Mrs. May Wright Sewall, the president, said she had previously made up her mind to cease work on the first of the year, but that it was as impossible to quit working for the council until she is officially removed as it is for an eagle to quit soar-During the last year she had spent between $600 and $700 out of her own pocket. However, the alacrity with which the different organizations had pledged themselves to the exchequer of the council had made the treasurer, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey of Winthrop Center, Me., full of sweetness. In other words, the financial situation looked very encouraging, even if there are a few debts that must be wiped out. On a motion by Rev. Anna Shaw, seconded by Mrs. I. C. Manchester of Providence, R. I., and Miss Anthony, $100 was appropriated to the president for postage to begin the work for the to induce the American government, through next triennial and $100 to the official stenographer of the council, Miss Burke.

How Long Will It Last.

From finance the council turned its attention to the time which the next triennial should occupy. The first triennial, said Mrs. Sewall, had eighteen sessions, and the next one fasted sixteen days. A resolution had come from the National Council of Jewish Women, through Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, its president, proposing to reduce the time of the triennial session to four days, but this did not at all seem to agree with what the members of the council wanted. A motion was accordingly made by Mrs. Bailey, seconded by Mrs. Minnie J. Snow of Salt Lake, providing for a two weeks' session. Mrs. Clara Bewick Colby of Washington thought this altogether too long. The discussion of this question lasted until long after the noon hour.

The triennial was postponed from this year until next, owing to the illness of Mary Lowe Dickinson, the president of the National council, the unexpired portion of whose term Mrs. Sewall is serving out. It is always held in Washington. The time will probably be the first two weeks of April. In the course of the morning meeting it was stated that the prospects are bright for the Daughters of the Revolution, Mothers' woman who is a wife or a head of a family congress and Columbian Dames joining the , so she shall be no longer classified as "employed in no gainful occupation." That the auxiliary bodies of the council council.

Danderine will not burn nor scald the scalp. Preparations that do this will cause the hair to fall out and turn gray and they should be forever avoided. Scalps were not made to be burnt or scalded. Diseased scalps should be treated with soothing, healing and stimulating applications, in place of being parched and irritated with poisonous acids. Danderine is an herb tonic, every ingredient and detail of which have been scientifically arranged and prepared, tested and developed under the direct supervision of eminently qualified hair and scalp specialists, and there is no question regarding its efficiency. We guarantee it to restore the hair and cure all scalp and follicle ailments. Danderine Scalp tonic is the only specific known that has firmly established its ability to accomplish this class of work.
