GUARD OF HONOR AROUND THE CASKET

Funeral Services to Be Held at Holy Trinity Church-Members of the. Volunteer Regiments to Be Present.

LINCOLN, May 27 .- (Special Telegram.)-A crowd of more than 3,000 people was at the Burlington depot here tonight to meet the train bearing the remains of Colonel John M. Stotsenberg and the funeral party from Omaha. The train was a few minutes late in arriving, but it pulled into the railroad yards at 9:05. The casket was at once removed from the express car and taken to the state capitol building.

All along the line of the procession people congregated long before the time for the arrival of the train. The streets were lined with carriages for nearly the entire distance was not definitely known what time the funeral party would arrive in the city until after 6 o'clock. Until that time it was thought the remains would be brought to Lincoln on the train arriving here at o'clock and at that time a large number of people congregated at the depot. It is estimated that fully 10,000 people turned out to witness the procession from the depot. The line of march was from the Burlington depot at the foot of P street to Tenth, south on Tenth to O, cast on O to Fifteenth and south on Fifteenth to the capitol building. The procession was led by a cordon of police, followed by the State University band. Next came the four companies of university cadets, which had come down from the camp at Ashiand as a funeral escort. Then came Hagenow's band and just ahead of the hearse was Company F, Second regiment. The hearse was drawn by two splendid white horses and directly behind was led Colonel Stotsenberg's war horse, with its full field trappings. The pallbearers and escort were made up of officers and veterans of the three Nebraska regiments and closing up the parade the carriages of the funeral party and state officials and the 150 veterans of the civil war marching two abreast.

The parade during its entire length was viewed by a crowd such as is seldom seen on the streets of Lincoln. At the depot a company of about 200 old soldiers was drawn up at open order at the head of the procession. The escort and the balance of the procession, the hearse and carriages passed through the open lines, the old soldiers bringing up the rear.

The Pallbearers.

The pallbearers with a single exception were men who fought in Colonel Stotsenberg's regiment at Manila. They were Otto Meir, D. W. Day, W. H. Martin, D. Lampret, Charles Gullion, Company D; Otto Meier, Company H: Jack Anderson, Troop K; Elmer Okane, Company D. The honorary pallbearers were Captain Schwarz and Lieutenants Morrison, Beck, Schwind, Clark, Gascoigne and Pace of the Third regiment.

At the capitol the remains were removed to the senate chamber. A guard of honor was at once established around the casket and only officers and others who had charge of the arrangements were admitted inside of the building. Tomorrow morning the remains will lie in state in the senate chamber from 8 o'clock until 10:30.

Mrs. Stotsenberg and Lieutenant Cavanaugh, who accompanied her from Manila, are the guests of C. O. Whedon, who was a strong personal friend of Colonel Stotsenberg. Colonel Vifquain and Captain Campbell had charge of the arrangements for the procession. The party that accompanied Mrs. Stotsenberg to Lincoln from Sidney was comprised of Adjutant General Barry, Colonel J. C. Bills, Lieutenant Cavanaugh and Major Williams.

While the cyclone was in progress at Hartwell, it caught a header, picked it up bodily and carried it a quarter of a mile and let it drop upside down in a grain field. The path of the cyclone was about 100 feet wide, but varied in places. Everything demolished by the storm is a perfect loss, as none of the farmers were carrying tornado or cyclone insurance. Those who were nearest the cyclone say the noise was almost deafening and they are not desirous of another such experienc.
