While it did not rain yesterday, all day long the weather had a threatening aspect. A party of editors, accompanied by their wives, representing the Trade Press association of Chicago, visited the exposition during the forenoon and toured the buildings and grounds. At noon they lunched at the Philippine restaurant, the guests of the evening.

On account of the weather, no attempt was made to remove the Indians to the city. The officials did the concessionalists do a thing in the way of opening their doors, though at a few places private audiences were given to the visiting editors, that they might have an idea of some of the amusement features of the exposition.

Races were scheduled for the afternoon, but owing to the weather, the feature was declared off. The same course was pursued with reference to the band concerts of the morning and afternoon.

The ambulance of the Emergency hospital was about the only thing on the exposition grounds that did a good business during the day. This vehicle was kept on the go a large portion of the time, responding to calls from persons who complained of heat or had met with minor accidents that required medical attendance.

Officials on the Midway. City Administration Turns Out in Force to Do Its Duty Among the Freaks.

The hospitable Midway seldom shows more hospitality to a company of special guests than it did Saturday night to the members of the city council and other members of the city administration. Nor does the Midway often entertain people more appreciative of its manifold delights. The fun began early and ended early, sometime before breakfast, to the best of everyone's recollection, though no one who was in at the finish can remember very clearly how or where the end came.

The officials were under the guidance of Councilman Katz, who represented the directory of the exposition, and he showed a surprising familiarity with life as it is lived by the cosmopolitans of the noisy street. He had informed the beats at the various stopping places that his party would number 110, but he had no time to make a list of names for 100, to which number the party had swelled before the evening was half over.

To narrate in detail what happened would be to present such a thrilling tale that the newswriters would desert their yellow-backed novels and come to report on the scene. But it cannot be kept a secret that Mayor Moore was with difficulty restrained from showing the crowd that he could ride the donkey in Hagenback's if he wanted to, nor that the diving show pleased Stutz so much he tried to buy the whole outfit and move it down to Ninth and Homer streets for the benefit of the people who have to walk half a mile for their water. The only unhappy incident of the evening occurred when President Bingham invited one of the Indians to consider himself a member of the council. The Indian drew himself up proudly, turned his back on the crowd and sent his squaw for a war club. There was nothing for the charged councilmen to do but overcome their mortification by casting themselves into the excitement of the Cuban village.

At the time the street lamps and street cars went off the tour of official duty was ended and the main springs of the municipality wended their several ways home wearily, but still singing.

Worries Exposition Managers. Some days ago it was discovered that parties were catching the fish from the Lagoon, of which there are thousands of fine crappies, bass, perch and carp. The guards were ordered to arrest all parties caught in the act of catching the fish. For a short time after the issuance of the order it was thought that the poaching had been discontinued, but now the exposition managers discover that the fishing is being continued and that nightly large numbers of fish are being taken out of the Lagoon with both

Drexel L. Shoeman

Attracts attention wherever he goes—so do the shoes he sells—for he knows how to save money—then the comfort he gives you—you can look in vain for it elsewhere—no other place shows so many well-soled oxfords for ladies—and there is comfort in a well-soled—the extension of a well sole not only protects the uppers, but they prevent the foot from becoming hot and tired—all styles of toe—black—black—no other shoe will give you as much solid comfort when you do the exposition this summer.

Most Smokers Do—

At least we find all those that have ever smoked the little 5-cent Barrister cigar always buy it—it is just as good as the Barrister of 10 cents—same tobacco—same wrapper, only smaller—and yet just large enough to give a good, satisfactory smoke—All live cigar dealers sell the Little Barrister—and you should insist upon getting it—We are the distributing agents and would be glad to fill all box orders.

Midway that is attracting a great deal of attention. It is the Hungarian Gypsy entertainment of Gypsy fortune tellers, represented by eight beautiful Romanyes of various nations. They are the most famous fortune-tellers of their class in the United States and have been gathered from all parts of the country to grace the village.

Their readings are but 25 cents and the camp is crowded all the time. Notwithstanding the bad weather of the last week the attendance at Hagenback's animal show on the Midway has been such as to gratify the management, considering the small number of people who were on the grounds during the rainy days. But then everybody who visits the exposition always takes in Hagenback's. A big feature will be introduced this week in the shape of the celebrated orang-outang, captured less than a year ago in the island of Borneo. This famous beast has hardly yet been tamed and furnishes an endless amount of entertainment for all who see him.

Sioux Indians Display a Great Fondness for Hospital Treatment.

When the Sioux Indians first arrived at the exposition they fought shy of the Emergency hospital, but now they are taking it like a lot of ducks to a puddle of muddy water. No matter how slight the ailment or the accident, the Indian goes to the hospital, and he invariably rides in the ambulance instead of walking.

Yesterday the Indians made a great run on the hospital and during the day there were no less than twenty of them in the wards. However, none of them were suffering from injuries or sickness that demanded detention, and after being treated were hauled back to their camp. The prevailing ailment was cholera morbus, resulting from eating watermelon and peaches, of which they are all exceedingly fond. Then again there were a quantity of rusty nails which penetrated their bare feet and gave them considerable pain. Since the rain the Indians have laid aside their buckskin foot gear and have tramped around the grounds in their bare feet. Yesterday they found an number of nails with the pointed ends sticking up and in about every instance they went against these and came out of the conflicts, disfigured, but still in the ring.
