INTENDED TO SCARE BUYERS

Resolution Introduced in Senate Against Sale of Union Pacific Lands.

VIEWS OF COMMISSIONER M'ALLASTER

Contention that Company Has Complied with All of the Requires ments Under the Contract with the United States.

In the state senate Thursday a resolution was introduced, calling upon the government have been in the field along the proposed under the homestead law the lands of the positively asserted on the streets of Omaha Union Pacific Railroad company, advertised that the Great Northern is behind this road. for March 6. The resolution cites that the John R. Webster of the Terminal company government's contract with the railroad says he knows nothing of the road. He company specified that if the land granted by does not know where it is incorporated, or the act incorporating the road was not sold who its officers are, but it is said to be a or disposed of within three years after the fact that no corporation could secure the completion of the road, it should revert to passage of such a bill through the senate the government for settlement under the general law. This condition, under the resoution, is alleged not to have been complied

In speaking of the resolution, B. A. Mc-Allaster, land commissioner of the Union Pacific, said: "The resolution is based upon false propositions from beginning to end It is held first that by reverting these lands back to the public domain, settlement would the more quickly take place, while the facts are that in most of the counties where our lands are located there is an abundance of government land open to settlement which the people are not taking. Again, if the road should be deprived of these lands the efforts of the company to promote settlement would be lacking, for it now has a personal interest in having the land occupled. So much for the settlement theory.

'The resolution says the road was completed in 1868, whereas it was not completed until 1872. If the former date were correct the resolution would be in error, for the land grant mortgage was given in 1868, and that has not yet been paid off. If the latter date is correct, the sinking fund mortgage, under which the sale is advertised, would still save the property, for it was given in 1873, within the three-year period after the completion of the road.

"A number of years ago an attempt was made through an auction in the United States court to have these lands forfeited upon a similar basis of reasoning as that contained in this resolution, but after the case reached the supreme court it was there advertising the resources of Nebraska. This decided that the land grant mortgage of 1868 is called "Wheat." It tells of the wheat came under the term 'disposition' as defined in the act enabling the Union Pacific to build its road, and the road was held to have complied with all the conditions imposed by congress.

The only effect the resolution can have, "The only effect the resolution can have, is not a wheel turning west of Leadville as I look at it, is to scare a lot of people and that there is no immediate probability who may contemplate buying some land and jof getting any mail through by that route. induce them to hold back on the ground that the title is not good, and that they might have trouble in retaining possession."

IS AN ERA OF MAMMOTH THINGS. Earger Freight Cars Must Come to

Keep Pace with Times. Protests by the Omaha jobbers against the possible increase in the minimum weight of a carload from 24,000 to 30,000 pounds, did not come as a surprise to the freight men of the local railroads. A similar protest was made by the Chicago wholesalers a few weeks ago when the eastern trunk lines established that minimum. The freight fices indicated a general breaking up of the men are not disposed to discuss the matter cold spell, with light snow reported from men are not disposed to discuss the matter at this time officially, because they say the increase has not been made, and until it with no snow west of Valentine, while the is discussion would be out of place. The Union Pacific has reports of snow from traffic association will meet in a few days, along its lines to about the same extent as and it will then be decided what to do in One Omaha freight official, in talking of the proposition, said: "This proposed action is strictly in line with the spirit of consolidation which is everywhere prevalent in this country, among railroads as with other lines forts of business. It is the desire for economy and the better handling of a growing and enlarging business. Railroads are buying larger engines and larger cars. No road nowadays buys a car of less than 60,000 pounds capacity, and they run as high as 80,000 pounds. They consolidate two cars into one, two trains into one, and pull them with one engine, instead of a double-header It is a measure to utilize idle capital. If small loads are to be the rule, it is unneccessary to buy cars costing $800, when $600 cars will answer the purpose. It would be foolish to put $8,500 into an engine, when one for $6,500 would do the work.

"This is a progressive age. This is a growing country. It has ceased to be a 24,000pound period. People are doing business larger stocks. The wholesaler puts in bigger invoices, and the railroads are preparing to carry heavier loads. It is the natural sequence of progress, and to oppose it is to admit that this section of the country is making no advancement.

and less than carload lots is not sufficient in hauling waste space in their cars. In almost every character of freight carried by railroads the percentage of waste is about one-third of the car's space. The present minimum is not a carload of anything except hay, feathers and bird cages.

"The proposed new minimum will not increase freight rates, but will require larger purchasers. Merchants will have to buy larger stocks, of course, but this will be no hardship. It will not be a burden in these times for a wholesaler to purchase in greater quantities, and the retailer can postpone his order a few weeks longer and then buy canal. Immediately following the departure more than he originally contemplated. It is simply establishing new conditions, and when the business public becomes accuscomed to them and shapes its affairs accordingly there will be no cause for complaint."

It remains true, however, that after the eastern roads established the minimum at 20,000 pounds the Grand Trunk announced. tust before the new order went into effect that it would accept shipments of everything except provisions on the basis of 24,000 pounds, and on provisions the minimum would be 26,000. This break from the agreement was something of a surprise to the other eastern roads, but was halled with rejoicing by the Chicago shippers. A few days ago the Big Four announced it would meet the Grand Trunk reduction, and it is expected now that all the eastern roads will do likewise. Under these conditions it is not believed the western roads will make a change unless the eastern lines return to their agreement and adhere to it.

Revives the Old Fight. The rivalry between Port Arthur and Sabine Pass has again been pushed to the front by an order from Secretary Alger that work on the Port Arthur canal be suspended. The Port Arthur canal when complete will give a harbor as an outlet for the Port Arthur railroad, and is the real basis of that road's claims to desirability as a southern outlet for the grain of the west. The fight between the rival interests at Port Arthur and Sabine Pass has been on for several years, but lately it was supposed that some sort of truce had been agreed upon. The friends of the railroad have taken action to have the secretary's order annulled, and both houses of the Texas legislature have passed resolutions, requesting the congressional delegation from that state to take hold of the matter and remedy what they consider to a great injustice to a large portion of the people of Texas. The local officers of the Port Arthur route are engaged in getting protests from the business men of this city to forward to Secretary Alger against his ruling, and numerous telegrams have been sent to Washington by many of the leading men of the city who have political as well as commercial influence with the secretary.

An Old Rumor Comes to Life. The passage by the senate of a bill grant-ng to the Sloux City & Omaha railroad ight of way through the Omaha and Winnebago Indian reservation revives the rumors of the Great Northern road seeking an entrance into Omaha. All the proposed plans for the route of this road from Sloux City to Omaha contemplated crossing the river at the former place and coming down on the west side of the river. Surveyors interfere and throw open to settlement line for some months, and it is frequently

NEWS FOR THE ARMY MEN

Promotion of Major Towar is a Grat ifying Announcement to His Friends.

Another lieutenant colonel now has an office at the army headquarters in this city. Major A. S. Towar, chief paymaster for the Department of the Missouri, has been nominated by President McKinley for promotion to lieutenant colonel and deputy paymaster general. The promotion is none the less gratifying to the major's friends because it has been expected. It will date back to the retirement of Brigadier General Stanton, and on a greater scale. The consumer is buying carries with it an increase of $500 a year in more goods. The merchant is carrying salary. Major Towar was in Omaha as clerk to General Alvord in 1869 and 1870, when the later was paymaster for the Department of the Platte. He gave up the position in 1870, because he thought the outlook for an appointment to the regular service was too dim. In 1875, however, when General Al-"Rates are going down with the prices of vord became paymaster general of the army, all kinds of merchandise and produce, and he was instrumental in having Major Towar the difference between rates for carload lots appointed to the pay corps by President Grant. Since that time the major has been to make up the loss incurred to the roads stationed at different times at posts in New Mexico, Arizona, Wyoming, Michigan, New York and Nebraska. Major Duval, purchasing commissary to this department, is now engaged in moving his family and household effects to 2514 Capitol avenue, where he will have his residence in the future. Since his arrival in Omaha the major has had his home at the Madison. If there are no further countermanding orders the Twelfth infantry will leave Jefferson Barracks today for New York, where it will board the transport Sheridan for its trip to Manila by way of the Suez of the Twelfth from the Barracks a battalion of the Sixteenth infantry will take possession of the post. It is believed that Major H. C. Ward, who was stationed at Omaha hast summer during the exposition, will have command of this battalion

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The subcommit tee of the senate committee on military affairs, having in hand the bill for the reorganization of the army, today placed their labors in the hands of the full committee. A large number of comparatively unimportant amendments were made, the most significant being the following:

The house provision abolishing the can-teen is stricken out and the following substituted for it: That in the centeens estab-lished under regulations of the army no liquous shall be sold, except malt liquous and non-intoxicating beverages, and this shall apply to all encampments and forts and all premises used for military purposes by the United States.

the number of calls for assistance this year far exceed those of last winter. He says he be did during the entire winter of 1897-98, or during any winter within his recollection. It has required from 150 to 200 tons of coal to run the Associated Charitles through the winter, but the organization has a record unless it made a creditable showing of its of the issuance of 250 tons already this win-In the last eight days forty tons of coal have been given out, the maximum for any day being reached last Saturday, when he presumes that some unworthy persons have drawn coal during the recent severe warm when a wife and children are invelved.

"We have numerous calls for clothing and mand is great and we can use a large quantity of good, warm clothing for both sexes between now and spring.

Mr. Laughland says that the organization is having some difficulty in supplying the families having some member ill. In the majority of cases where a strange man to the organization makes application for assistance it is because he has sickness in hi family and the demand for a warm room is immediate and constant, to say nothing of the expense for medicines and medical care. The county is very liberal in the distribution of groceries, but in these cases it is found necessary to supplement the sub stantial food distributed by the county with some delicacy which the afflicted member can relish. He has something like a dozen families now with some member ill, so that delicacies are required to hasten their

Mr. Laughland remarked: "The coal fund of the Associated charities has been exhausted and subscribers thereto seem to have lost sight of the fact that since the fund was started colder weather has existed than during any previous time in the history of the city. The cold spell has been so protracted that it has been impossible for poor workmen to make their supply of fuel carry them through the winter. At a meeting of the poor the other evening one man said that he could manage to make enough to supply his family with groceries, but it would be absolutely impossible for him to buy his coal.
