VOYAGE UP ORINOCO RIVER

United States Minister Loomis' Trip on Gunboat Wilmington.

REMOTE COUNTRY RESPECTS OUR PRESTIGE

Several Important American Enterprises Are Found in Valley of Orinoco—Developing El Callas Gold Regions.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) CARACAS, Venezuela, March 1.—Francis B. Loomis, United States minister to Venezuela, has returned from an interesting trip up the Orinoco on the United States gunboat Wilmington. The voyage along the north coast of Venezuela and up the river, where a period of nearly two weeks was passed, is likely to have some far-reaching commercial, if not political, results.

Mr. Loomis said today, when questioned by a correspondent regarding his experience that it was a most suggestive one and that he would endeavor to give American exporters the benefit of his observations in a report of the trip. There are several important American enterprises in the valley of the Orinoco and all were visited. The effect of his presence in those remote parts on board a modern gunboat has increased American prestige and given a new sense of security to Americans engaged in business in eastern Venezuela.

Investing American Money. Careful inquiry was made by Mr. Loomis into the present condition of the gold industry in the El Callas region. He is convinced that there will be a great increase in interest there in the course of a year or so, and he has been informed that a great deal of American money is now preparing for investment in the district. At Port of Spain, Trinidad, the largest of the British West India islands, except Jamaica, Mr. Loomis was the guest at the government house for a week of the governor of Trinidad, Sir Hubert Edward Jernih, and he brought back to Caracas a personal invitation to Senator Andrade, president of Venezuela, to visit him next month, when President Andrade makes his proposed trip up the Orinoco.

Thirty per cent discrimination against goods imported into Venezuela from Trinidad will then be discussed. It is hoped a satisfactory solution of the difficulty will be reached between Senator Andrade and the British colonial governor. In this and other unofficial ways Mr. Loomis has done much to strengthen the present good relations between England and Venezuela.

Private advisers from the points visited by the United States minister all dwell on the facts that he was everywhere received with consideration, and his coming was hailed with genuine enthusiasm. Balls and banquets were given in his honor at all the larger places.
