Omaha Bridge and Terminal Railway Has an Expansive Charter.

CITY HAS NO JURISDICTION OVER IT

Company May Construct Its Tracks Anywhere It Likes in Order to Reach Its Own Property—Pretty Well Provided Already.

The city officials have decided that the franchise granted the Omaha Bridge and Terminal Railway company gives it authority to build switches and lay spurs from its main track to any property that it owns without first securing permission of the city to do so. A point in instance arose a couple of days ago when the Terminal company proceeded to lay a spur from its main line on Union avenue through the triangle piece of ground at Ninth street and First avenue.

The company had a force of men at work laying the rails and had the work about half completed when it was notified to stop by City Engineer Elmer and Alderman Casper. The reason given for the order to stop the work was that the company had not secured permission from the city. E. H. Odell, the company's agent in this city, explained that his company had authority under its franchise, but consented although at a great inconvenience to postpone the completion of the work until the city council investigated the matter. The matter was brought up at the meeting of the council Thursday night and referred to the committee of the whole.

Yesterday the committee proceeded in a body to the place and investigated. Mr. Odell proved to the satisfaction of the committee that his company owned the property to which the spur was laid and that it had been purchased but a few days previously from the Union Pacific Railway company. Further Mr. Odell produced a copy of the franchise which contained a provision giving the company the right to run a spur from its main line to any property it may purchase or in future own. With this starting point in the face the committee was compelled to give Mr. Odell permission to go on with the work.

Some of the aldermen were much surprised to learn that such a clause was contained in the franchise as it practically gives the Terminal company an unlimited right of way anywhere and everywhere in the city, provided it buys enough property.

The Terminal company has now extended its lines in this city so as to connect with all the roads entering Council Bluffs except the Milwaukee. It connects with the Wabash at Fourteenth street and Eleventh avenue; with the Burlington at Fifteenth street and First avenue; with the Rock Island between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues at Fourteenth street; with the Union Pacific at Union avenue, and with the Northwestern at Union and First avenues. Mr. Odell says his company is planning on still further extensions this winter. The company is, however, experiencing a little difficulty in securing track laymen, as most of them are being employed at the Union Pacific yards laying the tracks for the new Peavey elevator.

MIKKELSON RUINS THE BOILER. Inexperienced Janitor Costs School Board One Hundred Dollars.

Some of the aldermen held a special meeting last night to consider the matter of repairing the boiler at the Twentieth avenue school building. From the statements of Supervisor Fonda made to the board it appeared that Nels Mikkelsen, the janitor, was incompetent to handle a steam-heating plant and that the boiler, which was in perfect condition when examined by the inspector last summer, had, on account of his incompetency, been damaged and that it would cost at least $100 to repair it.

The committee on fuel and heating was authorized to have the necessary repairs made. Mikkelsen is one of the new men appointed last summer, when all the old janitors were discharged. It developed from his own statements last night before the board that his only previous experience with heating plants had been with a Baker heater, with which some years ago the cars on the Union Pacific railway were heated. Although no action was taken last night, the board, while in executive session, decided that Mikkelsen would be sent to some job, as the board could not retain his services and run the risk of him blowing up the boiler and possibly endangering the lives of the children in the building.

Chairman Spruit of the committee on fuel and heating reported that he had awarded the contract to the New York Plumbing company for supplying patent asbestos covering for the steam pipes in the several school buildings. The total will amount to $464.82, divided among the schools as follows: Washington avenue, $100.68; Twentieth avenue, $85.44; Eighth street, $100.68; Pierce street, $65.20; Bloomer, $50.87; Third street, $45.16; Second avenue, $41.60. The covering of the pipes is expected to save 20 per cent in the consumption of coal.
