Rev. Barnes Defines the Kind of Religion at the hospitals at the county's expense. that Many Practice.

IT IS PLEASANT, BUT NOT JUST THE THING

Narrow and Straight Paths Have Gone Out of Fashion Until People Hardly Know Where They Are Walking.

Rev. W. S. Barnes of the First Presbyterian church took for the subject of his sermon yesterday morning "Well Anchored and told of the danger of drifting away from the things of God, basing his remarks on the first verse of the second chapter of Hebrews. (Revised version.) He said: "A great many of you spend most of you time in surroundings not very religious; some of you have to spend your time in surroundings decidedly irreligious. We all live in an atmosphere more or less worldly and whatever the degree of our plety or the strength of our faith, we are all beset with influences that tend to draw us away from our spiritual moorings. Business associations and even some of our friendships form a current which may cause us unconsciously to drift away from our anchorage. That is the thing this text refers to. There is danger of drifting away.

"Whatever some may say, who like to strike the chords that are pleasing the public ear, the plain truth is that the spirit of our times is not one of deep piety. We are making religion too easy a thing, regarding as a luxury, losing the cross-bearing portion almost entirely; calling some things religious that Christ never celled religious. some things good that Christ never called good, some things indifferent that Christ called bad. We are doing a great deal of religious gendola riding in a boat built only for smooth water, with but one oar and that in the hands of another, and gliding over water in which there is no current and scarcely a ripple. It is easy and pleasant, but maybe there is a drifting away from the simple, plain things we have heard from God, and we are called back to our only safe anchorage.

"In these days of independent thinking, freedom of speech and press, fondness for something a little novel and even slightly erratic, you need to know your own mind and be sure of your foundations. Narrow paths have gone out of fashion and while the broader ones may be better, the tendency is to widen the margin still more until you scarcely know where you are walking and are not at all sure that you are getting anywhere. Indeed, it is hard for anyone to keep his bearings, morally and religiously, nowadays. And if ever there was a time when it was necessary for every individual to think carefully, to lay firm hold upon the old truth that came from God and keep himself well anchored to it-if ever that was needed, it is needed now.

Back to Old Things.

"The world is full of teachers of large pretensions and small qualifications-people who are very ready to tell you what is right and what is not right, who yet have very slight acquaintance with the great standard of right that has been given to guide all human feet. You may be almost overcome by their bold self-confidence. You may be persuaded that you are decidedly old fogvish and entirely behind the times, hampering yourself with scruples that savor more the opening of the nineteenth century than of the close of it. You may be told that Jesus Christ only intended to educate the vorid up to its present por and then expected to withdraw into the background and leave all the morally intelligent people to be their own guides; that bible was only meant to be our primer and we must show our aptness as pupils by leaving that behind and going on for ourselves. "But, my friend, brook no such bold insinuations. Let it be distinctly known that you have not the vanity to call the bible a primer and throw it away until you have earned its lessons in your heart and life. Let it be understood that you will not claim to be a graduate from the school of Christ until the world can clearly see the marks of the Master in the works of your hands. Go back unto the things that you have learned from high sources. Tie up to the old moorings. Don't be afraid to be called narrow and stiff when you remember that to be right often means to be narrow and stiff.

"After all there was something very valuable about that old-fashioned solidity. It was splendid building material, Good, strong lives and sturdy character were built upon it. We must confess to a good measure of moral softness and moral instability among us. The remedy is plain; we must have some things-a good many thingsfirmly settled and securely rested upon. We must know what we believe; we must know what is right; we must know what Christianity teaches; we must not be at sea adrift, but stay well anchored to the old truths that have not perished and never can perish, simply because they are true. "A double-minded man is unstable in all his ways, but he who cherishes the things he has heard from above and fears lest he should drift away from them, he is in a position to live a life of solid comfort and of solid achievement. He can withstand the current of influence in his surroundings that are running away from simple Christianity. That man will have something to stand upon when this world will have vanished from beneath his feet and he will be conscious of nothing left but himself and

LOSE TRADE TO AMERICANS

Scotch Manufacturers Admit They Are Behind the Times.

MUST ADOPT NEWER METHODS OR GIVE UP

In Steel, Engines and Machinery and Leather Goods American Genius Turns the Tide in the World's Marts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 .- The effect of American competition upon Scotch indus-tries in the three great lines, steel, engines and machinery and leather goods, is set out in a report to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce of the State department from United States Consul Fleming at Edinburgh. He bases his report on a review of the year's trade prepared for publication in a Scotch newspaper by experts in the lines named. The opinion of the experts in the case of steel is that the Scotch steelmaker has allowed his plant to get behind the times in capacity, while the American steelmaker has made such enormous strides in production that his extraordinary success seems to threaten the trade of the world. Touching the introduction abroad American locomotives, experts are quoted to show that the American machine, while sold at a lower price than the British locomotive, is inferior in durability and other desirable qualities and is being gradually crowded out by the latter. This is said to be the case n Japan particularly, where the British and American machines have been tried simultaneously for some time past.

The difference in price in favor of the American locomotive is explained by the theory that the new Winchester system of compulsory inspection in England caused the rejection of much valuable material at all stages of manufacture, while the American manufacturer is not obliged to submit to inspection and therefore is enabled to use inferior material.

Yet They Buy Our Engines.

The consul, in rendering this opinion, adds that the Midland Railway company in England has just ordered twenty American locomotives and it would seem that the managers are not specially apprehensive that the American machines cannot pass the British

It is admitted that the Americans and Canadians still retain the bulk of the important trade in agricultural machinery and have practically a menopoly.

There is also an open confession in the case of the boot and shoe trade that the British cannot make a shoe equal to the American product for the same price. The expert says:

"To our annoyance and irritation it must be candidly admitted that their manufactures for beauty of style, handsome appearance and perfection of fit excel ours; in their words, they have 'gone one better' on

The British manufacturers had hoped that the American shoe would be found to lack wearing quality, but there again they were disappointed, for the expert admits that the American shoe is made of the same leather that the British shoemaker uses. In upper leather entirely, and in sole leather to a great degree, the American leather excels the British currier and tanner, and the latter have admitted they must adopt American methods if they are to survive.

A large part of the British colonial trade has been captured by the Americans, who have now wrested away from the mother country almost the whole of the boot and shoe trade of West Australia and Africa.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Discovery of Wolframite Ore in North Lead District Shown to Be Very

LEAD, S. D., Jan. 15 .- (Special.) -- What will undoubtedly prove to be one of the greatest discoveries ever made in the Black Hills has just been made known in this city. In the North Lead mining district is located the Harrison mine, owned by the Kuester Bros. and associates of this city. The property has been a heavy producer of gold for several years, the value of the ore being exceptionally high. The main shoot of ore was twenty-five feet wide and four feet thick, underground, and a few months ago another large ore body was opened on the west edge of the claim, at the surface.

In the last few weeks the gold values in the underground ore shoot have been pinching out. The bre looked so rich that the owners sent samples of it east to experts, who made a careful analysis of it found it to be very rich wolframite ore. The owners of the Harrison mine have kept the matter quiet for a month or more. To make sure of the character and value o the ore they sent for a representative of the Phoenixville Metallurgical Steel and Iron works of Phoenixville, Pa., to come out and examine the ore deposit. Prof. Dillinger, representing that company, arrived this week and after examining the ore immediately placed an order with the Harrison people for forty tons of it, paying $200 a ton. The ore was shipped yesterday. There is but little gold value left in the ore shoot in the mine, the gold having been replaced by the wolframite. As soon as the new discovery was made known in this city, and samples of the ore had been placed on exhibition, nearly every old miner saw in it a well known ore that has been found in many parts of the Black Hills, but has not been considered valuable for the reason that the proper tests for wolframite ore had not been made.

There was a general hustle among the mine owners to their mining claims and samples of what resembles the Harrison wolframite ore have been coming in from all directions to the assayers of the city. It is stated that a number of other finds 1901. Wolframite is a rare metal, it being found principally in Germany and Russia and in small quantities in Arizona, in this country It is a tungstate of iron and manganese and especially valuable for the tungstic acid it contains. One of the chief uses of the acid is for the toughening of steel. Wolframite has other uses which make it one of the most valuable metals taken from the ground. teeman of the national association, and he is of the opinion that fully 1,000 packages of butter will be on exhibition to compete for the liberal prizes offered for the best butter. The rivalry between the various states, as well as between creameries located in the dairy portions of America, will be very keen and the state which wins the championship for good butter will naturally be the envy of all other states which enter into the competition. Several foreign countries will also be represented in the competition for prizes.

Work on the new auditorium building, where the convention will be held, has been rushed and is now far enough advanced to render the huge structure comfortable. A contract for heating the building has been entered into and other arrangements for properly caring for the visitors to the city and delegates to the convention are prac tically completed. The dedication of the new auditorium building will be celebrated next Thursday evening by a grand ball.

FOR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS. Measure for Permanent Appropriation

Not Generally Favored. PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 15 .- (Special.)-The bill introduced in both houses for a permanent appropriation for the state educational institutions provides that there be set aside eight-tenths of 1 mill of the general state levy for the various state institutions. This is to be divided among the institutions as follows: Thirty-seven and onehalf per cent to the State university at Vermilion, 121/2 per cent to the Agricultural college at Brookings, 15 per cent to the Madison Normal school, 15 per cent to the Spear fish Normal school, 10 per cent to the Springfield Normal school, 10 per cent to the School of Mines. This measure is not meet ing with the assurances of success which gives it much foundation for going through. The total general tax levy allowable under the constitution is only 2 mills and this would take nearly half the levy. Beside the specific appropriation which has been made in the past for each specific department of the institutions appears to be the most favorable one. The main argument urged for it is that nearly all the other northwestern states have adopted it and find it satisfactory, but it is not at present considered as one of the probable laws of the present ses-

The bill introduced by Glass to tax notes, mortgages and other interest bearing paper is one which he has been advocating for several sessions and has never been able to get through. In the present case the bill will come into the house with an unfavorable committee report and is likely to meet the fate of its predecessors. Considerable opposition is developing to the bill to compel state and county officers to purchase their supplies in the state. The supporters of the bill are urging it on the ground that such a measure was endorsed in the platforms of both the republican and populist parties and that the passage of such a measure is only keeping faith with the people on platform pledges. It is being strongly fought and while it may pass it is more likely to meet the fate of the same bill in the last session.

There are not yet any evidences of compromise in the penitentiary warden deal and unless it is fixed up in a satisfactory manner within a day or two the democrats, who have declared they would assist the republicans in passing measures over the yeto of the governor, will be put to the Thomas Mason is deputy chairman of the building, lights and grounds department, and Michael Simons is chairman of the musical and entertainment department. "We have come over to secure American representation for the exhibition," said Mr Crawford. "We wish to obtain representation from those handling labor-saving machinery and those engaged in commercial and industrial enterprises. We believe we will gain the sympathy, if not the active cooperation, of the United States government in the exhibition.

"The success of the affair will be largely due to the sympathy obtained in this country. It is to be held the year after the Paris exposition, and we are hopeful of having many of the American exhibits at the former city sent to Glasgow. They will be stored at the expense of the city. OPEN LETTERS FROM Jennie E. Green and Mrs. Harry Hardy.

JENNIE E. GREEN, Denmark, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had been sick at my monthly periods for seven years, and tried almost everything I ever heard of, but without any benefit. Was troubled with backache, headache, pains in the shoulders and dizziness. Through my mother I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has done me so much good. I am now sound and well."

Mrs. HARRY HARDY, Riverside, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham the story of her struggle with serious ovarian trouble, and the benefit she received from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This is her letter:

"How thankful I am that I took your medicine. I was troubled for two years with inflammation of the womb and ovaries, womb was also very low. I was in constant misery. I had heart trouble, was short of breath and could not walk five blocks to save my life. Suffered very much with my back, had headache all the time, was nervous, menstruations were irregular and painful, had a bad discharge and was troubled with bloating. I was a perfect wreck. Had doctored and taken local treatments, but still was no better. I was advised by one of my neighbors to write to you. I have now finished the second bottle of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am better in every way. I am able to do all my own work and can walk nearly a mile without fatigue; something I had not been able to do for over two years. - Your medicine has done me more good than all the doctors." a'
