LOUD IN PRAISE OF THE EXPOSITION

Arrival of a Large Delegation of Teachers from New England Who Pleasantly Spend the Day at the Grounds.

A sky overcast with leaden-colored clouds and a promise of rain throughout the day, cast a gloom over the hopes and ambitions of the officers of the Greater America Exposition. They had made their plans for observing the anniversary of the Battle of Santiago in true military style and had hoped that the elements would deal kindly with them. However, they were not discouraged.

The erators of the day, General Joe Wheeler, who one year ago commanded the United States forces at Santiago and won a signal victory over the flower of the Spanish army, and Postmaster General Smith, accompanied by Miss Lucy Wheeler, Joseph Wheeler, jr., and C. E. Dawson arrived at the Mason street station in their private car. where they were met by President Miller of the exposition and the members of the reception committee. The visitors were driven to the Paxton hotel, where they breakfasted, after which they held a reception in the parfors, meeting a number of the Omaha people who called to pay their respects. Among the callers were several volunteers who were with General Wheeler in his campaign in Cuba, a number of Grand Army of the Republic veterans, and two who wore the gray during the rebellion.

Shortly before 10 o'clock the Second Nebraska regiment, commanded by Major Hayward and preceded by the Indian band, came in from the exposition grounds and formed on Fourteenth street, opposite the hotel. The band rendered a couple of patriotic selections, after which the guests of the day were escorted to carriages in waiting and, accompanied by the members of the executive and reception committees, were driven work to the natives." to the Auditorium, where the exercises were held. The soldiers formed the escort and the line of march was over the usual route.

OVATION TO WHEELER AND SMITH. Hero and Statesman Are Given Hearty

Greeting at the Grounds. The reception to General Joe Wheeler and Pustmaster General Smith at the exposition grounds was suggestive of the great demonstrations of Jubilee week a year ago, when other heroes, fresh from the field of conquest, were royally greeted. There was the same patriotic enthusiasm. The speeches with nearly the same issues they were punctuated by the same ever ready applause. Postmaster General Smith delivered an eloquent and somewhat elaborate address, in which he presented an able defense of the policy of the administration in the Philippines, and this was received with the closest interest and with vigorous approval. General Wheeler spoke more briefly, but he was the object of an ovation that continued intermittently from the time he appeared on the stage until the exercises were over.

The opening day crowd was but a handful to that which congregated in the auditorium to welcome the distinguished guests whose presence bonored Omaha and the exposition The front of the house was filled with the members of the Nebraska volunteers and the local military organizations and the domi nant blue and gold, with the rattle of rifles and clank of sabres gave the spectacle a came to greet the honored guests of the day. stirring music of the band.

For once the parade arrived promptly on time and just after 11 o'clock President Miller appeared on the stage, followed by Postmaster General Smith, General Wheeler, General Manderson, Mayor Moores, Postmaster Crow, Captain Grote Hutcheson and other members of the official party. Their entrance was accompanied by a hearty volley of cheers and hand clapping, which only closed when President Miller advanced to begin the exercises of the day

Sentiment of the Day.

President Miller declared that this assemblage was to honor ourselves and our nation by celebrating in a dignified and patriotic way one of the most signal victories of the of Cervera was greeted by tremendous cheering. He declared that it shed unfading honor on this age and that its memory will be preserved with equal honor in the ages that are to come. President Miller then alluded gracefully to the guests of the day and the mention of the name of Postmaster General Smith was greeted by another burst of applause. This swelled into an ovation when "Gallant Joe Wheeler" was mentioned. The volunteers were in their seats and cheered lustily, while the crowd waved handkerchiefs and helped to prolong the enthusi-

The occupants of the buildings became panic-stricken and rushed to the windows Those who went to the front where there was a fire escape, were able to make their way to the sidewalk by a ladder from the second story. On the south side of the burning structure, however, many of the frenzied women leaped out of the third story windows to the roof of a shed. It was at this point that most of those in jured suffered. On the north side of the building several women escaped down a adder raised by Mrs. George Caldwell and Carterville Miners Are Restrained by Federal Court from Interfering with Workmen.

SPRINGFIELD, 111., July 3 .- The United states has now taken a hand in the mining troubles at Cartersville. This afternoon, on the application of Charles H. Bosworth, receiver of the St. Louis and Big Muddy Coal company of Carterville, who was appointed in the federal court as such, Judge Allen in the federal court issued an omnibus injunction against John Plana and others retraining them from in any way interfering with the receiver or any of those employed at the mine in its operation. Chief Deputy United States Marshal Watts, accompanied by Deputies Wier, Dowell, Spring, Williams and Eaton, has gone to Carterville to enforce the injunction.
