The Commercial Advertiser's London inarcial cablegram says: The markets here were inactive today; they opened dull, but improved later on a spurt of 11-16 in consols. The recent weakness in them is attributed to sales by discount brokers who were unwilling to pay the stiff loan rates demanded by the bank. It is rumored that the proposal to extend postoffice savings bank investments beyond consols has been abandoned. A more hopeful view of the Transval situation also prevailed. Money was harder. There is talk of an advance in the bank rate tomorrow, but I think such action improbable. Gold to the price declined to 77s 9½d. Americans were buoyant, closing at the best.
