

FAIR ATTENDANCE AT "EXPO"

At Executive Committee Meeting Kitchen Offers Apology to Penfold.

RACE TRACK SCHEME HAS BEEN ABANDONED

It is Decided to Try Experiment of Having Children's Day—A Featureless Day—Kitchen is Looking Out for the Passes.

The spirits of the promoters of the Greater America Exposition move up and down with as much irregularity as the mercury in a thermometer. Friday these promoters were gloomy and despondent on account of the fact that a few hundred paying people were upon the grounds. Yesterday they were happy and hopeful, because it required four figures to record the number of persons who passed the gates. The day was perfect, one of those ideal summer days unknown to almost every section of the country except Nebraska. The heat was not oppressive, and then there was a delightful breeze, just enough to set in motion the leaves of the trees upon the grounds and make sightseeing a pleasure.

There were few strangers upon the grounds. In fact there were few people there during the morning hours, but after the shops and wholesale houses closed, many of the employes came out for an afternoon's outing.

Kitchen Apologizes.

The executive committee of the exposition found business on hand that required the attention of the members during a greater portion of the day. They went into session during the early morning, and in the afternoon they held another meeting, at both of which ways and means for pulling out of the mire were discussed. Early in the session J. B. Kitchen, of the Department of Admissions, was called upon to explain the matter and to offer his apology to Manager H. J. Penfold of the Concessions department, which was accepted. The incident which brought about the apology was this: Some days ago Mr. Penfold was instructed to organize a committee for the entertainment of distinguished guests who may come to the exposition during the summer. Mr. Penfold was given twenty-five blank passes with instruction to insert the names of the twenty-five women whom he might select. He selected the women and reported the names to Mr. Kitchen. The next day Kitchen posted the names at each of the exposition gates, instructing that the passes be taken up when presented. It happened that none of the women visited the grounds that day and consequently they were spared the humiliation that otherwise would have been heaped upon them. Kitchen declared that it was a mistake; that he forgot about the passes and would never do so again.

Race Track Scheme Is Dropped.

After pouring $5,000 into a rat hole the members of the executive committee have allowed their better judgment to prevail and have abandoned a scheme that they conceived some weeks ago. At the time referred to some of the members of the executive committee concluded that it would be a great thing to have a race track upon the grounds. Accordingly, they went to work and after they have spent the sum named in putting in a race track on that portion of the grounds occupied by the Indian congress and the live stock show last year. They have had graders there for weeks, making one of the finest tracks in the country, but suddenly they have awakened to the realization that it is not the easiest thing in the world to secure racing attractions. They have discovered that all the horses of any note are booked for the season, and that they are going to the regular meets. At the same time they have learned that few of the speedy wheelmen of the country are at liberty to come here, as the dates for all of the races and road meets have been made. This accounts for the abandonment of work upon the race track.

Children's Days.

The executive committee has decided to try the experiment of having children's days, when all children under 15 years of age will be admitted to the grounds free of charge. The first of the occasions will be next Wednesday, when all the Omaha boys and girls will be passed through the gates. On the following Wednesday the South Omaha children will come and on the Wednesday following that the Lincoln lassies from Council Bluffs will be here. Up to this time no plan has been perfected for their entertainment, but it is likely that there will be day and night fireworks, with lots of music. If the plan of carding days for the Omaha, South Omaha and Council Bluffs children proves to be a winner it will be followed up with special days when the little ones from Lincoln, Fremont and other towns will be brought here and given a good time.

Last year the Trans-Mississippi Exposition managers made a great hit by setting aside days when they would entertain the young folks of this and other cities. The officials of the present exposition propose to profit by their experience and bring in as many of the children as possible. Yesterday was another occasion when the

ADMINISTRATION ORATORS TURNED DOWN

Middle-of-the-Road Sentiment Prevails After a Vigorous Debate and by a Decisive Majority.

After three hours of fierce debate in which the fusion and anti-fusion elements mixed in heated conflict the county central committee of the populist party last night decided to hold the county convention Saturday, August 12, without the aid or consent of any other party on earth. While the issue was stubbornly contested the sentiment of a majority of the committee was at no time in doubt.

Jim Kitchen's Idea.

The Bureau of Admissions has evidently caught onto another plan for squandering a portion of the proceeds of the $40,000 note given a few days ago in order to raise funds to continue the existence of the show. There are seven pass gates at the exposition grounds and at each of these since the opening day ticket takers have been working in two shifts, so that four men have been employed to look after the passes to the main show. Yesterday Manager Kitchen of the Bureau of Admissions put on fourteen extra pass gate ticket takers at a salary of $40 per month each. What the duties of these men are no person knows, unless they are given the inside of the technical details.

With two men on a pass gate a passholder presents himself and asks for admission. At this point in the proceedings one of the pass takers hands to the pass holder a small white card. On this the pass holder writes his name and the number of his pass. This card he hands back to the man from whom he received it, and he in turn hands it to the second pass taker, who permits the pass holder to go through the turnstile. The contention of the new plan is said by Mr. Kitchen to be a movement in the direction of preventing an abuse of the pass system. However, some of the stockholders who have looked into the matter intimate that it is simply another way of inflating fourteen men upon the payroll. They argue that up to this time there has been no attempt at abusing the pass system and if there should be later on the salary of the fourteen men during the four months of the exposition will equal hundreds of dollars more than the admissions which might be secured fraudulently.

Again, these same stockholders argue that if there is an effort to abuse the pass system by two men on a gate will not prevent it any more than one would. There is never a time when a ticket taker does not have time to look at the pass and the slip presented and compare the signatures.

An Evening of Enjoyment.

Evening brought out a good sized crowd of the city people, who distributed themselves over the Plaza, along the Main Court and down the Midway. The concert by Godfrey's band was enjoyed by the lovers of music and the players were compelled to respond to a couple of encores. The Grand Court, with the thousands of bright lights shining down upon it, was a delightful place to rest and hundreds took advantage of the opportunity offered, drinking in the perfume of the tropical flowers and plants of the little parks. The spectacle entitled "The Battle of Manila" was the stellar drawing card of the evening and the seats were filled to their full capacity. As upon other occasions interest centered in the battle between the two fleets and the final destruction of the Spanish vessels, which was realistic that a couple of women in the audience fainted. The fireworks were especially fine, as was the entertainment given upon the stage.

SIGHTS ALONG THE MIDWAY

Exposition Visitors Enjoy Themselves Viewing the New Concessions.

The concessionaires to a man seem to have taken advantage of the absence of a crowd to complete their different attractions or improve where defects were noticed during the rush of the first few days. Yet there were a great many visitors who insisted on seeing everything on the Midway just the same. The Cuban and Porto Rican Village is pushing all of the unfinished parts of its attraction and will be in shape today to take proper care of all visitors. The Cuban dance given in the theater is attracting considerable favorable comment. The darkeys at the Old Plantation yesterday were having a good time laying in the shade places being over again their most famous watermelon display in "ole Alabama." Mr. McConnell has added much to the feature of the Midway of last year and is sure of a good patronage.

The owners of the Philippine Village are making the work as fast as possible, and will have everything in readiness for the reception of the Filipinos and animals about the 25th. On August 1 there will be a grand opening that will give Omaha its first glimpse of the real island of Luzon.

The Scenic Railway was on the move all day Saturday, and the manager now feels that everything is in first-class condition for the exposition rush. The popular price of 10 cents that has been made this year has kept the cars fairly well most of the day with the small attendance of the last few days.

If there is one thing on the Midway that should receive the patronage of the Omaha people more than any other it is the Giant Seesaw. A most magnificent sight in view of Omaha can be had from here and the grand panorama stretching from Florence to South Omaha is a sight never to be forgotten. The liberal patronage received shows that it is considered the chief Midway attraction.

Mr. Fritz Mueller, owner of the popular Schlitz pavilion, has for many reasons to complain, for everybody seems to find the cool verandas of Fritz's place. Next week he will open up the Dutch guest house in the Dairy building with an imported orchestra from Germany, one of the largest ever seen in this country.

The First Grief; or, the Death of Abel, is not a moving picture, but is a superb masterpiece, painted by one of Europe's most famous painters, Toletti, and valued at $85,000. It is on the East Midway and is one of the educational features of the exposition.

The life of the artist is perfectly portrayed in the poses of the beautiful models representing the most famous paintings, with the artist and all of his Bohemian habits and ways of living and working. This is very interesting and will in no sense shock the modesty of the most timid. The attraction is proving quite attractive to the lady class.

Think of being bound hand and foot, then put in a sack, securely tied and pushed out into twenty feet of water, left to cut your bonds before you could get a breath of air—that's what the little woman went through yesterday at the Water carnival, and it was five minutes before she was up to the surface. This, with the thrilling dive from a tower ninety-five feet high, attracts all the Midway visitors.

Steinhilber's orchestra kept things lively at the Chinese cafe and the orchestra was doing a land office business up to the time the guards called time on him.

NEED MORE FIRE HYDRANTS

Property Owners of Bristol Street Alarmed for the Safety of Their Homes.

The residents of Bristol street, in North Omaha, have gone to Chief Redell in their attempt to secure the location of a few more fire hydrants on that thoroughfare. They are of the district in question say they are at the mercy of any serious fire that might happen to break out and they point to the narrow escape from a disastrous conflagration that was experienced recently when a house at 2503 Bristol street, belonging to O. Martis, caught fire. The fire department had to go to Emmet street, three blocks away, for a hose connection. They consider themselves fortunate in that the fire was checked as quickly as it was. A petition for these hydrants was addressed to the council over a year ago, but no action has yet been taken. The citizens hope to effect something if they go before the council with a statement from the chief as to their needs.

The council finds itself under the necessity of refusing to locate hydrants at every meeting owing to the inadequacy of the funds at its command. No hydrants have been ordered put in for some time except under a special arrangement whereby they are not to be paid for until next year's funds are available.

An alarm of fire was turned in shortly before 8 o'clock last evening. A quick response by the department resulted in the fire being checked before it had reached the warehouse. Eleven and Leavenworth streets, in the rear of the warehouse two carloads of binder twine, owned by the Kitgman implement company, were stored. The fire evidently originated outside the building and burned through to where the twine was stored. The damage did not exceed $10.
