REVIEWING THE TESTIMONY

Wade Court of Inquiry Reads Documentary Evidence and Formulates Its Report.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Wade court of inquiry devoted today's session to reviewing testimony and tonight held another session for the purpose of reading reports, letters, depositions and other papers bearing upon the French investigation. The most interesting matter developed was instructions to the court of inquiry which were delivered to the members of the court on February 20 last. These instructions were read by Colonel Davis in order to make them a part of the record and among them were the following: "The character and quality of the meat refrigerated and canned furnished the army: how purchased; how shipped to the soldiers; if good when shipped; what was cause of its deteriorating, if any?"

When were these reports first made and by whom? If the allegations of the major general commanding are based on facts, the cause, fix the responsibility for the fact, that the guilty may be properly punished. Was it the meat of commerce? Was it inspected by government inspectors as provided by law? Was it a ration in the army? If good when purchased, what made it bad? Was it anybody's neglect or fault and if so, whose?"

Both Major Lee and Colonel Davis submitted a number of reports and a mass of correspondence. Among the documents read by Colonel Davis was a letter from the Washington attorney of Messrs. Armour and Co., dated June 15, 1898, after the contract for beef had been let asking for a reconsideration of the subject in the interest of their clients and an answer by General Egan as commissary general opposing the request. In their letter they represented that Armour controlled the Powell process for the treatment of meat and that this fact gave them such an advantage in the preservation of fresh beef as to justify the War department in disregarding the distance and awarding them the contract. In his endorsement General Egan referred to the letter of the attorneys as a "special pleading" and said there was no reason in this plea why the subject should be reopened.

The document was introduced by Colonel Davis to show that General Egan had not been influenced by the representations concerning the Powell process. Major Lee submitted a deposition by J. S. Armstrong, president of the Armstrong Packing company of Dallas, Tex., which, among other things, set forth the substance of a conversation with General Egan. Mr. Armstrong was one of the bidders for beef in block and said that while he was here in Washington he discussed with General Egan the question of beef being kept for seventy-two hours after being taken from the refrigerator. Mr. Armstrong said he expressed the opinion that it was impossible, to which General Egan replied that Swift and Company, and the Armour, both had knowledge of a process by which beef could be kept for that length of time.

Fresh Changes in Alaskan Boundary Proposed by Canada.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—An unexpected delay has occurred in the negotiations toward an Alaskan boundary modus vivendi, which makes the future of the modus vivendi problematical. Extended conferences on the subject were held today, the result being a further postponement of the principal difficulty arising from dealing with Ottawa as well as London, this dual negotiation causing great delay and complication. At the outset the United States proposed a modus vivendi with a temporary line along certain peaks. The British ambassador forwarded this to London and Ottawa. The Canadian officials have now proposed changes in the line and after considerable delay the authorities in London approve the changes proposed by Canada. It is not stated what the respective lines are, but they are sufficiently apart to make it quite unlikely that any immediate agreement can be reached, even of a temporary nature, as to the boundary.

American Teachers in Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—In a report to the secretary of war Dr. Victor S. Clark, subdirector of public instruction in Porto Rico, says that only $5 a month can be offered to American teachers with the transportation to the island. English-speaking supervisors are men and through them it is hoped to weed out abuses and develop some system of control. Dr. Clark has prepared a revised course of study, containing only such subjects as are taught in American schools. About 525 schools are reported in the island and a little over $300,000 is annually paid for their support. A great desire is manifested to learn English.

FREEDMAN REFUSES TO REPLY

His Defiant Action Before Most Committee Enrages Mr. Moss.

HANDS HIS STATEMENT TO THE REPORTERS

Abraham Himmelwright Won't Answer Questions on Stand, but Tries to Enter into Discussion and is Escorted Out of the Room.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Two exciting sessions of the Mallet investigating committee were held today. A feature was the refusal of the witnesses to give testimony. Another feature was the defiant attitude of Andrew Freedman on the stand, and still another feature was the question from the committee room of Abraham Himmelwright of the Reobling company, when he insisted upon making a statement after he had refused to answer a great majority of questions put to him by Mr. Moss, counsel for the committee.

The chief interest centered in Andrew Freedman, who, within recent years had been known as a warm personal friend of Mr. Croker's and associated with him in a business way. Mr. Freedman was more than ordinarily forcible in his answers to some of the questions, and many of the questions he refused to answer at all. At other times he was rebuked by both Mr. Moss and Chairman Mallet for what they termed "impertinence."

Hands Statement to Reporters.

Mr. Freedman then got down from the stand, and, turning to the newspaper representatives, he handed them a paper saying: "Gentlemen of the press, here is a statement of the entire business of Mr. Platt's companies and of all of the companies for publication." This was a paper relating to the business done by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, in which Mr. Freedman and Mr. Croker are interested, and contained information which Mr. Moss had desired to get at during the course of the examination. Mr. Moss, therefore, was very indignant at the action and denounced the witness vehemently and recalled him to the stand. The questions which he put with regard to the paper to Freedman were not answered, the witness refusing absolutely to state by whom the paper had been prepared.

At this juncture Mr. Moss took occasion to say that those witnesses who were in contempt would be dealt with later in a regular and logical way. When Mr. Croker was on the stand a few days ago he testified that he had received dividends from the company, while today it developed that the company had not paid dividends. Mr. Freedman explained on the stand, in reply to a series of questions, that Mr. Croker is a stockholder in the company and is interested in the Metropolitan district; that he, the witness, received a salary of $15,000 a year as manager for this territory, and commissions, and that he divided money with Mr. Croker. Mr. Freedman, however, refused to name the sum or to say how much Croker and said further that he thought Mr. Croker might be under the impression that the money paid him was in the way of a dividend.

Nature of Croker's Share.

Mr. Moss said: "I ask you if you ever told Mr. Croker or gave him to understand that the money paid him out of this bond company are dividends?" "Mr. Croker might have understood that, and he really did so understand it," said Mr. Freedman. "It really is dividends on the business that was done; it was not stock dividends, but a business dividend; that covers Mr. Croker's share."

Flushing Gas Company's Affairs.

Immediately after Mr. Mallet called the committee to order this morning a Mr. Henderson, who was among the spectators, rose and addressing Mr. Mallet stated that he was a lawyer, and desired the privilege to cross-examine certain witnesses. He apparently represented Police Captain Price, and was anxious to show that the statement of the business success of the company was untrue. Mr. Mallet said that Mr. Henderson's request would be considered later.
