the many members, wishing to remember the good times they have had together, proposed a banquet to which all the British and Canadians in the city should be invited. A committee appointed to arrange the details of the affair made its report at the meeting last night. The Her Grand hotel was the place chosen for the banquet and about seventy-five people have accepted invitations to be present. The hour decided upon was 6:30 o'clock in the evening. There will be toasts and responses by prominent men, also music by the members, the arrangements for the program of entertainment being placed in the hands of a committee with instructions to report later.

RAISE FRUIT IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Experiments of the Horticultural Society Are Eminent Successes.

A glance at the fruit in the exhibit of the experimental farm of the North Carolina State Horticultural society at the Trans-Atlantic Exposition, consisting of the finest specimens of Delaware and Niagara grapes, besides many excellent varieties of peaches, plums, pears and apples, will convince the most prejudiced that North Carolina is a fruit growing state. Fruit is fast becoming an important factor in the list of man's necessities, as well as his luxuries. It is one of the single and natural foodstuffs of mankind. In the last few years more has been done to improve and diversify fruits than was ever done before in a decade of centuries. The highest talent among the scientific men is engaged in this work. To grow these fruits in the sand regions of the Trans-Atlantic Exposition society has been carrying on an extensive series of experiments with fertilizers on fruits of various kinds. The experiments have been a success and of untold value to the state. A once barren, sandy soil is now the scene of hundreds of acres of as fine fruit as can be grown in the south.

What an Exhibitor Wants to Know.

OMAHA, Oct. 27.—To the Editor of The Bee: Why do you not publish the names of the exhibitors at the main exhibits at the exposition? I notice that you have printed the names of a few of the minor exhibitors, in the work of which there is but little interest, but of the main jury, whose decision is of vital importance to all the exhibitors, nothing has been said beyond the fact that they are at work. There have been a number of suggestions in connection with this award business, and all summer long there has been a feeling among the exhibitors that there might be some sort of skulduggery at the end of the show. The testimonial by the exhibitors to the superintendent of that department, in which only a portion of the exhibitors joined, and the secrecy that has surrounded the awarding of prizes, seems to be maintaining in regard to who is to judge the exhibits, adds much weight to the already well grounded belief that everything is not just as it should be.

SIoux the Last to Leave.

The last of the Indians leave for their homes today. Those who will go are Sioux. They commenced packing their household goods last night and before retiring had completed the task with the exception of stowing away their bedding, which they needed last night. Their cooking utensils were packed after the evening meal and breakfast will consist of a cold haulout of bread and meat.

People Carry Away Souvenirs.

The desire to steal small articles at the exposition grounds is one of the things with which the guards have to contend just at this time. People apparently feel that by reason of the dissolution of the exposition before the end of the year they have certain rights with reference to the property of others. In the buildings the guards have to watch the exhibits much more closely than they did a month ago, while outside upon the grounds everything that is loose is likely to be carried off.

RECEPTION AT ILLINOIS BUILDING.

Hospitality of the Commission Enjoyed by Many Invited Guests.

The handsome building that the state of Illinois contributed to the exposition has been the theater of a number of most enjoyable social receptions. The first of these was given by the Illinois commissioners to fully 500 guests by Colonel and Mrs. Hambleton and the Illinois commissioners to fully 500 guests by Colonel and Mrs. Hambleton and the Illinois commissioners to fully 500 guests by Colonel and Mrs. Hambleton.

Crowd to Hear Innes.

The approaching departure of Innes and his band has apparently induced the Omaha public to lose no opportunity to hear what remains of their enjoyable music. The Auditorium was again too small to hold the crowd last night and aisles and corridors were densely packed with people who were willing to stand through the evening. Every number was heartily encored and the enthusiasm reached a climax in the conclusion of Mr. Innes' new fantasia, "A Trip to the Omaha Exposition." Each of the excellent imitations of the familiar features of the show was vigorously applauded, and at the finale the immense audience rose and vented its approbation in a tumult of cheers and hand-clapping, which continued for fully five minutes. This was only exceeded when Mr. Innes took up his trombone and played "Auld Lang Syne," and even then the crowd very reluctantly consented to call it enough.

Balloons Retire from Business.

There will be no more balloon ascensions at the exposition. The big gas filled bag has been taken down, packed up and stored at the Government building, where it will remain for a time to be taken back to Washington with the gas. The gas is being used for generators and other equipment used in inflating the balloon and in making the ascensions will be stored and go back to Washington along with the bag.

Great Rush to Omaha.

SIoux CITY, Oct. 27.—(Special Telegram.)—A rate of $2 for the round trip from Sioux City to Omaha and return has been made. This ticket is good only on a special train, which will leave Saturday morning at 6:30, and return will be good until Sunday night. This will result in a large number of Sioux City people going to the close of the exposition. The traffic from Sioux City to Omaha is simply enormous. The trains go in and
