for the night on the second battlefield. The cavalry, the Oregonians and two companies of the Fourth infantry had just crossed a small creek about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and entered upon a sunken road, from which they were emerging upon a small valley surrounded on all sides by high and heavily-wooded hills, when the rebels, concealed in the mountains on the three sides of the plain, opened a hot fire and sent showers of bullets into the ranks of the Americans. The latter deployed immediately in three directions.

Then followed a charge across the rice fields and ditches and up the hillsides, from which the shots came all the time, pouring in a terrific hall, while the air reounded with the constant rattle of musketry.

The Fourth cavalry, being in front, suffered the severest loss when the attack opened, two of their killed being sergeants and the other a private. The Oregonian killed was a private.

The natives were unable to stand the vigorous firing of the Americans long and at the first sign of their wavering the cavalry, Oregonians and Fourth infantrymen broke into wild cheers and charged still faster up the hillsides, pouring in volley after volley until the men left the places where they were partially concealed by the thicket, fled over the aummit in the wildest confusion and disappeared in the sur-· rounding valleys. After the fight was over the firing was continued by the Americans for more than an hour in clearing out the bush and driving away straggling Filipinos.
