The old but always new Venetian carnival on the Lagoon was repeated Friday night tainment that was pleasing, not only to the ear but to the eye as well. Belistedt's band gave a program of music suited for out of excursion of about 200 people from points in Missouri were on the grounds all day, and seemed to enjoy the show immensely.

The races postponed from Wednesday were run off in the afternoon. Adelmann's band played several spirited selections. One of the best things on the racing program was the lecture given the jockeys before the races were started. The "boys, as they are familiarly called, have been indulging in all sorts of misbehavior for some time, fouling and falling to get off from the post without innumerable delays. Mr. Russell told them that he would fine them if they did not get away sooner, and also warned them that any more fouling would be punished severely. The red-letter race for the afternoon was Robinson won every quarter in this, thus pocketing the whole purse of $100. Recovers $5,000 of its Missing Money and Will Now Lose Nothing by Copeland's Theft.

Events took a decidedly unexpected turn esterday morning in the Nebraska Naional bank robbery when $5,000, half of the money missing from the bank, was found among the personal effects of Ned H. Copeland, the Burlington railroad teller, whose whereabouts are unknown. That it was the identical money taken from the bank was almost conclusively shown by the fact that the package of bills, in denominations and otherwise, corresponded with the description of the missing money in the possession of the bank. The officers of the institution say that the bank will now lose nothing, as the other half of the defalcation will be made up by the bonding company by which Copeland was

It is understood that the bank, not being a loser, will leave the prosecution of Copeland to the bonding company, which, it is reported, already has detectives at work on the case. Those who have had the best opportunities to know every circumstance of the affair are as much at a lors as any one else to account for Copeland's doings on the theory that he wanted to rob the bank. In the first place, he could have taken a much larger sum had he wished. and, in the second place, one deliberately planning to defraud the bank would scarcely have put half the money where it was easily discovered. It would have been discovered before had any one had the curiosity to open the package in which it
