Tired of His Mundane Travels and Journeys to the Unknown

Land. CHICAGO, June 2.-Reginald Heintz, an English tourist, threw himself into the lake last night from the private yacht Peri, in which, with three Chicago friends, he was sailing near the four-mile crib. Despite immediate and strenuous efforts by his companions to rescue him, he was drowned and his body is in the deep water near the crib. It was the second attempt at suicide Heintz had made within a few hours. While at the office of a physician in the afternoon be tried to cut his throat with a surgical instrument and was prevented only after a struggle. F. H. Skinner, a dentist, one of the men in the boat with Heintz, told the police that the Englishman was only a casual acquaintance and that they were not even aware of his address. Mr. Skinner further told the police that Heintz lived on small remittances that were sent to him from England; that he drank a good deal, and that he thought it was a case of suicide. Mr.

Wine f Cardui

Just think of it! Sixty months of intense pains in the back, neck, shoulders, limbs and womb; sick-headache, hysteria and other distressing symptoms! What would men do if they had to pass through such ordeals? And yet numberless women endure this dreadful suffering as a matter of course. No one can tell why. One bottle of Wine of Cardui will bring gratifying relief. Two bottles have often effected a radical cure. A doctor and his humiliating local examinations are absolutely unnecessary. A woman can buy Wine of Cardui at her druggist's; take it home and be her own physician. If she will take it faithfully, according to directions, she will be restored to her girlish health, and her face will look fresher, fairer and younger than her actual years warrant. Good health keeps old age at a distance.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, Ludder Advisory Department, The Chattaneoga Medicine Co. Chattaneoga, Tenn. Sold by Druggists. A Large Bottle for $1.00.
