It was a day given over to the children, as all of the previous Wednesdays have been since the gates of the Greater America Exposition swung in. The little folks were out in goodly numbers, but there were fewer of them on the grounds than upon previous occasions, which fact may be accounted for by reason of the intense heat. All day long the sun shone down with a blistering heat. The children felt it and instead of running here and there they kept in the shade or in close proximity to some of the tanks that were filled with ice water. All the Midway people cut prices to the little folks, but even this did not entice them within the places of amusement. However, as the sun crept out of sight, the youngsters started in to do some sightseeing and during the re-maining hours of the day they trooped through the buildings and visited the Midway, where they enjoyed themselves as only children can. In the forenoon, decked out with fancy blankets and painted faces, the Indians gave a parade. They left the exposition grounds by way of the Sherman avenue gate and proceeded down town, where they covered the principal business streets, reaching the grounds on their return trip shortly after noon. Although they were mounted, they were pretty thoroughly fagged out by the long ride and the heat and showed little disposition to put much snap into their movements. During the afternoon the Indians gave an entertainment on the race track. This was attended largely by the boys and girls, who were amused immensely. The entertainment consisted of foot and pony races and closing with a mimic attack upon a stage coach, and the killing of the occupants. It is presumed that the Indians impersonated the methods pursued many years ago in holding up and disposing of travelers.

In the evening the parents of many of the children visited the grounds for the purpose of hunting out their little ones and seeing them safe home. Many of them remained through the evening's entertainment, which consisted of a concert by the band and fireworks on the Plaza.

The evening crowd was about up to the average, but it was far from being a recordbreaker. There were some strangers in attendance, both during the day and evening.

In the second pony race by Indians, there were three entries, and two in at the finish. George Thunder Horn had bad luck with his horse, which was in the lead at the start. At the quarter, the animal bolted the track, cut across the country and came in ahead, but was ruled out. The horses ridden by Kills-on-Horseback and Little Soldier stuck to the track and passed under the wire close together. > Numerous Street Attractions. Yesterday afternoon and last night tained many busy hours for the Midway people, who put in a good deal of time caering to the little folks who were upon the exposition grounds in goodly numbers. All of the shows cut their rates to the boys and girls and none of the proprietors were sorry, as the presence of the youngsters added many dimes to the treasuries.

At Hagenback's they are preparing for star event, which is the coming of Mme Planka with her troupe of six trained lions. She will arrive next Tuesday and will fill a brief engagement. She is the same woman who was here last season and created a sensation. Her lions are as savage as brutes from the jungle, yet she goes into the arena among them and handles them with as little fear as though they were dogs.

Several additions have been made to the Hawaiian theater in the way of beautifying the grounds. The lawns have been sodded and shade trees and plants have been planted. The native buts have been completed and prove to be an attractive nov-elty. The theater is crowded both afternoon and night by society people who never seem to the music In the Cuban village, Valentine, the executioner at Morro castle, who, while serv-ing Weyler, put nearly 1,000 political prisoners to death, continues to be the attraction. Few people have any respect for this colored man and there is a tendency to shun him, yet all of those who visit the place are anxious to get a look at him.

The Artists' Studio, with its living models, continues to be one of the prime favorites with most of the visitors to the grounds Few have an idea how life-sized portraits are secured. Here they see the work done. They see the artist at work transferring the image to the canvas.

The children had great fun at the Old Plantation yesterday. The little folks wandered among the negro huts, visited with the old aunties, ate their hoecakes and listened to their stories of southern life. They also enjoyed themselves in the theater, where they witnessed the cakewalk and the camp meeting scene, something that is selseen in the north.

Children who were of a patriotic turn of mind spent a great deal of time visiting the Battle of Lookout Mountain, the Waragraph and the Sinking of the Merrimac. All of them are up in United States history, and seeing the scenes and the pictures brough forcibly to their minds the bravery of the American soldiers and seamen.

With the Merry-go-'round children's day is always a great success, financially, and vesterday was no exception to the rule. The little folks clambered over the animals, rode the horses, camels and lions and frolicked about the vehicles. They enjoyed themselves and some of them remained around the place

The Scenic Railway is one thing that never fails to catch the children. While the little ones are not swifter than the children in other cities, it is great sport for them to swing around the curves and up and down the hills at a speed of thirty miles per hour. All day long the cars were on the time they were crowded.

Those Damage Suits.

In connection with Councilman Johnston's attack on City Attorney Montgomery at the council meeting Monday night Mayor Ensor says that in the Elsfelder case he thinks the city can recover from the gas company. Elsfelder's son was playing about a gas trench, near Twenty-third and N streets, one to the gas company a bond was executed holding the city blameless for any accidents which might occur during the laying of mains. The mayor is of the opinion that the city can recover the amount of the judgment by suing the gas company. In the Mary Johnson judgment for $2,500 his honor is inclined to think that the city might recover something from the Schlitz Brewing company. The Johnson woman was injured so it is alleged, by stepping into a post hole in front of the Schlitz property, at the west end of the Q street viaduct. At the time of Johnson asserts that she was passing the Schlitz property when she stepped into a post hole, inflicting severe injuries.

As yet the city council has taken no action on the mayor's suggestions, but it is held by some that nothing could be lost by mak-Cellier ing the attempt to recover from both the Omaha Gas company and the Schlitz people

Endorses Permanent Tribunal of Arbitration-Danger of War in South Africa-Deplores Drouth in India.

LONDON, Aug. 9.-Parliament was proogued at 2 o'clock this afternoon by royal ommission. The House of Lords met and ummoned the Commons to the bar and the proceedings terminated with the reading of the queen's speech.

The queen's speech contained the following with the other powers continue friendly. "The conference summoned by the emperor of Russia to consider measures for completed its sittings. Although the result of its deliberations did not fully correspond with the lofty aims which it was summoned to accomplish, it has met with a considerable measure of success. The institution of a permanent tribunal of arbitration cannot fail to diminish the frequency of war, while the extension of the Geneva convention will mitigate its horrors." After a reference to the conclusion of the Anglo-French convention on the subject of the Nile valley and the Anglo-Russian con vention in regard to railway enterprises in China, the speech continued:

"We have received a petition from a considerable number of my subjects residing in the South African republic praying my assistance to obtain a removal of grievances and disabilities of which they complain The position of my subjects in the South African republic is inconsistent with the romise of equal treatment whereon my grant of internal independence to that republic was founded and the unrest caused thereby is a constant source of danger to the peace and prosperity of my dominions in South Africa. Negotiations on this subject with the government of the South African republic have been entered into and are still proceeding."

Another paragraph deals with the satisfac ory reports of the recovery of the agriculture and trade of India from the depression caused by the famine, but it adds fears are now entertained for the prospects of the harvest in western and central India, owing to the insufficient rainfall, though the officials are taking timely precautions to meet any scarcity.

The speech then reads: "I regret to add that plague, though still confined to the total of 199 areas affected

The speech thanks the Commons for the liberality with which they have provided for the naval and military defense of the benefits which may be expected from domestic legislation passed.
