> The VanDusen primary election law, passed by the legislature at its recent session, pracically does away with the old plan of primaries and gives them dignity of general elections. However, the law does not become operative this year, so that it will have not effect upon the primaries this fall. ....AMUSEMENTS ....

The vaudeville bill offered at the Creigh ton-Orpheum this week is well up to standard of this theater and the eight acts that comprise it furnish two hours and half of very acceptable amusement. The our hits are Boyle and Graham, the Missea looke and Clinton, Lewis and Elliott and Arthur Amsden. Boyle and Graham offer a farce comedy sketch that beams with funnyisms of an hilarlous character. Miss Graham does a character impersonation of a country girl that is almost identical with that done by Rose Melville, who was seen here recently with Matthews & Bulger. Both Mils Graham and Miss Melville claim to be the originator of the character. How ever, Miss Melville is so much the better impersonator of it that Miss Graham would be wise not to essay it anywhere that the former has been seen.

Misses Cooke and Clinton offer a shootin act unlike anything ever seen here before. They accomplish some remarkable feats of target practice with 22-caliber Winchester rifles, among which is the playing of a solo upon an upright metallic xylophone by shooting at the keys instead of striking them with the usual hammers used for this

Arthur Amsden is a musical monologist of rare ability who plays on a varied assortment of instruments. One of the most remarkable things he does is to play a cornet duct, playing upon two cornets at the same time. This is exceedingly difficult and Mr. Amsden is the only musical artist who has ever ac complished it. He also does some very clever clarionet tongueing.

Lewis and Elliott made a hit in a bright and witty talking act. Favor and Sinclain offered a sketch entitled "A High Roller," in which some clever character work way done, otherwise the act consisted principally of "horse play."

Clarice Vance, a southern melody singer the De Bolien brothers, horizontal bar performers, and the Le Moyne trio of acrobats complete the bill.

The management of the Trocadero theater has so far kept its promise to present vaude-

Another Irish team is Ben Fox and Minnie Summers, whose sketch, entitled "The Irish Rehearsal," seemed to please the audience. James McAvoy, with his quaint stories and new parodies, completes the bill.
