A cloudburst had washed the sand and gravel roadbed, leaving the track unsupported for a stretch of twenty feet. The rails and ties held together, and there was nothing to indicate the insecurity of the road. The engine struck the washout and was derailed in the ditch beside the track, and behind it the cars were piled in a confused heap. The mail car tipped over, and was telescoped by the baggage car behind, while the rear end of the baggage car in turn telescoped the smoker. The roof of the smoker ploughed its way through the day coach, while the lower talf of the latter crushed through the sleeper.

The engineer and fireman jumped from the train and escaped with slight injuries. Mr. Schwette of Alton, Ill., was brought to this city and died at 5 o'clock. He was badly cut about the head, and it was evident from the beginning that his injuries were fatal. He was on his way to Minneapolis, where he was to be married today He asked his physician to telegraph his father and his sweetheart. "Tell her," he gasped, "that I have been detained by a wreck and cannot keep the appointment on time. Don't say any more."

The news was brought to this city by a mail clerk, the fire whistle was blown, a switch engine and coach hastily prepared and a relief train sent very speedily. The injured passengers were extricated from the debris and brought here. Another relief train soon arrived from Cedar Rapids and took a number of the seriously injured to be treated in the hospitals in that city.

E. J. Day of Alton, a passenger, said: "The train was running at good speed, and at a point about three or four miles from Waterloo it left the track. The engine and baggage car were thrown about ten feet. The engineer evidently had his engine under excellent control, as I never saw such a sudden stop. The smoker, where I sat, telescoped the baggage car, and I found myself with the brakeman on the roof of the day coach."

his headquarters in this city, suffered more severely than any other of the Waterloo passengers. He was found in the second passenger coach, to which he had gone after leaving the smoker, his arm crushed between the front end of the sleeper and the side of the car, holding him fast in the wreck. He did not lose consciousness, but begged that his arm be sawed off so as to set him free. When it was found that there was no possibility of saving the arm; this was done, the amputation being effeeted by a common handsaw. Mr. Schollian displayed the utmost fortitude, and after he was released walked to the adjoining farm house of Mrs. Caroline Merricle, where he was resting quietly at ast report. He is much weakened by the loss of blood, but he is not believed to have sustained any other serious injuries.

Mr. Day, in speaking of the cause of the accident, said: "There must have been a waterspeut, for a powerful stream of water washed the dirt out from under the track for a distance, I should think, of half a mile. With the foundation gone there is nothing to hold up the tracks, and as the weight of the train struck the weak spot, down and

The first few minutes the stones were only as large as big marbles, but before the storm was on five minutes the size of the chickens, knock birds out of trees, break slats on window shutters and cut large branches off of trees. Had the hail been accompanied by a heavy wind there is no

Broken Windows at Beatrice. BEATRICE, Neb., May 28 .- (Special Telegram.)-This section was visited by one of the severest hailstorms early this evening ever witnessed here. The storm came from the northwest and was preceded by a heavy, rumbling sound not unlike a railroad train. It came up suddenly and hundreds of people in carriages were caught, many minor accidents occurring and several runaways causing more serious damage. Hundreds of window lights were broken including the stained glass windows in the Episcopal and Methodist church buildings, the court house and school buildings. The north end of the city suffered the heaviest, no hair falling south of the Rock Island depot, and the further north the heavier the damage. In the extreme north part of the city even the board sidings on the houses were split. Dead birds are to be seen all over the streets and pavements are carpeted with leaves cut from the trees. The storm continued for about ten minutes. The demand for window glass is so great that the local stocks are already completely exhausted.

The extent of the storm in the country is not yet known, but it was undoubtedly more severe for some distance out than in the city and vegetation in all parts is seriously damaged. Over 200 lights were broken out of the institution for the feeble minded, many of them being large glass. A team driven by Louis Cox, a resident of Northeast Beatrice, ran away this afternoon, gives satisfaction to the people of Sioux breaking Mr. Cox's shoulder blade, cutting a serious gash in the head of his 4-year-old boy and severely injuring his wife.
