Check to Imperialism Produced by Increased Taxes-Interesting Observations of an Amerienn Abrond.

An American residing in London, writing to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican on the jingo policy of Great Britain, notes a marked check to imperialism there, notwithstanding the efforts of ship builders, syndicates and promoters to uphold it. He says the honest thinking public men are decidedly opposed proval from various classes hitherto indifferent, prompted by the certainty of new taxes to make up the deficit in the budget. The additional revenue is not likely to be raised by an increased income tax, as that is already high; it will probably be put on themselves ridiculous by passing brawling the necessaries of life and in that event the working classes will make life a burden for judgments on all things all day long. the jingoes and drive them from power.

As to those who do know and care, I have made it a point to ask for opinion, and I do not know one person for whose opinion I have any respect who does not think that the United States is making a mistake. Ten months ago I talked with Mr. Courtney, by far our most benest public man, or this point, and be felt so strongly that he contributed an article to an American journal arguing strongly against annexation, as well as against an Anglo-American alliance deliberately intended to involve the two peoples in a joint jingo enterprise. Mr. Morley takes the same view. So does Sir Wilfrid Lawson, so does Mr. Labouchere. so does Frederic Harrison, so do all the sober and peace-loving men here. And who are those who are so fond of 'our American brethren' when once they have launched into the problems of the brown and yellow races and taken up the 'white man's but den?" Lord Salisbury himself was a bitter enemy of the union in the civil war, as was his present colleague, the duke of Devonshire, who were secessionist colors at a ball in New York in 1862, or thereabouts, and I am credibly informed that one of Mr. Chamberlain's carliest speeches in Birmingham was in favor of the southern cause When the tried friends of the United States stand on one side and on the other are persons and papers that have never shown over spicuous friendliness, to say the least, what conclusion should be drawn by a rational observer?
