ROADS MAKE A COMPROMISE

Storm Lake Railroad Crossing War Will Be Taken Into Court for Settlement.

AGREEMENT MADE TO AVOID BLOODSHED

Minneapolis & St. Louis Road Will Go on and Make the Crossings—Bitterest Railway Fight on Record.

PORT DODGE, Ia., July 26.—(Special.)—The tension of the situation at Storm Lake, where the Minneapolis & St. Louis and the Milwaukee roads have been engaged in a struggle for right-of-way, has been considerably relieved.

Monday morning Judge Cook of Cedar Rapids and R. M. Wright of Fort Dodge, attorneys for the Milwaukee and Minneapolis & St. Louis roads respectively, went to Storm Lake to take personal supervision of the situation.

The feeling between the workmen of the respective roads was very high and that a riot was imminent. So as to avoid any possible danger of bloodshed the representatives of the two roads signed an agreement.

According to the terms of the agreement it is stipulated that the Milwaukee will not interfere with the Minneapolis & St. Louis in the building of its track and the Minneapolis & St. Louis will go ahead and put four tracks over the disputed right-of-way.

The Milwaukee men who were in possession of the tracks were withdrawn and the Minneapolis & St. Louis has commenced laying its track without any further delay.

A TORNAO AT FIRST HAND.

Personal Experiences and Observations of a Missouri Author. "In the Whirl of the Tornado" is the title under which John R. Musick describes, in the August Century, a personal experience at his home in Missouri, last spring.

It was my good fortune to be an eye-witness of one of the devastating tornadoes that often sweep American soil.

At about 6:30 on the afternoon of April 27, 1899, I left my house in Kirksville, Mo., to post some letters.

At the same moment I discovered that the course of the tornado was changed, and that it was sweeping in a northeasterly direction through what is known as Fible's addition to the city.
