CONDITION OF CITY SCHOOLS

Superintendent Hayden Submits His Annual Report to Board of Education.

HIGH SCHOOL IS BADLY OVERCROWDED

Course of Study Has Been Systematized and the Past Year Shows a Positive Advance Along All Lines.

In accordance with a provision of the cules and regulations of the Board of Education, Prof. H. B. Hayden, superintendent of the city schools, yesterday filed his annual report for the year ending June 16. The report is a most exhaustive one and shows the condition and progress of the schools and auggests such measures as in his judgment will be conducive to their improvethe new high school his report and suggesons on the condition of the present high school buildings are timely and of considerable interest. His report in part follows:

The control and direction of the schools this board, and through him its plans and general policy for the administration of the schools reach the principals and teachers and are carried into effect.

Under this delegated authority it has been the purpose of your superintendent to organize the work of the schools upon a somewhat more definite basis than had the part of principals and teachers. To positive advance made in the organization and efficiency of our schools. Course of Study.

This systematizing has taken two direc-tions. It has been carried out in the general management and control of the schools, and it has been applied to the instruction in them. Nearly a year ago this board di-rected the superintendent to prepare a ourse of study. But, knowing that since he publication of the last printed course of study radical changes had been made in some lines of the work of the graded schools, it seemed to us best to work out the course in the school rooms before presenting it to this board for adoption. To this end frequent meetings of the principals and superintendent have been held and plans made looking toward the organizing of the work of the several grades of the city schools. Committees of the principals, under the direction of the superintendent, have compared the grade work of one building with that of others, and in conference with the superintendent have developed the outlines which will be the basis for the course of study which it is our plan to submit to the approval of this board at an early meeting. Much of the work of our schools has already been so adjusted that the pupils of any given grade in the several buildings are doing work much more nearly parallel than a year ago.

The teachers need for their more definite guidance a printed outline of the work as it is now planned; this outline we have a it is now planned; this outline we hope to have ready for them by the beginning of the fall term

The enrollment in the schools has shown a marked increase during the year. A nota-ble fact in regard to this increase is that it is generally affecting all the schools within the city proper and some of the suburban schools But while the increased enrollment in the schools is gratifying and the per cent of attendance and of punctuality shows imttendance and of punctuality provement, we believe that a higher stand-ard yet should be attained and maintained To accomplish this will require the com bined efforts of teachers and parents. Both are interested in the child; each is so related to him as to be in a position to in-fluence his school attendance. I believe that our teachers have been faithful in this matter; I fear that all too often parents permit minor matters to interfere with the school attendance of their children. We shall endeavor in the coming year to secur the more active co-operation of parents with the teachers on this point.

The life and work of the children in our schools now begin with the kindergarten as a part of our regular graded system. Here the child learns his first lessons of carefully directed physical and mental activity. The games of the kindergarten teach the occupations and the gifts direction: give him ideas of form and dimension and prepare the way for his number work later the stories give him names and expression and prepare him for his work in this department by the parents of attending children has been continued and hearty; the attendance of parents at the Mothers' neetings has been a great encouragement to the work and has brought parents and workers into contact and sympathy.

the training school feature of this department. The kindergarten workers consist of a directress and a paid assistant for each two kindergartens; in addition to these, valuable assistance is rendered by volunteers who donate their services, receiving as ompensation practical training in the kindergartens and a regular course of study in the theory and methods of the work under the efficient direction of the supervisor of kindergartens, Mrs. L. M. Hardman,

At that the staves were to be delivered on dualified to enter upon regular work and board the cars at Logan on their order. The plaintiff alleges that it has made an order thus we are training our own workers and fitting some to go out into other fields as regular trained kindergartners. And in re-turn for this training much valuable work We have just graduated our first class of trained workers.

In the regular grades especial attention id been given to the number work and new methods had recently been introduced.
While due attention has been given to the number work in the lower grades the question of reading, with allied work in language and spelling, has had our especial attention during the year. We believe that instruction in reading should cover two distinct lines—drill and practice. For drill a regular text and a studied lesson are essential; for practice a supply of interesting and instructive reading matter to be read at sight is required. Through the kind interest of your honored board both these needs have been met. The series of readers adopted by you have been purchased by the public and are giving available. the pupils and are giving excellent natis-faction to pupils, teachers and patrons; and the supplementary readers purchased by the board have proven most valuable in the work. By reason of this supply of needed material and through the earnest, intelli-gent work of the teachers, marked improveent in the reading is afready noticeable in Under our present plan the child in the primary grade first learns to read script side of Nineteenth avenue from Twenty-sixth street to Ninth street, east side of Twenty-sixth street to Ninth street, east side of Twenty-sixth street from Broadway to Twenty-third avenue, south side of Nineteenth avenue from Interest a control of the co his desk he takes his first steps toward writing and spelling by reproducing the words which his teacher has written upon the board and taught him to read. In other studies only slight modifications have been made during the year. All changes made have been brought about by a gradual transition and the work of the pupils has thus not been seriously disturbed.

High School. The year just closed has been a year of marked growth and development in the High school. During the school year 1897-98 we enrolled 403 students, closing the year with 314 after deducting the number grad-uated. Last September we opened with 389 and the total enrollment for this year has been 448. After deducting the fifty-two graduates we closed the last regular month of this year with 359 belonging. A class of eighty-five has just been promoted to the High school, so that our numbers will casily reach 450 in the early months of next year. The work of the school has been broad-ened as its numbers have increased. We now have the studies so arranged that the students may complete any one of the five courses, classical Latin scientific, German scientific, English scientific, or business. Each of these courses covers four years. Provision is made for the student who desires a shorter course in commercial or other work by permitting, under the direction the principal, a selection of such studies ment. In view of the pending litigation over as he needs and granting a certificate of the new high school his report and sugges- proficiency at the close of his work. The scholastic work of the school has shown a marked improvement during the year and additional recognition has been accorded us by the colleges, for all of which great credit is due to Principal W. N. Clifford, whose first year of zealous, untiring work with us lodge primarily, under the law of the state, in the board of seven school directors elected by the people. The authority vested in the city superintendent is delegated by the school is now a serious one. We have been obliged to carry a class of fifty students at the Washington Avenue school during the past semester. use two rooms in that building for High school purposes during the coming term. The ward school accommodated here is steadily growing and will soon need the entire building. The problem of High characterized it in the immediate past. To schools accommodations now confronting this end it has been our endeavor to inthis board is indeed a serious one. crease the feeling of responsibility upon I am unable to express my regret over I am unable to express my regret over the complications that have arisen and that this endeavor principals and teachers have now bid fair to make the erection of a new responded loyally with the result that we building impossible. But the school children of this city, who fairly earn their promotion to the High school, are already suffering a deprivation of privilege in being compelled to take up High school studies under ward school con-ditions. No city in the state has greater reason than Council Bluffs to be proud of the young people that constitute its High school; no school exists where the students more fully appreciate and improve their opportunities. In behalf of these young be pie, our High school students, I make bold to recommend most respectfully that this board make every effort possible to provide adequate accommodations for our rapidly growing High school.

Special Branches.

The work in music has been carried forward with spirit during the year. Perhaps no other branch of the work touches so many of the people as this. In the home, and the results attained have been very pleasing. Of a more positive pedagogical value is he work in penmanship and drawing. Training the eye and the hand only partially expresses the importance of the work of this department. It would be more correct to say that the powers of observation and of expression are the ones developed by the instruction and practice in penmanship and drawing. The development of a true art spiri mong the children and the beautifying o he walls of school rooms and corridors en itles the various ladies' clubs of the city and the supervisor of this department, Miss Blood, to much credit and commendation. Davis sells paint.
