Epilepsy Cured. Had Fifteen to Twenty-five Fits a Day and Was Insane for Ten Long Years. Permanently Cured By Dr. Miles' Nervine.

My daughter was having from fifteen to twenty-five fits a day when she commenced to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and after taking one bottle and a half box of Nerve and Liver Pills the fits stopped.

Seven years later Mr. Myers again writes: "My daughter is all right and has had no return of that terrible disease."

"From childhood up I had epileptic fits, averaging from six to eight a month. Between these spells I suffered with the most excruciating headaches, holding my head for hours at a time."

"When two years ago my little son suffered a severe attack of La Grippe, and as a result his nervous system was completely shattered."

"I had been told that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills would be sent absolutely free of cost to any person who would send name and address on a postal card, requesting the samples, and mentioning the name of this paper."

CONTEST FOR SPEAKERSHIP

Reed's Retirement Causes a Lively Hustle Among Aspirants for His Chair.

BATTLE ROYAL TO OCCUR NEXT DECEMBER

Present indications seem to point to the West being a strong factor in the fight.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(Special).—The departure of ex-Speaker Reed with his family for Europe on Wednesday and his confirmation of the much discussed question of his leaving political life for the bar somewhat clear the atmosphere so far as the speakership is concerned.

It is possible that the Minnesota delegation will give an honorary vote to Congressman Tawney of that state and will then go in a body to some one of the western candidates to be agreed upon.

Illinois will present as its candidates Congressmen Hopkins and Cannon, while Ohio may possibly present as its candidate Charles H. Grosvenor.

This completes the list of the western men who will be prominent in the race for the speakership.

In speculating upon the contest for the speakership and assuming for the purposes of argument that it will take, to some extent at least, a sectional aspect, it is well worth while to consider some of the facts and figures which must necessarily come into this contest of greatest importance.

Conceding that the vacancies now existing in the house of representatives by reason of deaths since the adjournment of the Fifty-fifth congress will be filled by men holding the same political views as those who have died, the republicans will have 184 votes, in which the western states, with Ohio left out, will have eighty-eight votes, or within five votes of dominating the nomination of a speaker.

The western forces will line up as follows: California, 6; Illinois, 14; Indiana, 9; Iowa, 11; Kansas, 6; Michigan, 12; Minnesota, 7; Missouri, 3; Nebraska, 2; North Dakota, 1; Oregon, 2; South Dakota, 2; Washington, 2; Wisconsin, 10; Wyoming, 1.

Opposed to this will be the eastern contingent, controlling seventy-one votes, as follows: Connecticut, 4; Delaware, 1; Maine, 4; Maryland, 6; Massachusetts, 10; New Hampshire, 2; New Jersey, 6; New York, 16; Pennsylvania, 20; Rhode Island, 2; Vermont, 2.

Where the southern or border contingent will line up in the fight is a much mooted question, although by reason of sectional lines the south will probably be found with the west and will present ten votes to one of the other of the candidates from that section.

These republican votes come from the following states: Kentucky, 2; North Carolina, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1; West Virginia, 3. Should Ohio unite with the west on a choice for speaker and throw its fifteen votes to that section, the end would easily be attained; but should Ohio, on the other hand, decide to unite its fortunes with the east, then the contest would indeed be puzzling, leaving the result very greatly in doubt, but Ohio is evidently playing a foxy game and does not propose to be drawn into any combination, until it sees just exactly which way the animal is going to jump.

If the east could bring to its support the entire Ohio delegation and the southern contingent it would have the nomination by a majority of three; the west with its eighty-eight votes, independent of Ohio, can secure the nomination of the speaker by the aid of the southern delegation, with a majority of five; if it can draw Ohio it has the nomination with a majority of ten; if it can carry its own vote solid and secure five votes from either the southern contingent or from Ohio it can be successful. Under these circumstances it will be seen that if mere personal considerations do not outweigh the general geographical political considerations the speaker of the Fifty-sixth congress is very likely to come from west of the Allegheny mountains, in which case David B. Henderson, Hopkins or Cannon seem to have the best grasp upon the situation, as at present outlined, but one must not lose sight of the fact that New York and Pennsylvania, together with the eastern delegation, must be reckoned, and Sherman and Payne, who are both pronounced candidates, have a personal following that may defy sectional lines and result in the selection of one or the other for the most important position in the gift of the people outside of the presidency.

Galliard Hunt of the State department, son of a former secretary of the navy and one of the able men connected with the state portfolio, said to The Bee correspondent the other day in reply to a question that it was true the shields in the Library of Congress were all incorrectly painted; that his brochure on commencing with a white stripe, or argent, they commenced with a red stripe, or gule, and that this mistake was due to the artistic thought of the painters rather than to the historical correctness of the shield as provided in his book.

The device for the armorial achievements and the reverse of the great seal of the United States, as described by Mr. Hunt in his brochure on the great seal, is as follows: Arms, paleways of thirteen pieces, argent and gules; a chief, azure; the escutcheon on the breast of the American eagle displayed, holding in his dexter talon an olive branch, and in his sinister a bundle of thirteen arrows, all proper, and in his beak a scroll inscribed with the motto, "E Pluribus Unum." For the crest: Over the head of the eagle, which appears above the escutcheon, a glory, or, breaking through a cloud, proper, and surrounding thirteen stars, forming a constellation, argent, on an azure field. Reverse: A pyramid, unfinished, in the zenith, an eye in a triangle, surrounded with a glory proper. Over the eye these words, "Annuit cœptis." On the base of the pyramid the numerical letters MDCCCLXXVI. And underneath the following motto, "Novus Ordo Seclorum," meaning simply a new order of centuries. These two mottoes above and below the pyramid being taken probably from two passages in Virgil, "Annuit cœptis" meaning "The eye of Providence." In connection with this eye which has yet to be drawn, it is interesting to note the relationship Thomas Jefferson had with its conception. In the old prints having relation to the seal there is reference made to an epitaph, presumed to have been engraved upon a cannon at Martha bay, Jamaica. From many circumstances, however, it has now been discovered that Dr. Benjamin Franklin, who was an inveterate practical joker, wrote the epitaph and attached to it Jefferson's motto, "Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God," which Jefferson wanted to be made the motto upon the seal of the United States. The inscription upon the cannon, to which allusion has been made, and which is considered by many scholars and savants as one of the best examples of English of that time, is as follows:

Stranger, Ere thou pass, contemplate this cannon, and regard the eye which looks upon thee. That near its base lies deposited the dust of John Bradshaw; Who, nobly superior to selfish regards, Despising like the pageantry of courtly splendor, The bias of calumny, And the terrors of royal vengeance, Freed us from the illustrious band of Heroes and Patriots, Who fairly and openly adjudged To a public and exemplary death; Thereby presenting to the amazed world, And transmitting down through applauding ages, The most glorious example Of unshaken virtue, And impartial justice Ever exhibited on the blood-stained theatre of human actions. Oh, Reader, Ask not, oh, till thou hast blest his memory, And never, never forget, That rebellion to tyrants Is obedience to God.
