DELUSION DUE TO DRINK Farmer Who Thought He Had Been Robbed Remembers When Sober He Had No Money.

C. W. Ogden, owner of a farm fifteen miles south of Council Bluffs, was brought into police court to answer to the charge of drunk and disorderly. He had the appearance of a prosperous man and was in doubt whether or not he ought to plead guilty, so the judge devoted a few minutes to an investigation of the cause which led to his arrest.

Ogden said he went to Council Bluffs on business and came across the river to have a good time. The police supplemented the statement with a description of his actions after he got there. They said he entered the police station Wednesday afternoon and told the captain he had been robbed of $40 while drinking with some women in Pat Moran's wine room, Twelfth and Douglas streets. He thought he would be able to identify the woman who took the money, so the police raided the drinking resort, arresting all the inmates. After questioning several of the persons with whom Ogden had been associating, Captain Donahue learned he came to Omaha without money and borrowed various sums from the saloonkeeper, who knew him.

Ogden was put in a cell to sober up. Yesterday he admitted he was without money and said the belief that he had been robbed was a delusion. The judge thought such a delusion should be offset by a ten days' sentence, and he accordingly taxed that penalty against him.

Flight on the Midway. Frank Arthur, a employe of the Moorhead cafe, appeared in police court yesterday with his head swathed in bandages. Above his left optic was a welt caused by the blow of a cane. The other eye was swollen and bruised from being struck by a rock. Arthur interfered in a fight between two brothers, named Bean, not knowing they were related, and both left tokens of the encounter on his countenance. The quarrel took place on the Midway. Arthur and one of the Bean brothers were arrested and will be given a hearing next Saturday.

Announcements. The attendance at the Orpheum this week has been the largest of the season and it now looks as though this society vaudeville theater had struck its regular stride and is repeating its great success of last season. Patrons have found much enjoyment in the entertainments offered this week. Minnie Palmer, the famous comedienne, is appearing nightly in a brilliant one-act play entitled "Rose Pom-Pom." Among the other attractive features are the Cardowine troupe of international dancers; the new American Biograph, showing new war pictures which create the greatest enthusiasm; Powers and Pearl, refined travesty comedians; Chevalier, French comic and violinist; Hall and Stanley, eccentric comedians, and Irene Franklin, singing comedienne. Matinee Saturday.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 there will be a special ladies' and children's matinee at the Trocadero theater. This week's offering, "Girofo-Girofo," a three-act comic opera, is one that cannot fail to please the children as well as "grown people." It is full of good, bright comedy and free from anything that might offend the most fastidious. The music is catchy and the costumes and scenery new, bright and pretty.

DEATH OF CHRIS HARTMAN. Pioneer Resident of Omaha Passes to His Final Rest. DIES SUDDENLY AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS. Served in the Original First Nebraska and Returned to Hold Many Prominent Positions in Public and Business Life.

Christian Hartman, for forty-five years an honored citizen of Omaha, and who has held a number of important positions of public trust, died at his residence, 3411 Farnam street, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Although he had been seriously ill for several days, his death was not expected, and the news was received with surprise and sincere regret by thousands of friends and acquaintances that he had made during his long residence in Omaha. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral, but it is expected that it will be held Sunday, and that the Masons, of which Mr. Hartman was a prominent member, will have charge of the services.

Mr. Hartman was a native of New York City, where he was born May 7, 1844. He came to Omaha with his parents when he was 12 years old, and since then he has resided uninterruptedly in this city. When the civil war broke out he was one of the first to enlist in the famous First Nebraska regiment. He was a member of Company D and served through the war under General John M. Thayer, from whom he subsequently received his first appointment as a member of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners of Omaha.

After the war he returned to Omaha, where he was appointed city weighmaster, a position that he held for two years. He served as one of the county assessors for four years, and in 1875 he was elected city treasurer. He occupied this position for two terms. In 1887 Mr. Hartman was appointed a member of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners by Governor Thayer, and he was reappointed in 1891 for another four-year term. His service in that capacity ended officially August 2, 1895, when Governor Holcomb appointed a new commission. Since then he has acted as the head of the Nebraska Fire Insurance Inspection bureau.

Aside from his public services Mr. Hartman has been prominently identified with the business and social interests of the city. He was treasurer of the State Board of Agriculture for six years and also for the State Board of Horticulture. He also opened the first beef packing plant in Omaha and was also one of the original stockholders in the Carter white lead works. As an influential member of the Board of Trade and other distinctively Omaha organizations he has had much to do with enterprises that sought to promote the interests of the city. He was one of the oldest Masons in the state and was treasurer of the grand lodge of Nebraska for three years. During his life Mr. Hartman accumulated considerable property and his Farnam street residence is one of the handsomest houses in the city. He was at his office until the last two weeks, when he was seized with an acute kidney trouble that brought him to his bed a week ago. He was married in 1865 to Miss Sarah E. Arnold of Newcastle, O., who survives him. He also leaves three children, Fred and Arthur Hartman, and Mrs. W. H. Clark.

In 1887 Mr. Hartman was appointed a member of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners by Governor Thayer, and he was reappointed in 1891 for another four-year term. His service in that capacity ended officially August 2, 1895, when Governor Holcomb appointed a new commission. Since then he has acted as the head of the Nebraska Fire Insurance Inspection bureau.

Aside from his public services Mr. Hartman has been prominently identified with the business and social interests of the city. He was treasurer of the State Board of Agriculture for six years and also for the State Board of Horticulture. He also opened the first beef packing plant in Omaha and was also one of the original stockholders in the Carter white lead works. As an influential member of the Board of Trade and other distinctively Omaha organizations he has had much to do with enterprises that sought to promote the interests of the city. He was one of the oldest Masons in the state and was treasurer of the grand lodge of Nebraska for three years. During his life Mr. Hartman accumulated considerable property and his Farnam street residence is one of the handsomest houses in the city. He was at his office until the last two weeks, when he was seized with an acute kidney trouble that brought him to his bed a week ago. He was married in 1865 to Miss Sarah E. Arnold of Newcastle, O., who survives him. He also leaves three children, Fred and Arthur Hartman, and Mrs. W. H. Clark.
