AND COMINGS-OUT

Debutantes Presented While the Engagements of Former Buds Are Given to the World Through Medium of Formal Receptions.

It is especially mete that the week immediately following the closing of the exposition should prove to be the most brilliant of the present acasen in local society circles. The season has been most auspiciously opened and a trio of this year's debutantes have been duly presented to the leaders of Omaha society. The affair that brought them out was an unusually pretty one and was enjoyed by nearly 100 beaux and belies.

After the carnival season of Monday-Tuesday, when Omahans and their guests celebrated the close of the exposition, there was some doubt as to whether any additional entertainments of the week would be attended. home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Porter Peck But they were, for Omaha people are quick on the recovery. In addition to the general affair of the week. It was preceded by an Halloween party of Monday evening there afternoon reception, at which the engagehas been a social event of some kind every ment of Miss Elizabeth Peck to Mr. Joseph evening and all of them proved altogether

The affairs for which Cupid is responsible have figured very largely in the week's program. The announcement of the engagement of Miss Peck to Mr. Joseph Barker, both favorite leaders of Omaha society and representatives of ploneer families, was no surprise to their many friends and the congratulations and good wishes that have b.en held in waiting quickly followed the reception at which the announcement was made The coming wedding of Miss Morse to Mr. George Palmer, which will also unite two old families of this city, has occasioned a number of pleasing events, of which the luncheon given by Mrs. Palmer was the most notable. The marriage of these popular young folks will be the central event of the coming week and around it will occur several smaller but brilliant affairs.

A number of prominent young society women who are interested in charity will visit the children's ward in the Clarkson Memorial hospital every Sunday morning during the winter and will teach kindergarten work appropriate to the day. The work will be under the supervision of Dean Fair of Trinity cathedral,

Dutch Dinner at the Club. Altogether, the most unique social entertalament given in Omaha was the Dutch feestdisch (festival dinner) at the Omaha club last Wednesday evening, which was given by Miss Nettie W. Collins and Miss at the Creighton on Wednesday afternoon. Reasoner to commemorate their late interesting trip abroad, where they graced the festivities attending the coronation of the queen of Holland. The dinner was served in one of the spacious upstairs rooms, the walls of which were claborately decorated with souvenirs and trophies from the Netherlands. A great fishnet from Scheveningen cerved as a background. The south wall was entirely concealed by a group of immense Dutch flags, in the center of which was mounted a great insignla displaying the coat-of-arms of Holland. This decoration was one of those which adarned the 'Niene Kirk' in Amsterdam at the time of the season. The first meeting will be the coronation. Engravings of the queen, bits of delft and other Dutch pottery, the Matthis. latest Holland posters and typical wooden shoes were everywhere in evidence. At each cover was an exquisite specimen of delft pottery, quaint eau-decologne jugs for the women and ash receivers in the form of jockey caps for the gentlemen. In honor of the return of the prodigals, the "fatted calf" made its appearance, an excellent imitation of the genuine Holstein article, its neck garlanded with Dutch tulips. The immense wooden shoe and the contrasting tiny one, individually labeled as "Wilhelmina's" and "Nettie's shoe" occasioned much merriment. The loving cup was a great Dutch stein of antique pewter curiously wrought and in-scribed. No less unusual was the dessert with the ices in the form of brown Curacao jugs, and the Dutch skates of cake; while the crowning event of the menu was the triumphal entry of the Eden cheese, presented to the young women by the the burgomaster of Edam during their visit there and transported by them for the occasion. Covers were laid for twenty, Mrs. John Harbach matronizing.

The guests were: Miss Yates, Miss Doane, Miss Dickinson, Miss Wakeley, Miss Curtis, Miss Bessie Yates, Miss Mount, Miss Emily Wakeley, Mr. Baldrige, Mr. Hall, Mr. Wilson, Captain Hutcheson, Mr. Rosewater, Mr. Busch of Washington, Mr. Berlin, Mr. Elsemore, Mr. Cadwell of Chicago,
