SOLVES SEVERAL PROBLEMS

DeVany of Ohio and Texas Relieves the Farmers of the West.

BUILT

All He Asks is Six Wheat Crops and He Will Guarantee Construction and One Dollar a Bushel for the Product.

If railroads were constructed as easily or land as on paper Omaha would have another railroad to Galveston by October 1, 1899. In a letter to The Bee from Swisshelm, Highland county, O., George DeVany, "of Ohio and Texas, candidate for president, U. S. A., at election of 1900, regardless o convention nominations," says he will build the railroad for six wheat crops.

The fanciful railroad builder announces his prospectus on lithographed stationery such as is used by patent medicine stree magicians and circus travelers. What may be presumed to be a correct picture of "De-Vany of Ohio and Texas" shows him to be a man of ordinary appearance, dressed in an ill-fitting suit of clothes of the vintage of 1889, seated in a rattan rocker. His pose appears to be most uncomfortable, but he is hard at work over papers on a small table building his railroad.

And these are the words he said: " 'And my bow shall be a covenant between me and . While the earth remaineth seed time and harvest shall not cease.' Under this bright bow of promise farmers sow and reap in certainty. After harvest, what? Man dictates; farmers sell without any guaranteed value. The product of every branch of industry on earth has a guaranteed value except the labor of farmers. DeVany alone guarantees farmers prosperity. One-dollar heat, 16-cent cotton. Guaranteed farmers from 1899 to 1904 by DeVany, candidate for president, U. S. A., at election 1900 (originally written 1899, but later raised a year to conform to presidential periods accepted by popular consent), regardless of convensominations. Campaign endorsed by 100 northern factories, representing $100,-000,000 capital.

Longstreet His Only Rival.

General Longstreet's proposed air line from Kansas City to San Diego, Cal., to be built by the government, is the only railroad proposition that has bobbed up lately to compare with that of "DeVany of Ohio and Texas." In his letter to The Bee the

For six wheat crops I can guarantee a traffic to pay dividends upon bonded investment without soliciting shipments. I would suggest from Omaha to Topeka, Wichita, Gutarie, Sherman, Dallas, Corsicana, Houston, Galveston. My English correspondents will take care of a reasonable part of the bonded investment. On my part I will put up $100.000 to start its immediate construction to meet wheat shipmediate construction to meet wheat shipments of October 1, 1899.

Advise me at once.

I am, gentlemen, yours most respectfully,
GEORGE DEVANY.

Alten. "DeVany of Ohio and Texas" says would be at the expense of picking same up to the Missouri Pacific that has absorbed the Port Arthur route. This may be news to the Missouri Pacific officials, but then DeVany ought to know more about the portion of the money (one-twentieth they spend in picking up and hauling off the snow than DeVany ought to know more about the then DeVany ought to know more about the matter than George Gould.

A man who hairs from two states has not confined his campaign to railroad circles. He has written a letter to every county attorney in the west. This letter is addressed from Galveston, showing that he can write from either state and that his right hand need not necessarily know what his left hand is doing. A copy of the letter from County Attorney-Dear Sir: Represent me for enclosed campaign and contract in my name every bushel of wheat raised for crops of 1899 to 1904 at $1 per bushel, cash No. 2, red. Cetton at 10 cents per pound; good middling grade. Inform farmers I now contract them farm goods, payable October 1, 1899, in wheat at $1 per bushel, No. 2, red, or cotton at 10 cents, g. m. basis.

If you cannot stump county upon this platform place this letter before some active attorney that will stump county at once and form clubs. I am, sir, yours most re-spectfully, GEORGE DEVANY. You can never tell what a man will do when he seeks to enter the political field via the railroad route.

LUCKY ESCAPE FOR ENGINEMEN. Wreck of the Union Pacific Limited

Remarkable in One Respect. The Union Pacific locomotive that was badly damaged when the "Overland Limited" train ran off the track in the storm of Monday afternoon was brought into the Omaha shops for repairs yesterday. The cab of the engine is smashed to smithereens. As one looks at the place where the cab was he naturally concludes that the escape of the engineer and fireman from death was nothing short of a miracle, as both were riding in the cab at the time and neither

The sand was completely covered by the snow, and as the train approached the little white bank on the track Engineer Highsmith thought it was nothing but snow and knew that his train, which was running fifty miles an bour or better, could cut right through it without even jarring the train. Even had he known the dirt was piled beneath the snow he could not have stopped his train in time to have prevented the accident. As the engine struck the mass of sard covered with snow it raised up in the air. The momentum of the train behind completely turned the loco motive round.

Snow and Street Drainage. OMAHA, Nov. 23 .- To the Editor of The Bee: With much pleasure I noticed yester-day men at work cleaning the street crossings so as to make them passable; but re-gretted to see them piling the snow in-stead of scattering it so as to wear away, and that they were paying no attenion to the opening up of the gutters and sewerage.

In looking over many blocks I find ho instance where they have prepared for drainage in case of melting or rain. The result will be in such a case that there is no escape for the water and it percolates through the snow, forms ice and keeps our streets in bad condition for many months, making the crossings and approaches to making the crossings and approaches to street cars and carriages nearly impossible without getting over shoe tops in slush and

Collector Houts Points Out an Error Into Which a Great Many Business Men Are Falling.

Mr. Houtz has advised all inquirers that this interpretation of the attorney general's fore the advance that is coming in a few lecision is erroneous, and that all checks of depositors for the withdrawal of funds to their credit require a 2-cent stamp. However, where the depositor draws money against his deposit personally, tendering the bank a receipt, said receipt is not subject to a tax.
