

GILLETT CATTLE IN OMAHA

Bunch of Mortgaged Stock Found at the Union Stock Yards.

SHIPPED BY THE ABSCONDER'S SECRETARY

J. C. Bohart Commission Company of Chicago Gets in Just in Time to Protect its Interest in the Steers.

One of the peculiar methods of Gillett, the Kansas cattle king, who recently collapsed with a lot of paper he could not meet and is said to have fled to Old Mexico, came to the surface in a case in the district court here yesterday afternoon.

A lot of steers, numbering altogether 586, had been shipped by John C. Morton, Gillett's secretary, to Clay, Robinson & Co. at South Omaha, upon which an attachment was levied for three mortgages claimed to have been given by Morton to the J. C. Bohart Commission company of Chicago.

The cattle were all 4-year-old Panhandle steers and were roughly valued at $29,000. As soon as the papers could be made out Deputy Sheriff Stryker went to South Omaha and seized the entire herd.

The attachment was sued out by the J. C. Bohart company. This concern alleged that it had sold the cattle to Morton and had accepted Morton's papers in the shape of three mortgages aggregating $25,784, but that the shipment to Clay, Robinson & Co. was made to avoid payment of the mortgages.

There were two mortgages of $8,492 each on two lots of 193 steers and another for $8,800 on the remaining 200. The steers were from the Schrader pastures in Marion county, Kansas.

Fearing that the steers would get into the hands of the Union Stock Yards company and Armour & Co. the Bohart company made them defendants with Clay, Robinson & Co. Stryker found the cattle at the Union Stock yards.

The last seen of Gillett was at Fort Worth Tex., and from this has arisen the presumption that he either went to Mexico or to some South American country, although his mother at Abilene, Kan., is said to have received a dispatch from him to the effect that he has sailed from New York to Spain.

Most all of his stock was replevined in Kansas yesterday by his creditors and the Bohart suit here was simply one of a great many of a similar character.

MRS. KINGSTON GETS A DIVORCE. Final Chapter in an Exposition Romance Written in Court.

The last chapter in the divorce suit of Mrs. Frances S. Kingston against Henry B. Kingston was closed yesterday by decree being given to the plaintiff. One peculiarity about the case is that this is the second decree. Over a week ago Judge Fawcett rendered one, whereupon it was discovered that the matter was on Judge Scott's docket and was not yet acted upon.

Kingston came here ostensibly to see the exposition. He represented himself to be a man of considerable affluence and wide business connections. The Hillsdale, at Eighteenth and Douglas, suited him for a boarding place and pretty soon he won the heart of his proprietress, Mrs. Frances S. Dunn.

He tried to get her to mortgage the place but she was a little too smart for that. He went to the Hillsdale, at Eighteenth and Douglas, and he came back he said he had lost his pocketbook. On the strength of this he borrowed some money, about $200. Then after they were married his business affairs made it necessary for him to take a trip at once to Abilene, Kan., to see to the trip and thence to Kansas City, Mo. Their ultimate destination was Denver, where he said he lived; that is, he lived there in a fine house part of the year and in an elegant New York mansion on the other part, most of the time he had to be on the road. At Kansas City he went out of the hotel where they were stopping for the purpose, he told her, of buying a railroad ticket from a scalper. She never saw him afterwards. This was not a great many days after they had been married and wife.

Her suit was based upon the ground of cruelty under the law's provision covering the kind of treatment she received from Kingston, to wit, misrepresentation with intent to defraud, and with humorous stories. The court found that Mrs. Dunn says one of her boarders introduced Kingston to her about a year ago, but she does not know whether this party was in collusion with him or not.

Criminal Matters. Judge Schlaugh had recovered yesterday from his temporary spell of illness and resumed criminal business.

Rhoda McNamara was remanded to the custody of Chief White for the reason that after the writ of habeas corpus had been served another complaint had been made against McNamara in proper form, charging $500 with being necessary to a larceny after the fact. The court, though, taxed the costs up to Chief White because of his tardiness in making his complaint against the prisoner.

In Judge Schlaugh's court the trial of Francis Silver Henry for burglary resulted in a verdict of guilty last night on the first count of night-time entry, not guilty of entering in the daytime. On the night of October 27 Henry broke into the premises of Edwin L. Proctor and got away with a camera, two lenses and other photographic material to the value of $52 and two clarinets and a clarinet case, the latter being said to have been worth $38.75.

The trial of Thomas Sullivan for shooting and killing his friend, Thomas E. Eldred, in the north street viaduct early in the summer is to begin this morning.

Date for Bechel's Hearing. County Attorney Badtger and City Attorney Connell are to get together some time today and agree upon a date for the trial of the case against ex-Auditor W. F. Bechel of the Pacific Express company, in which Erastus Young charges Bechel with the embezzlement of over $20,000.

Bechel was arraigned before Judge Schlaugh and pleaded guilty. The old case, it is understood, is to be dropped. The probability is that Mr. Bechel's trial will be some time next week.

As the sixty-five counts against Bechel are mostly based upon the evidence given by Andrew J. Hunt, the defense will attack all his statements on the ground that his testimony has been coerced by the prosecution on a promise of immunity. Mr. Connell has a typewritten report of a statement made by Hunt, in which he admitted that he was promised immunity if he would testify against Bechel. The admissions made by Hunt also in the recent preliminary hearing before Judge Baxter will be made the most of, a full report having been secured by the defense. Hunt then said that about a week after his Colorado mining deal after the dates of the checks and drafts offered in evidence. He confessed, furthermore, to having drawn up one of the drafts and to having signed Mr. Bechel's name to it. It was for $400.

Suits on City Warrants. Two suits to recover on city warrants have been commenced in the district court. Henry J. Abrahamson sues city clerk, Nineteenth Street, aggregating $3,150, issued in 1894 on account of condemnation of private property, sewer construction and water connections. The other suit was by Scott, Wright & Hammond, bankers of Lyons, Mo., against the city, aggregating $1,565; Katz & Callahan for sloping lots in 1891, aggregating $500, and Katz & Co. in 1892, for sewer improvements aggregating $850. Plaintiffs in the latter case say they purchased the warrants in controversy and that it was with the understanding that a special fund would be created for their payment, but the city has neglected to provide any special fund.

Decides Against O'Connor. The mortgage foreclosure case of Allan Bourne against Thomas O'Connor, involving the mortgage on the property at Eleventh and Harney, near Farnam, and also a question of law as to the adoption by a mother of a signature made by her daughter, the mother being incapable of signing the document, has been decided by Judge Fawcett in favor of the plaintiff. He holds that the mortgage was valid, inasmuch as the mother had knowledge of the signing of her name by her daughter and assented to it.

Winter Saves Notice of Contest. Phil E. Winter is also to enter an election contest. He served a notice upon George W. Shields yesterday that he would contest his election to the county clerk's office on the following grounds: Errors made by canvassing boards in accepting illegal votes and throwing out legal ones, and mal-conduct on the part of the election officers in certain precincts. The following names were elected by 9,196 votes, to Winter's 8,249.

Cattle Suit Settled. The suit of E. P. Lewis & Co. against Clay, Robinson & Co. and the suit of Judge Scott against Kingston on a mortgage given by Mores on cattle afterward sold by Mores to Clay, Robinson & Co. at Kansas City, was settled by the litigants themselves, after a jury had been empaneled, and without any further proceeding in court.

WOMEN ON CURRENT TOPICS. Postponed Program Finally Carried Out and the Numbers Enjoyed by a Good Attendance.

Nature has not been kind to the woman's club of late and Monday of last week was a rainy day. The regular meeting of the club, which was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Garritt, was postponed on that day. The program of current topics would have furnished the program on that day could it have had an audience, and by request it gave that audience yesterday. The first hour was devoted to the news of the week, reviewed by the leader, Mrs. W. H. Garritt. Mrs. Creigh, Mrs. Belden, Mrs. Howells and others touched upon topics of political, commercial and scientific importance. The program was devoted to the general topic of "War and Peace" and was mainly occupied with papers by Miss Laura Scott and Mrs. T. H. Creigh respectively.

Miss Scott presented "Snap Shots at the War," giving a series of pictures which were interspersed with humorous stories. The comic incidents of these later months—those which have become household words everywhere—were developed so effectively as to make them seem fresh, and the paper closed with a tribute to the soldiers who were suffering in the trenches. The point of view differed from that of many in regard to the necessity for war, but she withheld no word of praise for the wonderful results that have been achieved by it. "Where can you go," she said, "and find another country which is not a part of the world? The world is a field an army of 250,000 men, fight in a foreign land under a tropical sun an enemy strongly entrenched, destroy two great fleets and the enemy and compel him to sue for peace, and all in a hundred days." After dwelling for a moment upon the favorable results of the war, Mrs. Creigh passed to the consideration of the future and to the perils which will be incident to the establishment of peace at this time. She closed with some strong arguments against expansion.

Mrs. Elizabeth Marney Connor, principal of the Buffalo School of Elouette, was a guest of the department and she contributed a recitation entitled "The Cowardly Lion." She also gave a second selection in response to the enthusiastic demand of her listeners. Miss Allen, without whom no current topic program is complete, whittled as charmingly as ever. Her selection was "The Story of the Little Boy Who Was Afraid of the Dark." She responded to her encore with a gay little polka.

LETTER FROM MR. GARLAND. Promoter of the "History" Defends His Enterprise and Contends for His Inalienable Rights.

Yesterday The Bee received the following self-addressed note: Ed. Omaha Bee: Your article which appeared in this morning's issue of your paper, under the heading "The History of the City," seems to have assumed the province, as though I were operating beyond the scope of an legitimate enterprise, this proposition is entirely untrue. I have published occasional inaccuracies contingent upon the mode of quick dissemination of news in vogue in the present day. A journalistic journal has always adhered undeviatingly to the high and true functions of journalism—the eradication of wrong from the community. It is not to be conjectured, that, under any circumstances you would publish an unauthenticated statement. I am misquoted in the statement that I characterized the exposition as the "Rosewater gang." The exposition is become a matter of history and the story of its beginnings and final financial triumph, is familiar to us all; the high tribunal of public opinion will finally tally to the world to whom praise or condemnation is due; that it has been a success is unquestioned, but that it cannot reserve rights to itself which are common to every citizen is equally beyond question. It is an individual in the free exercise of those rights inalienable to American citizenship, maintain that I am not in any manner, whatsoever, despoiling or incorporating or individual rights reserved by the exposition in the compilation of a history of the exposition epoch in the history of Omaha. J. BRAXTON GARLAND.

WAR LEE WANTS VENGEANCE

Lincoln Chinese Camps on the Trail of His Countrymen.

HONG SLING THE OBJECT OF HIS REVENGE

Quarrel that Started in the Chinese Village on the Midway May Get Another Hearing Before the Federal Grand Jury.

Wah Lee, a Chinaman from Lincoln, is in the city, hanging around the corridors of the government building, where he is waiting to be called before the United States grand jury, in order that he may unobscure himself and tell his troubles. Wah Lee is now on one of his countrymen and wants to secure his indictment, hence his presence here at this time. The man whom he wants to get into the toils is Hong Sling, president of the Mee Lee Wah Village company, the concern that had a store and Chinese theater success at the exposition during the last summer.

Last spring Hong Sling secured the Chinese concession on the Midway and immediately set himself at work to put in a lot of Chinese men and women. He organized his company and brought over from China 238 persons, of which number thirty-eight were women. After the people reached Omaha Wah Lee came up from Lincoln and interested a traveling missionary, and together the two went into court and brought charges against Hong Sling to secure the custody of three girls, Ching Tu Ling, Lee Shun and Look Fung, whom Wah Lee alleged were being held by Hong Sling's company for immoral purposes. He was successful in the district court, but later on a case was transferred to the United States court, where the war was denied and the girls were given their liberty, after which they proceeded to the Chinese theater on the Midway, where they appeared as actresses during the summer.

At this time Wah Lee is seeking revenge and seeks to secure an indictment against Hong Sling and the balance of the people interested in the Mee Lee Wah Village company on the charge that they brought the Chinese women here and offered them for sale for immoral purposes.

SUIT FOR DENVER BANK STOCK. Judge Munger Listens to the Details of a Deal in Finance.

In that section of the United States court presided over by Judge Munger a jury is considering the issues involved in the case of John W. Schofield, receiver of the Union National bank of Denver, against Edgar M. Morsman, wherein suit is brought to recover on stock that Morsman originally owned in the bank.

Prior to 1894 the Union National bank was one of the financial institutions of the mountain city. It was capitalized for $1,000,000, Morsman being a stockholder to the extent of $5,000. During the close times of 1894 the bank became pressed for money, and, in order to straighten out its affairs, the Treasurer, also, was authorized to wipe out $500,000 of bad debts by reducing the capital stock this amount. This was done and the stockholders turned in their old stock and received a new issue in just half of the amount. Instead of Morsman taking his share in the new issue, he had it issued to his 15-year-old son, Frank, who at the time was in school. Later on the bank became insolvent and a receiver was appointed. Among other acts the receiver sued on the stock, making Edgar M. Morsman, the original owner, defendant, alleging that the transfer to the son was without consideration, and consequently was void.

Children in Trouble. Bessie Stuphan was before United States Commissioner Anderson yesterday afternoon and admitted that she opened a letter addressed to Jesse Harris, written by Willie Jones. The girl, who says her age is 16, said that she committed the crime, but said that she was the writer of the letter. The commissioner postponed his decision until this afternoon. All of the parties are young colored people.

Petitions for Bankruptcy. E. L. Armstrong of Omaha and Peter T. Wynn of Wynnewood have filed their petitions in the United States court, asking to be declared bankrupts. The former alleges that he owes several thousand dollars and is entirely without property or means with which to liquidate this indebtedness. The latter says that he owes $5,000 and has property, a greater portion of which is an equity in some real estate.

North Platte After Its Money. The case of the City of North Platte against Milton Doolittle, receiver of the "North Platte National bank, has been transferred from the state to the United States court. The plaintiff sues for the sum of $331 made by the city treasurer of North Platte in the bank before the institution closed and became insolvent.

CREDIT MEN ARE ORGANIZED. Branch of the National Association Formed—How the New Body is Governed.

The organization of the Omaha branch of the National Credit Men's association was effected at a well attended meeting at the Commercial club last evening. The assemblage was representative of the city's largest wholesale and banking interests. It was presided over by Euclid Martin.

The committee on organization reported through Messrs. E. M. Andreesen and G. W. Hoobler in favor of an organization similar to that maintained by the credit men of North Platte in the bank before the institution closed and became insolvent.

The membership of the association will consist of firms, corporations or individuals engaged in any legitimate line of business where credits are given, instead of having the membership consist of credit men representing such firms. This admits of several representatives of a house enjoying the privileges of membership and being entitled to cast only one vote.

The following were chosen members of the board of directors: E. M. Andreesen, Charles W. H. Picketts, Ward M. Burgess, Euclid Martin, W. S. Wright, J. F. Carpenter, V. B. Caldwell, J. E. Burdick and J. H. Taylor. The first meeting of the directory will take place at noon today at the Commercial club. The organization will then be completed.

The following committees were also chosen: Finance committee—W. H. McChesney, J. F. Carpenter, W. A. Wyatt, J. E. Baum and H. W. Pils. Legislative committee—W. J. Broatch, William H. Robertson, Edward V. Lewis and P. M. Price.

LOCAL BREVITIES. Miss Kate Will will be unable to fulfill her engagement at the Young Women's Christian association rooms this afternoon, having met with an accident.
