It was reported that several gangs of men were working there with seines all Wednesday night, and that the next morning two wagonloads of fish were boldly offered for sale on the city market. Thursday night it was determined to teach the depredators an affective lesson, and just before 10 o'clock a party fifteen policemen and deputs sheriffs reached the lake. They divided

Brown and Frager are well known and will be arrested if they have not left the city. Local sportsmen have combined to employ an attorney to prosecute the offenders and the association proposes to push the matter vigorously. It s believed that last night's raid has practically broken up the gang, but measures will be taken to continue the patrol of the lake for the present.

Deputy Sheriffs Shand and Stryker spent all day yesterday in the vicinity of Cut Off lake looking for the nets have been used in the recent illegal fishing in that body of water. They succeeded in tracing and confiscating two large nets, in addition to the one that was secured by the posse the night before, and it is believed that these are all the large nets that were in use. They also ecured some information in regard to the four seiners who got away from the officers and they will probably be located very soon.

UNSTAMPED PAPERS

Much Annoyance is Being Caused the Internal Revenue Office by Negligent Persons.

The failure of parties to properly stamp leeds and other instruments of record is causing the internal revenue office some annoyance. This failure the officials attribute to negligence or ignorance. It is not believed that there is any desire to defraud the government. The collector of the department has gone over the records in many of the counties and finds numerous instruments that are not properly stamped. Speaking of the duties of registers of deeds and county officials Collector Houtz says that the law plainly makes it the duty of such officials to see that instruments offered for record or filing are properly stamped. Until so stamped, even if ad mitted to record, such records or instru-ments cannot be admitted in evidence in any of the courts and in fact they are not considered as legal instruments. After the filing, if it is discovered that the instru ments do not carry the necessary stamps there is a way out of the difficulty. The law provides that the instruments may be taken to the collector, who shall affix and cancel the additional stamps required, after which the party presenting such instruments may take them back to the register or clerk and have noted on the margin of the record in oil and water colors exhibited by Mr. that the stamp tax has been paid.
