SHOWS A LARGE DECREASE

City Assessor Hardin Completes Assessment of Council Bluffs.

WILL TURN OVER BOOKS THIS MORNING

Under the New Taxation Laws the Valuation of the City is Reduced Over One Million and a Half Dollars.

The belief that the valuation of Council Bluffs under the new method of assessment would be reduced anywhere from $1,500,000 $2,000,000 has been verified. City Assessor Hardin yesterday completed the assessment of the city and will be ready to turn over his books this morning to the city council for the purpose of equalization. His books show that the valuation of Council Bluffs for assessment purposes amounts this year to but $2,840,000, as against $4,455,090 for 1898, which is a decrease in round numbers of $1,600,000. This large falling off in the valuation of the city is ascribed to the new method of assessment. Formerly it was the custom to assess property at 40 per cent of its supposed value, the estimate of the value being left with the assessor. Under the new law, which came into operation this year, all real estate is assessed at 25 per cent of its actual value. The legislalature, when changing the mode of assessment, was under the impression that the new method would tend to increase the valuation rather than decrease it, but the contrary has been found to be the case. Reports from all over the state show that the same conditions prevail and that Council Bluffs is not alone in having its assessed valuation materially reduced. It is confidently expected that the next legislature will change the law, as the state will undoubtedly be hampered by such a big decrease in its revenue.

Under the new law the assessment of the different banks shows a big decrease. Formerly banks were assessed on their capital stock, surplus and real estate and holdings of government bonds. There are many who claim that property has always in the past been assessed too high and that the new law is an equitable and fair one, as it assesses property at its actual and not at its supposed value. Assessor Hardin is of this opinion, and cites in support a number of cases where under the new law the assessment this year of well known pieces of real estate has been materially decreased. His argument is that whereas these pieces of property have this year been assessed at defendants entered upon some lots that he 25 per cent of their "actual" value, the valuation placed on them under the old rule of 40 per cent of their supposed value was excessive. For instance, he quotes a well known residence property on Sixth street opposite the park that for years has been assessed at $2,000 and which was a short time ago placed on the market and sold for $5,000. The sale price was taken to be the value of the property, this being considthe corner of Avenue A and Twenty-third | ered the best index, and consequently this street. Two of his ribs were broken and he | year was assessed at $1,250, the fourth of its selling value. This is but one instance, but is given by the assessor to show the reason for the great decrease of the as-

That the city will suffer by the large decrease in the valuation goes without saying. The law limits the levies for the general, Madame E. The case is one of many similar suits that are constantly arising in the southwest part of the city where there is a large area of unimproved property. The title to many of the vacant lots in this part of the city is in dispute, the property in a number of instances having been sold at tax sale. The result is that the original owner of the property leases the lots to one party, and the holder of the tax title rents them to other persons. Then the trouble commences, and the justice courts are called upon to settle the difficulty.
