TAKEN AT HIS Witnesses Who Were at the Saloon on the Night of the Murder Tell of the Occurrence, but Nothing New Comes Out.

George Challman, who is charged with killing Bartender James R. Jones by a knife thrust through the heart at the Union Pacific Exchange saloon, Thirteenth and Webster streets, on the night of October 31, was held to the district court without bond by Judge Gordon at the conclusion of his hearing in police court yesterday afternoon. Stephen Maher and William Grady, Challman's companions on the night of the murder, were held in bonds of $500 each as man's counsel to have him released on bail by striving to show that the evidence adduced did not make the crime murder in the first degree. Judge Gordon would not assume the responsibility of releasing Challman and denied the contention of the attorneys.

Eleven witnesses were examined for the state. They were: J. Johnson, proprietor of the saloon; Jennie E. Helm, a domestic in his employ, and Lulu Montyou, a guest at Johnson's house on the night of the murder; Dr. A. W. Edmiston, who examined the wound in Jones' breast; Jesse Hackthorn, Cornelius Cosgrove and Erick Simons, who were in the saloon at the time the tragedy was enacted; William Grady and to whom Challman confessed the killing the morning after its occurrence.

The story of the eye witnesses of the affair was substantially the same as told in passed by Rev. Dawson and his flock that The Bee the morning after the murder. It night.

was to the effect that Challman, Grady and Maher, who had been drinking, entered the saloon and after a round of drinks a quarrel was started between Grady and Johnson, the proprietor, because the latter had refused to trust him for 45 cents' worth of liquor. Jones, the murdered man, acted in this quarrel as a peacemaker and advised Grady to put on his coat and leave the saloon. Challman and Maher took no part in this quarrel. The occupants of the saloon testified that after the quarrel no harsh words were used by the bartender, Jones, to either Challman. Maher or Grady, nor was his manner toward them threatening.

Blow Struck Without Warning. After the men had left the saloon Proprietor Johnson testified he went behind the bar for a club, as he feared the men would return and create "rough house." While he was behind the bar Jones went to the front door, which the three men on the outside were rattling, to see what was the trouble with them. The fatal blow was struck as the bartender opened the door. The thump of the assassin's knife as it struck Jones breast was plainly heard by the occupants of the saloon, but they did not see the knife. They swore that Jones had not attempted to assault anyone outside, nor had he made a threatening move or spoke a word before the blow was struck.

Stephen Maher, Challman's friend, swore that he left the saloon before the trouble over the drinks took place and was standing on the sidewalk when Challman came out of the saloon after Grady. He professed to know nothing of the stabbing. Grady, the originator of the trouble, told his story of the quarrel exactly as has already been quoted. He said he had been employed on the exposition grounds the day of the murder and had met Challman at 2 o'clock and together they came down town after making the rounds of the exposition grounds' drinking places. It was 9:30 when they entered Johnson's saloon. The quarrel Fitzgerald, provincial of the Missouri prov-

Suffered Untold Agonies. Limbs Swollen So Could Not Get About.

Ablest Physicians Signally Failed. Was Absolutely Disheartened. Had Lost All Hope.

Gave Cuticura A Trial, Which Resulted in Absolute and Perfect Cure.

For ten years I suffered untold agonies from that dread disease Eczema, my lower limbs most of the time being so swollen and broken out that I could hardly go about. I had to wear slippers so that I could move about at all. My brother, a physician of thirty years' practice and extensive experience, had tried in vain to effect a cure and signally failed. I tried other physicians of splendid ability with like results, and had reached that point where I became absolucity disheartened, and in fact had lost all hope, when a friend induced me to give CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial. I used two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP and two boxes of CUTICURA (DEMONITY) of CUTICURA (ointment), and it resulted in an absolute and permanent cure. I am now perfectly cured, sound as a dollar, and to Cu-TICURA REMEDIES I attribute my almost mir-aculous cure. I refer all interested to the Postmaster of this place, any of the ministers, the prominent business men, and all of the citizens of our vicinity indiscriminately, and especially to my friend, John A. B. Shippey, attorney at law, who persuaded me to give CUTICURA REMEDIES & trial.
