STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

of directors. C. H. MO A. B. MINOR, Secy. Lincoln, Neb., Jan, 28th, 1899. WOMEN OF BEAUTY DID WORK.

Swindling is as monotonous as ethics or mathematics and the various ways and means resorted to in the last decade of the nineteenth century for obtaining possession of other people's money were matters of common knowledge in the Egypt of Rameses the Great. But the Parisian police now affirm that a new departure has been made on the banks of the Seine. And this is how

One of these fair, false emissaries would stop her cab at the chemist's, come in, and, taking out her purse, ask for another bottle of Dr. Beaumont's elixir. "Dr. Beaumont's what?" said the young man behind the counter. "The elixir; don't you know?" "No; I am afraid I never heard of it." "Oh, how tiresome, and my poor, rheumatic husband will be so disappointed. Are you sure it was not here Fremont b 7:30 am bl0:45 am ticket on the bottle. "It costs 8 francs." That same day the chemist bought the elixir wholesale, laying in a fair stock of it, and meanwhile many of the confreres were doing likewise. But, as nobody called any more on the obliging chemists to buy the elixir, one of the curious confraternity analyzed the specific, which was supposed to relieve rheumatics. The police were then let loose upon the women and the chemical agents, but they had all moved on, leaving no address. They are said to have netted about 10,000 francs by the trick.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has been sold for over fifty years and is still the most popular medicine for throat and lung trouble. ROOTS FOR A BANK

Eccentricities of an Old Miser of Northern New York. Victor Williams, who is reputed to be worth nearly $200,000, and whose mortgages, leases and contracts blanket many a farm in the towns of Lyme, Lorraine and Cape Vincent, New York, walked into Watertown from Three-Mile Bay, where he lives with a nephew and "does chores for his board," last Wednesday, carrying stung across his shoulder a well-blacked pair of cowhide boots, in which were stowed away big rolls of greenbacks, aggregating many thousands of dollars, besides other securiics rivaling in value the contents of many country bank vault. The old capitalist, relates the Syracuse Courier, had been on a collecting tour among the farms of the mentioned towns, gathering in the interest on his mortgages and stuffing it into his bootleg banks, and coming to Watertown deposited his gatherings in the vaults of certain of the city banks after which he started out to walk back to the farm, leaving early that he might reach home in time to take care of the farmer's stock.

In appearance the old man, who must have passed his 80th birthday, is suggestive of anything but a capitalist, as his cowhide boots, which he always carries with him on his trips, are suggestive of anything but the depositories of money and securitles. He wears, winter and summer, a wellpatched pair of brown dentm overalls stuffed into a pair of long-legged rubber boots, while his faded coar is belted around his stooped and bent body by a piece of clothesline with an iron ring in lieu of a buckle. His gray hair protrudes from beneath a low-drawn Scotch cap, and his shrewd and wrinkled visage is framed with a fringe of gray beard. His eyes, in spite of his 80 years, are as keen as a hawk's, and he never for an instant allows his glance to wander from his bootleg banks.

This little bent and shabbily dressed man has made every cent of his wealth by industry, frugality and strict economy and every penny of his possessions has been honestly accumulated. He was born on a little rocky farm near the Burnt Rock school house in the town of Lyme, some eighty years ago, and after attaining his majority worked for neighboring farmers in summer and taught district schools in winter for several years, but evidently gave up the wielding of the birch and spent his life up to a few years ago as a farm hand in unremitting toil, often working in the field for the scant wages of the "hired man" on farms he could have owned in his own name simply by foreclosing the mortgage which he held thereon and which reposed in his cowhide boots.

As he received his board and got his 'washing and mending" done gratuitously on the farms where he toiled, he was able to save nearly every cent of his wages. The first dollar ever earned by him he still keeps and has kept ninety-nine out of every one hundred, he says, earned since. Like many another man, he found that the hardest struggle was to save the first $1,000. Since that was saved and its interest commenced to pile up the rest, he says, has been easy. A few years ago he gave up working among the farmers for wages and has since lived with his nephew near Three Mile bay, but has by no means been idle. Periodically he slings his pair of cowhide boots across his arm and starts out on a collecting tour, taking along his papers and making new leases and contracts, as occasion requires. He has never, it is said, paid a lawyer a cent, always securing a compromise in any difference which has arisen between himself and his tenants. As he owns no farms in his own name, only holding mortgages, etc., he is little bothered by the tax gatherer. He is said to have very decided opinions regarding the income tax law and the taxation of mortgages. Just what disposition Victor Williams will make of his wealth when he arrives at the end of his accumulating none of his friends has the remotest idea. He never married, his entire attention having always been concentrated upon the accumulation of wealth, and he has but few living relatives. It is said by those most familiar with the eccentric old man that it is his purpose to set apart the greater part of his wealth for the building and endowing of an agricultural college, to be located near Watertown, while others maintain that the building of an industrial school, such as that erected by the beneficence of the late Thomas S. Clarkson at Potsdam, is his cherished object To a kinsman he is said to have once stated that he would set aside a certain sum to erect a monument which should be surmounted by a figure copied after himself, bearing slung across the arm a pair of boots. To another friend here he is alleged to have once said that more than $100,000 has passed through his bootleg banks during the years in which he has used them for

ROSES ON PRETTY CHEEKS. Swedish Woman Reveals the Secret of a Good Complexion.

The Swedes are renowned for their beautiful complexions. When a Swedish woman has a clear, eautiful skin, it rivals almost in exquisite loveliness the bloom of the "English rose," or her cousin, the "American lily." To lie in bed and be waited on by a nurse with wild-rose complexion, and to discover that when health returns one may hope to attain to such a complexion by use of very simple means, seems to make up in some degree for the weary days in bed.

"Oh, nurse, if I only had your complexion. If I could change my dull, spotted skin for one like yours, it seems to me l would be willing to jump into a barrel of "Well, den, mess," was the reply, "you can haf it, sure, if you do but one leetle ting. My skin vas all spots vat you call 'peemples,' and the doctor he say it change

The patient followed the above advice for "von haf veek" only, and aiready her skin seems like "that of a little child."

those who desire to change a thick, unresponsive skin for a clear, bright complexion, this simple and practical advice is gladly given by a convalescent. Senator Vest Was Right. Senators Quay, Penrose and Vest stood at the corner of New Jersey avenue and C street, Washington, a day or two ego and street, Washington, a day or two see and waited for an uptown car. They stood there several minutes before a car appeared. Just as it was rounding the corner Senator Penrose exclaimed: "Ah, there she comes!"

"You're wrong," said Colonel Quay,
"There it comes," you should say."

"Well, that just goes to show," said Sen-ator Vest, jokingly, "that two men can be mistaken without knowing it. Both of you are in error. You should say "There he comes."

The car came along just then. Senator Vest was right. It was a mail car.
